No Vandenberg For Kennedy

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Hell hath no frustration like that of a congressman restrained from partisan practices on domestic issues by the pressures of international dangers. They reduce, or halt, his ecstatic exhibitionism on the floor. Thus denied, there are no "give-Jack-hell" reprints from the Congressional Record to mail back to the district. This deprivation does harmful things to his psyche.

So sorely tried is the patience of the less stable members of this tribe that some break the gossamer confinements of bipartisanship and flail angrily and pettily away at the administration as if Laos and Cuba, to say nothing of Berlin, and our old friends Quemoy and Matsu, were merely words in an irritatingly difficult crossword puzzle.

It will bear repeating that what the Republicans and President Kennedy both need just now is another Arthur Vandenberg. This able senator from Michigan, whose contribution to winning the second world war was considerable, was able to command a following of Republican Senate votes which produced a majority for common sense. The windy partisans were never able to prevail, although they did come close on a few critical votes.

Verbal Hatchets

We now are well into the third world war, and because of the Cuban failure those who put partisanship first are sharpening their verbal hatchets.

Some of Mr. Kennedy's own party have criticized him for going with such grave courtesy and patience to the Republican leadership and giving them a personal accounting of what happened and his opinion of why. What they overlook is that the President has had to be his own Arthur Vandenberg. There wasn't anyone else around.

Former Vice President Nixon is busy defending, and shoring up, his position as titular head of the party. Mr. Eisenhower could not do the job. It is a chore which can be done best by someone of the Senate opposition. And since there was no such catalyst, the President had to do what was necessary.

There is a very real and present danger. It is more grave and far-reaching than that of 1939 and of December 1941, when our Pacific fleet was sunk or beached and burned at Pearl Harbor. Yet, in 1939 the issues were much more clearly in focus. The enemy was wholly visible. It was Hitler and all he stood for. He held most of Europe; Great Britain was threatened.

Today, the enemy is not so plainly seen. It is, as the President has said, a confident Communist aggression which takes many forms. It involves not merely Russia, but the on-coming Chinese, who are almost a billion strong.

Play-Within-Play

Laos offers a shadowy, play-within-a-play. The Russians do not want Red China in command of Laos. But Peiping would like to be. And since the Chinese are close by and have some of their agents in the rebel bands, they are able to thwart the Anglo-Russian cease-fire.

Just what Laos means to America is not clear to the average citizen. That it is vital to the protection of Indonesia, Thailand and the remainder of yet-free Asia, is a part of the available information. But the issue becomes complicated for the citizen when he knows that the people of Laos are Buddhists who do not believe in fighting, that their wish is to be truly neutralist, and that if the Americans fight in Laos they will receive very little local support.

That this also frustrates and complicates the problem for the national and world anti-Communist leadership almost to the point of despair is not so well understood. But it is true.

There exists in Latin America, in Asia and in Africa, an irrepressible drive for social reform and economic development. The Communists have managed to persuade millions, who equate colonialism with freedom, that they offer the best path. There is, unhappily, no direct, delineated enemy as in 1939 and 1941.

OPERA FIRST NIGHTER ADJUSTS FATHER'S WHITE TIE
Erroll B. Hay and Daughter Mary Arrive at Theater for "Turandot"

Rains Fail to Dim The Met's Glitter

By MARJORY RUTHERFORD

Atlanta's most splendiferous annual spectacle was staged again Monday night on Peachtree Street between Ponce de Leon and Third despite rain flurries.

The Fox Theater marquee blazed forth: NOW PLAYING, METROPOLITAN OPERA.

So did the elegantly attired crowd on the block-long parade route, strolling in a brilliant blur of jewels, furs, bouffant evening gowns, dinner-jackets, top-hats and bare shoulders—and an occasional raincoat.

There was a rapt outdoor audience.

"What you want to keep hanging around here for?" a little boy in blue-jeans asked a slightly older parade-watcher. "They're going to do this all week long."

His saucer-eyed sister hushed him up sharply:

"It won't be the same after tonight. Opening night is something special!"

Something special it was, At-

City Buys Gorilla To Replace Willie B.

A new gorilla has been bought to replace the late Willie B. at Grant Park Zoo.

Willie B.'s successor, which may be named Willie B. II, is expected to arrive from the Midwest later this week.

The new gorilla, 2½ years old and weighing 65 pounds, was purchased for $5,500 from Dr. Deets Pickett of Kansas City, who sold the city the original Willie B.

Willie B. took sick last week with a severe virus and died Saturday.

Clouds May Delay Spaceman's Flight

By RALPH DIGHTON

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Space experts and astronauts tried to outguess the weather Monday night—but there's a 50-50 chance clouds and winds will postpone Tuesday's expected firing of an American into space.

A later look at the weather by a caucus of experts will decide whether the countdown, now nearly half gone, will continue.

Tuesday's half of the countdown is the critical part, when the rocket is fueled and the astronaut prepared and installed in the space capsule. Late Monday the rocket's electronic systems had been checked and the countdown had so far gone without incident.

Television networks plan live coverage of historic flight. Page 35.

Rain visited the Cape Monday afternoon, after cloudy skies during the morning had broken a streak of beautiful weather. But at noon a Polaris rocket streaked through the broken clouds and was still visible about 35 miles high.

Informed sources held hope that the weather would clear enough Tuesday. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has set weather standards well above what is required for an ordinary missile launching.

City Sets Up Traffic Plan For Capitol

Atlanta aldermen approved Monday an ordinance that will create a temporary connector to speed North-South Expressway traffic through the congested Capitol area.

Karl Bevins, city traffic engineer, said the move will make Courtland Street one-way for southbound traffic from Ponce de Leon to Gilmer. Aldermen also okayed making Piedmont Avenue one-way from Decatur Street to North Avenue.

The connector plan, developed by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, will open Washington Street to two-way traffic between Mitchell Street and Edgewood Avenue.

Gov. Ernest Vandiver agreed last week to remove all parking spaces reserved for state officials on the Washington Street side of the Capitol. The city in turn agreed to remove parking meters on Washington Street in the Capitol block.

Under the plan, motorists no longer will be forced to leave Courtland and cross over to Ivy Street and Central Avenue to get on the South expressway leg.

Mercury Inching Back Into 70s

Clearing skies and a high of 70 are expected Tuesday in the Atlanta area, the weatherman said. A low of 50 is forecast.

Fair skies and extremes of 48 and 74 are scheduled Wednesday, he said. Extremes in Atlanta Monday were 53 and 70.

$1.25 Pay Compromise Approved by Conferees

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A House-Senate conference committee Monday approved a compromise $1.25 an hour minimum wage bill which largely met President John F. Kennedy's specifications.

Democratic leaders, in firm control of the conference group all the way, said the compromise measure would be brought up for a showdown vote in both the House and Senate on Wednesday.

Conference Chairman Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., told reporters he thought it would pass the House by about 13 votes.

Sen. Pat McNamara, D-Mich., Senate sponsor of the administration bill, predicted its easy Senate passage.

Although the compromise was largely in line with Kennedy's proposals, the conferees did agree to stretch out the effective dates of the proposed hikes in the wage floor.

The final version would extend wage-hour coverage to about 3.6 million currently unprotected workers.

It faces its stiffest test in the House which originally handed the administration its first major legislative setback March 24 by voting to limit the increase to $1.15 an hour as proposed by a conservative coalition.

Gunman Forces U.S. Plane to Cuba

An Atlanta attorney was aboard a Key West-bound airliner which was taken over Monday by a lone gunman who forced the pilot to land at Havana.

The crew and passengers, including Atlanta Ralph M. Daughtry, were held in Havana for about four hours before Cuban authorities permitted the National Air Lines' twin-engine Convair to return to the States.

Mrs. Daughtry said her husband phoned her Monday night after the plane returned to Key West — its original destination when it left Marathon, Fla., Monday afternoon on a routine hop of some 45-50 miles.

"He said one man held a gun on the pilot and forced him to fly to Havana," Mrs. Daughtry said. "They were kept in Cuba for four hours."

Cuban authorities interrogated the crew but Daughtry said he was not questioned, Mrs. Daughtry related.

The most harrowing part of the ordeal for Daughtry came when the hijacked plane moved within firing range of Fidel Castro's quick-on-the-trigger ground forces.

Daughtry was apprehensive

Khrushchev Blocking Laos Truce, U.S. Says; Action in U.N. Weighed

Viet Nam's Arms Aid Stepped Up

By E. W. KENWORTHY

WASHINGTON — The Kennedy administration is seriously considering asking the United Nations to establish a "presence" in Laos after a call for a cease-fire, informed diplomat sources said Monday.

These sources said the administration had not made a decision on taking the Laos problem to the United Nations, but they expected the decision would come soon.

According to authoritative sources, the question of bringing the Laotian problem to the United Nations was discussed at the White House meeting that President John F. Kennedy called late Sunday afternoon after he cut short his weekend in the country and returned to Washington.

It was understood that the question was discussed again Monday afternoon in the expanded National Security Council meeting.

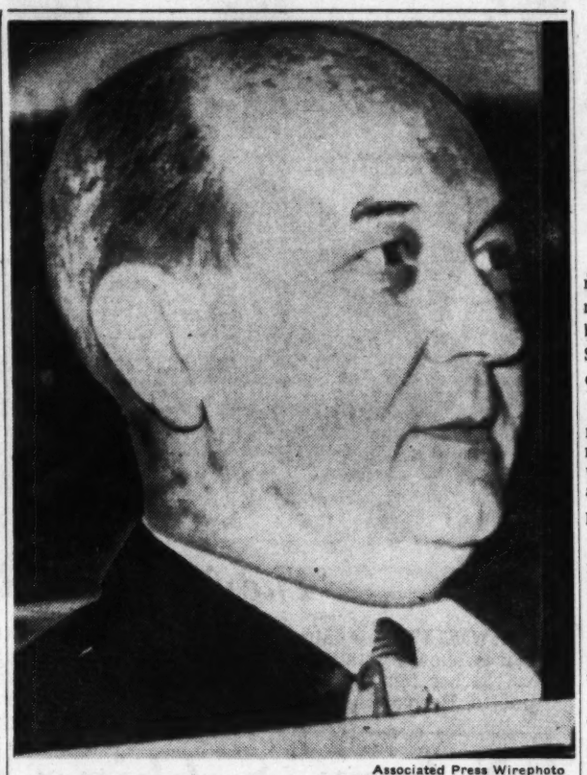

Monday's council meeting was held as officials disclosed the United States has stepped up military aid to South Viet Nam, next door neighbor to Laos.

After the Monday meeting Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary would say only that the discussions had dealt with the developments in Southeast Asia. He said another expanded session of the NSC would be held at 4 p.m. Tuesday.

These are the factors that, sources here say, have been impelling the administration towards submission of the Laotian problem to the U.N.:

—The Communist-led Pathet Lao forces have been delaying negotiations with the royal Lao government on strictly military arrangements for a cease-fire. Meanwhile, the Communist-led insurgents have continued to move for-

SECRETARY OF STATE LEAVES WHITE HOUSE
Dean Rusk Drives Away from Long Conference With President

No Plan to Invade Cuba, Rusk Asserts

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk told senators Monday the United States has no plans whatsoever for armed intervention in Cuba.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said Rusk made it equally clear, however, that if Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro commits aggression, like an attack on the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, the United States "will defend itself."

Rusk was interrogated for three hours at a closed-door session of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on Latin American affairs, of which Morse is chairman.

"The secretary made it clear the United States has no plans to proceed with an American armed intervention in Cuba," Morse told newsmen.

"The secretary said that rumors and statements that the United States is planning, because of the bloody nose we suffered, further military intervention in Cuba, has no basis in fact whatsoever."

Morse said Rusk made a full, factual and "open breasted statement" in which he testified the ill-starred April 17 invasion was made by Cuban exiles on their own decision, "but they did have training, arms and financial assistance" from the U.S. government.

Asked about the role played by the State Department in the fiasco Morse said, "I'm satisfied it was a joint participant with the Defense Department, the CIA and the White House."

The inquiry will be resumed late Tuesday when Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, testifies before the full Foreign Relations Committee.

The subcommittee briefing started with the full support of Sens. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., Senate majority leader, and J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chair-

Harriman Finds Reds Intervened

By ARTHUR DOMMEN

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—U.S. roving ambassador Averell Harriman Monday placed the responsibility of a cease-fire in Laos on Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev.

After talks with leaders of the royal Laotian government, Harriman charged the Communists with intervening in Laos with men and equipment.

RIPS DELAY

He told newsmen the delay in implementing a cease-fire between the warring factions is "up to Mr. Khrushchev."

Harriman made his statements while the royal government and the Communist Pathet Lao rebels maneuvered back and forth over a meeting to discuss a cease-fire. As the fighting continued, both sides rejected the other's terms for negotiations.

OBSTACLE LOOMS

Another possible obstacle to ending the hostilities loomed on the basis of a report by Prince Nordoum Sihanouk of Cambodia that King Savang Vathana opposed a 14-nation conference to settle the crisis.

Royal Premier Prince Boun Oum told newsmen that government delegates carrying white flags had been fired on by rebel guerrillas as they sought to make contact with the Communist Pathet Lao.

Prince Sihanouk, a neutralist who has emerged as a leading mediator, indicated King Savang considered a 14-nation conference in Geneva would be a waste of time. The prince said the king told him in Luang Prabang that a new coalition government would be formed when parliament is convened on May 11, one day be-

Castro Proclaims Cuba A Red State, Bans Voting

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro Monday night declared Cuba a Socialist nation and said there would be no more elections.

The announcement, placing Cuba more firmly in the Soviet orbit, was greeted by thunderous applause from hundreds of thousands of Cubans massed in Havana's Civic Plaza for a May Day demonstration.

Russia pledges support of entire Red bloc to Cuba. Page 15.

Attacking the United States for its role in the recent abortive invasion against his regime, Castro said, "If Mr. Kennedy does not like socialism, we don't like imperialism, we don't like capitalism."

The expected announcement came at the climax of some 14 hours of continuous parading before Castro and other top figures of the revolution.

"We have as much right to complain about the existence of a capitalist, imperialist regime 90 miles from our coast as he (President Kennedy) has to com-

111 Negroes Pick Up Forms To Apply to White Schools

By BARBARA MILZ

A total of 111 Negro high school students picked up applications Monday to transfer to white Atlanta schools this fall.

Because of the large crowd of students at the Atlanta Board of Education offices during the afternoon, officials were forced to transfer activities to the aldermanic meeting room at City Hall. About 70 students were waiting in the hallway of the education office before the meeting room was pressed into service.

Dr. Rual W. Stephens, deputy school superintendent, supervised as students filled out receipts for transfer applications.

These applications will be filled out by parents or guardians, notarized, and returned to the principal of the student's school.

Tempers flared briefly when Jesse Hill, a Negro accompanying the students, refused to allow students to talk to news reporters and demanded that education officials withhold names of students receiving the application blanks.

Hill denied membership in any sponsoring group or organization and said, "the majority of parents asked me to come with them (the students.)"

Harry Boyte, executive director of the Greater Atlanta Council of Human Relations, an interracial agency, later said, "Hill is a member of our group."

Dr. John W. Letson, superintendent, agreed to withhold names until conferring with the school board president and board attorney.

He said, however, "It is a part of our policy to be open and above board with relation to this whole question."

Letson told Hill, Boyte, and E. E. Moore Jr., Negro attorney, "If you attempt to carry out any degree of secrecy in this matter,

Don't Feud Over Cuba, Ike Asks U.S.

By RUSSELL BAKER
(Copyright 1961 by the New York Times Co.)

GETTYSBURG, Pa.—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower pleaded Monday for the country to forego a "witch-hunting" investigation of the Cuban invasion failure.

"Don't go back and rake over the ashes," Eisenhower told newsmen here, "but see what we can do better in the future."

In a forceful plea for bipartisan national support for President John F. Kennedy, Eisenhower declared that the administration was now "preoccupied with the most important question in the world"—preventing establishment of a communist stronghold in this hemisphere.

DECLINES TO CRITICIZE

For this reason, Eisenhower indicated, he declined even to criticize the Kennedy administration's domestic politics at this time.

He disclosed that on the advice of the State department he had canceled plans for a visit to Japan later this year. The decision was made in view of rising tensions throughout the world, he said.

The trip had been planned in response to many invitations from Japanese after the former president's state visit there last year was canceled because of Tokyo street rioting.

Eisenhower's strongly non-partisan attitude Monday was doubly striking because of the political setting of his news conference. The Republican congressional leadership had made a pilgrimage to his retirement home in Gettysburg to breakfast with him, to discuss politics and diplomacy.

After the meetings, the Republicans had scheduled a performance of their "Ev and Charlie show," a televised news conference starring their congressional leaders, Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen of Illinois and Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana.

Dirksen and Halleck came on first with verbal slings and arrows for the administration. Dirksen called the Kennedy program a melange of "deficit spending, controls, welfare statism" that might have been "hot stuff about a generation ago" but was generating little enthusiasm nowadays.

"The so-called Kennedy program has so far laid a big egg," Halleck said, in spite of an astonishing "verbal output."

Eisenhower, however, seemed only remotely concerned with politics Monday. He expressed the most feeling in response to a question of whether the public was entitled to a post-morten on Cuba.

SUPPLIED REFUGEES

He recalled that during his presidency, his administration started giving "some training and equipment" to Cuban refugees, but had not gone into planning because there was no effective refugee leadership to deal with.

"I think the U.S. stands firmly behind the President in his effort to prevent the solidifying of a Communist stronghold" in this hemisphere, he said.

3 Generals Are Hunted In Algiers

ALGIERS (UPI)—Heavily-armed gendarmes struck out Monday in a search for hidden arms and fugitive extremist leaders.

Main search targets were the sprawling Algiers University building and the headquarters of the Students Organization.

Earlier, the gendarmerie combed offices of the delegation-general, the headquarters of the combined armed forces, the Hotel St. Georges, police headquarters and the mayor's office.

WEAPONS SOUGHT

The gendarmes, acting under orders from President Charles de Gaulle, were seeking to recover some of the thousands of weapons handed out to rightwing civilian extremists during the four-day army mutiny that collapsed early Wednesday.

Also being sought were fugitive ex-generals Raoul Salan, Andre Zeller and Edmond Jouhaud. The fourth general to lead the rising, Maurice Challe, already was in jail in Paris.

FRENCH OFFICER SLAIN

Algiers University, center of the January 1960 barricades revolt against President Charles de Gaulle, was a stronghold of settler leader Pierre Lagaillarde. Lagaillarde also was being sought.

Two new terrorist outbreaks were reported from Oran. A French army lieutenant was shot and killed by a Moslem gunman he surprised while on patrol in a Moslem section.

Last night five persons were injured, one seriously, when a grenade was thrown into a cafe frequented by Europeans and Moslems.

Kennedy's Slump Area Bill Is Law

President Signs $451 Million Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy signed the $451 million depressed areas bill Monday and called it an important step toward putting thousands of jobless men and women back to work.

Kennedy immediately appointed William Batt Jr., veteran Labor expert and now Pennsylvania labor commissioner, to administer the program under Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges.

(The Cedartown-Rockmart area of Georgia is one of the substantial and persistent labor surplus areas listed for aid. The area includes Paulding and Polk counties.)

Major features of the program:

Urban plant loans—$100 million. Community or regional development agencies may borrow up to 65 per cent of the cost of clearing land, building plants and — in special cases—providing equipment and machinery to attract new plants.

Rural plant loans—$100 million. Same provisions as urban loans, except keyed to rural areas.

Public facility loans—$100 million. Urban and rural areas may borrow up to 10 per cent of the cost of improving industrial water supplies, sewer connections, railroad spurs and similar projects.

Public facility grants — $75 million. Same as loans except money will not have to be paid back.

Technical assistance grants — $4.5 million a year. Will help local groups hire planning talent to draft their programs.

Occupational retraining — $4.5 million a year. Will finance state and local retraining classes to help unemployed workers and farmers learn a new trade.

Retraining subsistence payments—$1 million a year. States can use this to pay weekly checks to unemployed workers while they are attending retraining classes.

Alleghany Fight Awaits Long Tally

Since last September the Texans have conducted a bitter proxy contest in an effort to unseat Kirby as chairman of Alleghany. The company controls the $3,700,000,000 Minneapolis investment company complex, Investors Diversified Services, Inc., and the $2,500,000,000 New York Central Railroad.

U.N. Army Backs Off In Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—U.N. forces gave up another Congo outpost Monday when they flew out survivors of the Ghana U.N. garrison from Port Franqui, captured by Congolese army troops last weekend.

A U.N. spokesman in Leopoldville said U.N. forces suffered many casualties in the fighting at Port Franqui. He reported three Ghanaian privates were killed and five officers—two Britons, two Swedes, and a Ghanaian — missing and presumed killed.

Fourteen Ghanaian U.N. soldiers were missing and believed to have been taken prisoner by the Congolese.

The United Nations said all 40 survivors of the U.N. garrison at Port Franqui, central Congolese town in Kasai Province, were being airlifted to Luluabourg.

Sobbing Spectator Yells at Eichmann

JERUSALEM (AP)—A tragic record of Nazi atrocities against Jews early in World War II unfolded Monday at Adolf Eichmann's trial. One courtroom spectator broke into a raging outburst against the former Gestapo officer.

A Fort Lee, N.J., mechanical engineer told of Jews used for target practice.

In the middle of a description of a Nazi deportation train, a spectator suddenly jumped to his feet and screamed: "Where is my family? Kill. Kill. Kill. Bloodhounds, bloodhounds."

Eichmann turned sharply in his seat behind sheets of bullet proof glass surrounding the prisoner's dock and watched as uniformed guards seized the witness and hurried him from the court.

Between sobs, he identified himself as Zvi Scheffer, of Tel Aviv. He said most of his family was wiped out by the Nazis.

Polish-born Leon Weliczker Wells, now living at Fort Lee, told of living as a teen-ager in a Nazi concentration camp where guards competed in a grim shooting match.

"Two SS officers started a competition to see how many nose tips or fingers they could hit by firing at Jews from a distance. In the evening, when the shooting was finished, they would hunt down those they had injured and give them the last shot."

Wells described his camp commander, an SS officer he identified as Fritz Gebauer, as a man who "enjoyed strangling people with his own hands."

In the midst of testimony which he admitted was a strain, Prosecutor Gideon Hausner submitted to the court two cables signed by Eichmann ordering the hanging of certain Jews in Poland.

The cables, both dispatched in 1942, ordered the execution of 11 Jews in a Polish concentration camp. They began: "The reichsfuehrer SS and chief of the German police (Heinrich Himmler) has ordered." They ended: "I demand a report on the execution of this order." They were signed "Adolf Eichmann" and "by order" in brackets.

BOY BELIEVED HITCH-HIKING

Bodies of 2 Girls Found; Search for Scout Pushed

HOLLAND, Mich. (UPI)—Police stepped up their hunt for a missing 16-year-old Boy Scout Monday after finding the bodies of two young girls shot to death while they were picking flowers in a hilly area near here.

The missing youth, James Scott Stephens, was named in a murder warrant Sunday—even before the bodies were found—on the basis of a note he left in his bedroom before disappearing from his home.

In the note to his mother, the boy only hinted he had killed anyone and said, "Mom, I'm sorry but it was an accident."

However, state police said one of the girls had been shot at least seven times and the other at least four times. They found a .22-caliber semi-automatic rifle, believed to have been the death weapon, in the attic of the Stephens home.

His bicycle was found abandoned near here and police believed he was trying to hitchhike to Arizona or New Mexico with only $10.05 he "borrowed" from his mother.

The bodies of the two girls, Carol Gee, 11, and Margaret Chambers, 12, were found covered with leaves in a brush area in the Macatawa Hills area, just across the Ottawa County line in Allegan County.

Searchers were led to the bodies by a handful of wild flowers and several expended .22-caliber rifle cartridges that had been found earlier.

The Gee girl's sweatshirt was twisted around the Chambers girl's neck as if it had been used to drag her to the spot where the body was found. Except for the sweatshirt, both girls were fully clad.

The girls had left their homes Saturday to pick flowers and Stephens had been reported target shooting in the area the same day.

His parents said he had been acting "queerly" since Saturday afternoon. He left home after breakfast Sunday.

The note turned over to police said: "Mom, I'm sorry but it was an accident. I tripped over a log and the gun went off a couple of times. I didn't mean to do it. When you read this I will be on my way to Arizona and New Mexico. Keep your chin up. I'll be back. Don't do anything rash. Your loving son, Jim."

The note also promised he would return the borrowed $10.05 "as soon as I get a job."

NEW YORK (AP)—Harper Lee's novel "To Kill a Mockingbird" has won the 1961 Pulitzer Prize for fiction.

The award for drama went to "All the Way Home" by Tad Mosel.

In the journalism field, the Pulitzer gold medal for meritorious public service went to the Amarillo, Tex., Globe-Times, for exposing a breakdown in local law enforcement with resultant reforms and official shakeups.

Lynn Heinzerling of The Associated Press, won the Pulitzer award for international reporting for his coverage of the early stages of the Congo crisis "under extraordinarily difficult conditions." He also was cited for "his keen analysis of events in other parts of Africa."

ANALYSIS PAYS OFF

The prize for national reporting went to Edward R. Cony of the Wall Street Journal for his analysis of timber dealings which drew attention to questions of business ethics.

The awards in journalism carry a $1,000 prize and those in arts and letters $500 each.

A special citation went to the American Heritage Picture History of the Civil War.

Reds Fail To Shake DeGaulle

PARIS (UPI)—Fifteen thousand Communists failed Monday in plans to spearhead a mass anti-De Gaulle May Day demonstration.

Only the Communists themselves showed up to sing the Internationale, wave the Red flag and clamor for "unity" in front of the Paris Labor Exchange.

The demonstration set a May Day record in Paris for its smallness.

This was a bitter blow to the Communist-led Confederation General du Travail. Trade union sources said it had hoped to spark a massive protest against the dictatorial emergency powers French President Charles de Gaulle assumed last week to cope with the military insurrection in Algeria.

The Communists did not like indications that De Gaulle would use his powers to cut out opposition on the left as well as on the right.

While the Communist faithful flocked to the labor exchange De Gaulle quietly called a Cabinet meeting.

The Cabinet discussed the systematic purge it is presently carrying out to eliminate opposition in the French army and in all state institutions.

Japanese To Ask for Okinawa

TOKYO (UPI)—The Mainichi Daily News reported Tuesday that Japanese Premier Hayato Ikeda will ask President John F. Kennedy to return Okinawa to Japanese control during their talks in Washington next month.

The newspaper said Okinawan authorities favor the move so that they can qualify for Japanese economic assistance. The legislature of the Ryukyuan Islands last month adopted a unanimous resolution urging restoration of the government to Japanese control.

The United States has occupied the 67 islands, including Okinawa, since World War II.

Alabama Voter-Data Order Upheld by Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Supreme Court Monday rebuffed the first state challenge to the right of federal investigators to obtain local voting records under the 1960 civil rights law.

Without commenting, the high tribunal left undisturbed a lower court decision ordering Alabama officials to give up records in two counties where there had been charges of discrimination against Negro voters.

Inspection of county records under the 1960 Civil Rights Act is a key part of the Justice department's campaign to help Negroes win the right to register in some southern communities. Monday's case centered on demands by federal investigators for the records in Wilcox and Montgomery counties.

Alabama State Atty. Gen. MacDonald Gallion brought suit in state court to prevent the United States from obtaining records in any of Alabama's 67 counties. Subsequently, federal district and appeals court rulings ordered the Wilcox and Montgomery records turned over to federal inspection in 15 days.

Gallion and the Montgomery County Registration Board protested that the 1960 law was unconstitutional because it "allows unreasonable searches and seizures, violates due process of law, denies the accused the right of confrontation, invades the powers reserved to the states or to the people and is not appropriate legislation under the 15th Amendment."

The appeal to the high court also argued that the state court was improperly sidetracked in the case.

The Justice department thus far has made 20 court requests for voting records but only eight have required mandatory court orders.

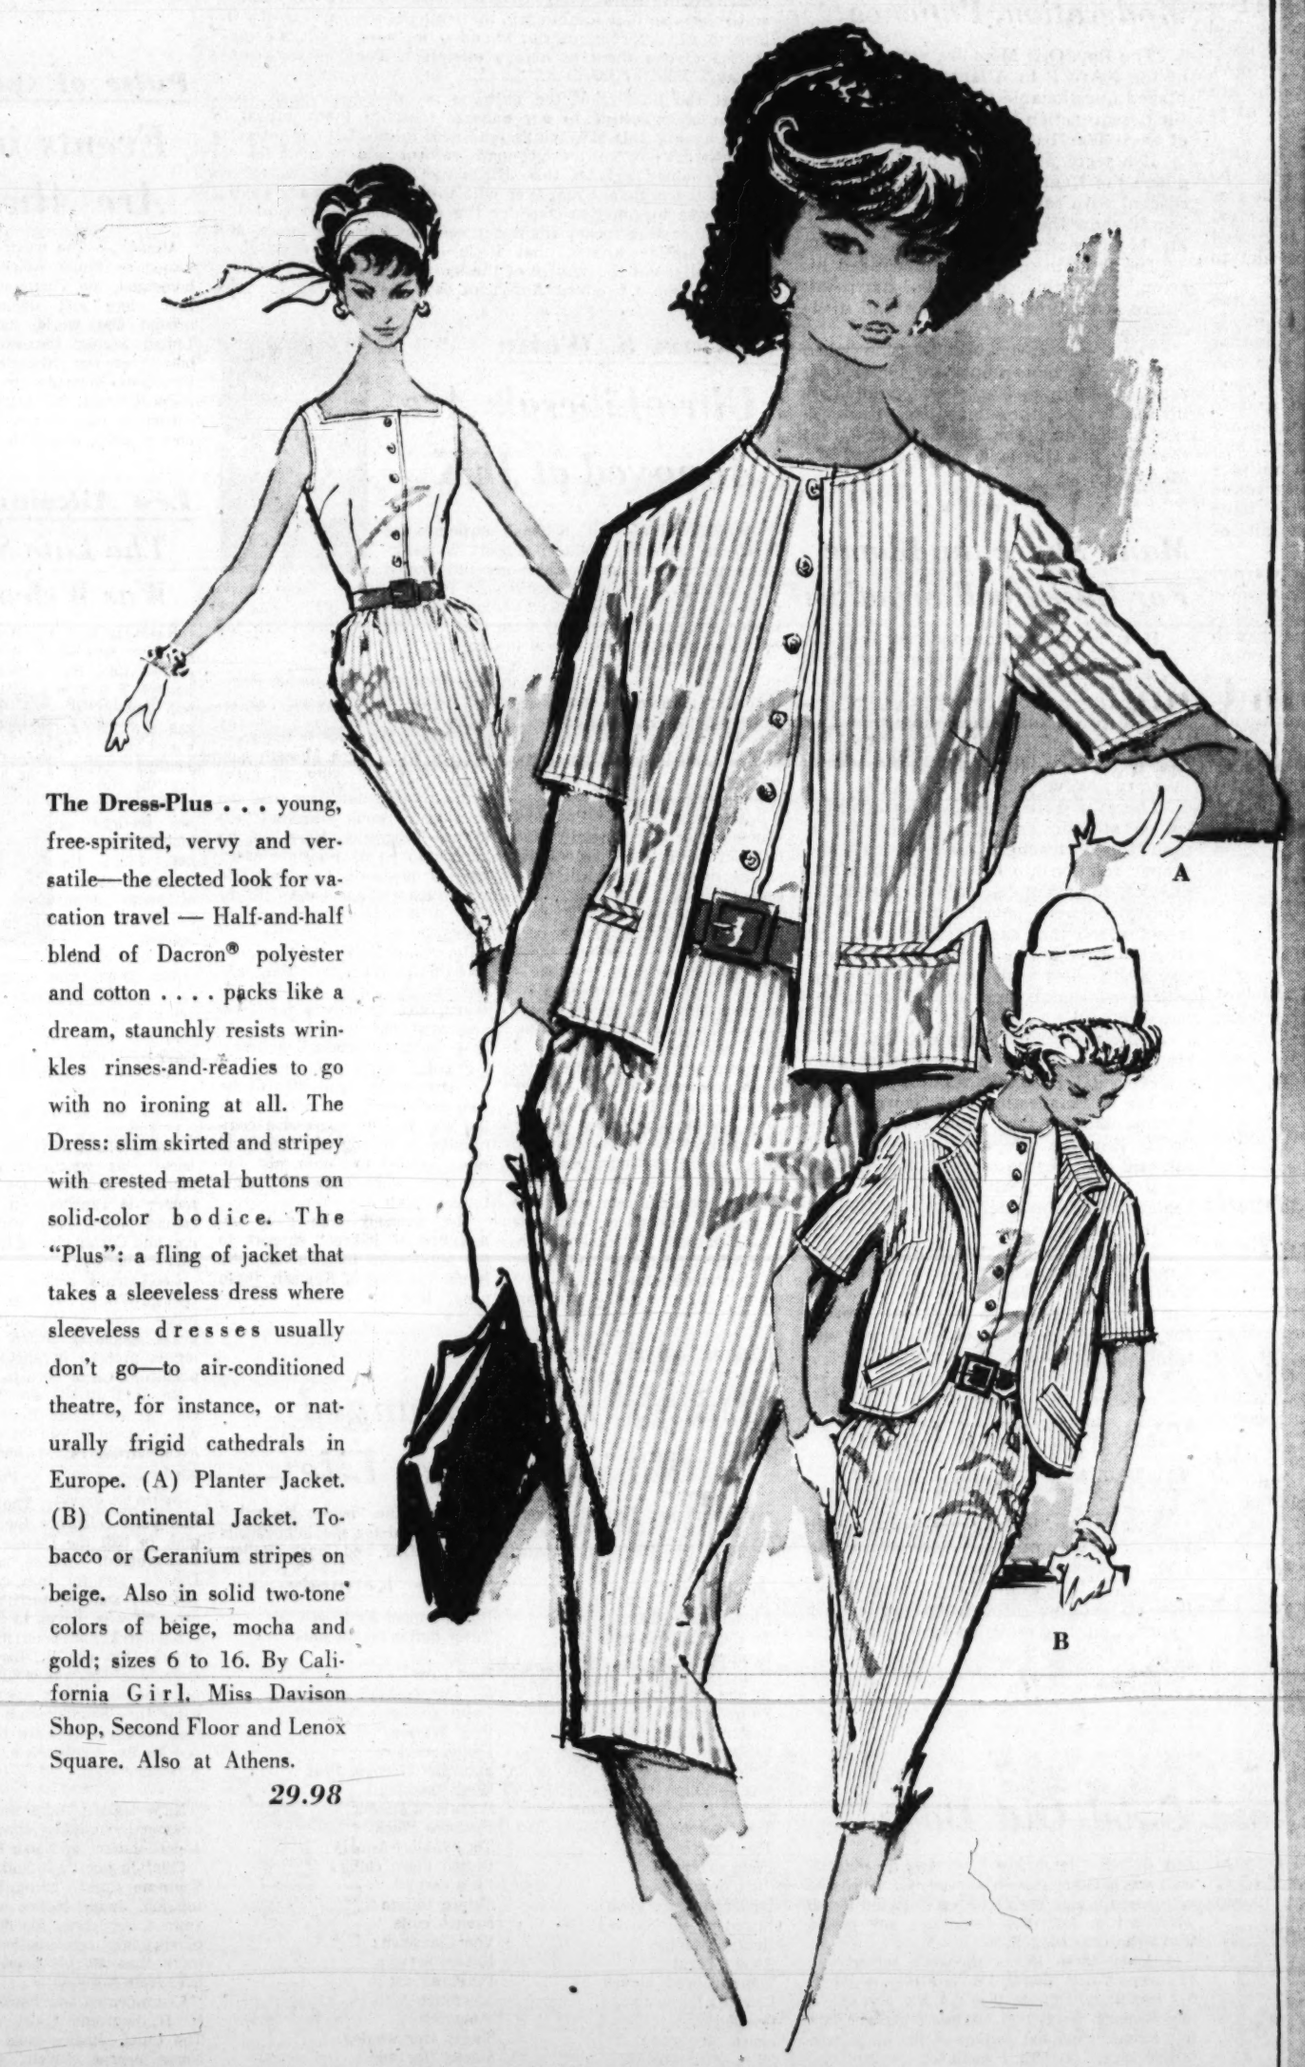

In other actions Monday, the Supreme Court:

1. Ordered further arguments next fall on the controversial issue of whether states are unfairly discriminating against city voters in apportioning state legislative districts. The test case involves Tennessee but the final decision will have impact in a number of states, including Georgia.

Today On Peachtree

first ladies . . . great ladies of fashion

The First Lady of the Land lives in an air-conditioned, 132-room mansion with a swimming pool, has a staff of superbly trained servants, and a fleet of limousines long enough to stretch from the White House to the end of Pennsylvania Avenue. This all sounds like milk and honey, but Mrs. President is a public figure, and she's news. What she eats, thinks, says, everything she does is properly recorded by the great American press, and interpreted by the American public, neither of which is always kind. She plays a rigorous role, and must often think she was elected President, not her husband. What the First Lady wears is discussed over thousands of tea cups and before-dinner martinis, and she can change the face of fashion almost as swiftly as a master stroke by Dior. We're all aware of the impact made by Jacqueline Kennedy's chic that sent designers flying back to their drawing boards even as the last float appeared in the Inaugural parade.

And who will ever forget Eleanor Blue, the favorite color of Anna Eleanor Roosevelt? Mami Pink and bangs still abound, and will probably go on forever. We also discovered with a little research that, although President Calvin Coolidge kept a keen Vermonter's eye on the White House menus, he liked to buy his wife's clothes and did so with a lavish hand. Going 'way back we read that Martha Washington wore her mobcap to all social functions; Elizabeth Monroe shocked society because she wore rouge, but soon rouge became the rage. America's First Ladies are often Great Ladies of Fashion. With this in mind, and mother in our heart, this week, Davison's and Evyan Perfumes will launch an Historic Exhibit of magnificent replicas of Inaugural Gowns worn by Mary Todd Lincoln to Jacqueline Kennedy, a dramatic memorable tribute to your Great Lady, your mother. The glittering collection is named in honor of a beautiful perfume, Evyan's Great Lady, and there's a complimentary bottle of it for you in our Street Floor Beauty Spot.

Today at luncheon, Georgia's Great Lady, Mrs. Ernest Vandiver, will open the exhibit with a fashion showing at 12:30 p.m. in Davison's Sixth Floor Terrace Restaurant. Incidentally, Mrs. Vandiver favors pastels, the ease and elegance of casual clothes. Beginning Thursday, you'll see these gowns of grandeur that once swept down the palatial White House stairway, and went dancing at America's most celebrated social occasion, the Inaugural Ball, in our Peachtree Windows and on our Street Floor. It's worth a trip to town, even if you live as far away as Savannah.

Reds Talk Peace And Threaten War

President Kennedy's first 100 days in the White House have been more trying than even he could have anticipated. But in his inaugural address he warned of greater disappointments, that things would get worse before they get better.

Yesterday brought the annual May Day celebrations by Communists throughout the world. There were more than the usual diatribes against the United States and the free world, threats and boasts. And for the first time within 90 miles of the American coast, a neighboring nation, Cuba, openly joined the Communist camp in a celebration which could not have been lost on all Latin American nations who want to remain free.

That the United States celebrated Law Day, urging international rule of law, did not erase the fact that aggressive communism pushes forward on all fronts, calling for counter-measures with the full backing, regardless of sacrifice, of all free peoples.

Failure of the ill-planned and executed "invasion" of Cuba leaves the United States facing the gravest danger to this hemisphere in a century. The real threat is use of the Cuban base to spread subversion in all Latin America and to export anti-American hate.

In Laos it may be too late to save the day unless the United States and her allies are willing to engage in another lengthy and indecisive limited war and possibly to touch off a major international conflict. The decisions as to what risks to take are being made now in consultations within the National Security Council and with the nation's diplomatic and military leaders. They must be based upon a realization that the Communists have launched an offensive against all of Southeast Asia.

Former President Eisenhower warned yesterday that recriminations about what happened in Cuba will solve nothing, that the country must unite behind policies to overcome this failure and to prevent Communist erosion elsewhere.

President Kennedy has outlined a blueprint for meeting the worldwide threat that calls for work, support and sacrifice by all Americans and all free people. It is the only alternative to defeat or nuclear destruction of the world.

Congress Should Extend Temporary Gasoline Tax

Although there are valid arguments against the general practice of keeping "temporary" taxes in effect until they become cloaked with permanence, the House Ways and Means Committee is justified in approving extension of the penny-per-gallon hike in gasoline taxes.

Congress should follow suit.

Otherwise, the pay-as-you-go federal superhighway program, which should be finished as soon as possible, would drag along for years beyond the target date for completion.

Probability of the extra tax being extended beyond its original deadline of July 1 has brought anticipated yelps of anguish from the petroleum industry.

But all who have a stake in benefits to be derived from completion of the 41,000-mile network—and that includes the average motorist and the trucking industry—might as well accept the fact that users of the roads are the logical ones to pick up the tab. Trucks with their heavy loads cause great damage to highways and the industry should pay accordingly.

Another thing Congress should do is to approve President Kennedy's proposal, unjustly rejected by the House Ways and Means Committee, to increase the tax on diesel fuel, used by trucks, from 4 to 7 cents a gallon.

Anyone who has inhaled exhaust from the smelly stuff for miles and miles - and what motorist hasn't—should demand that Congress make the diesel fuel burners pay much more than they are for the privilege of stinking up the roadways.

NAACP Wrong About Moderation, Patience

The Rev. Otis Moss Jr., vice president of the NAACP in Atlanta, certainly displayed questionable wisdom in discussing the desegregation of schools here in terms of Civil War battles.

If a segregationist had used such language the Negro community would have reacted with revulsion. And rightly so. It should show the same dismay at the Rev. Mr. Moss' choice of words.

The Atlanta minister compounded his error with this incredible statement: "there is no time for patience and moderation."

There has never been a time when patience was more important to the citizens of Atlanta—Negro and white. As for moderation, the alternatives are inaction or reaction. The Negroes don't want that. We can't believe that the Rev. Mr. Moss does.

Many Share the Blame For Basketball Scandals

It is as wrong to condemn just the young men involved in the basketball gambling scandals as it is wrong to overlook and excuse their crime.

The truth is that much more than just a few young athletes is involved. The entire concept of "big-time" college athletics is involved.

There will be gambling scandals in college athletics as long as colleges fail in their job of teaching their students the proper relationship between football and physics, for example, basketball and literature, between sport and spectacle. It is not a job that can be done solely by athletic directors and coaches. The responsibility lies with boards of trustees, college presidents and alumni organizations as well.

Criticism of college athletics by editorial writers and by scholars is often misunderstood. (It is often improper, too.) We are not suggesting that Georgia Tech become Emory, that Ohio State become Johns Hopkins. We are suggesting that athletic excesses be stopped. Sports Editor Jesse Outlar, whose love of college athletics can't be questioned, said it better than we can:

". . . colleges in general and win-at-any-price coaches and alumni zealots in particular can't plead innocent. . . . You can't really censure a boy too severely for selling out to a crook if he was originally purchased by a college."

Bring Back Those Good Old Days

I had to get up early Saturday in order to be first in line to rent a gasoline-powered tiller. We're planting grass in my backyard. It was late in the morning before I got around to reading the paper.

Inevitably my eye was drawn to the Pickrick ad. Lester was in his usual form. Bad. One of his topics was communism and anti-communism. He said the original criticism of the John Birch Society was in a Communist publication. (It wasn't.) He implied that, therefore, anybody who criticizes the society may very well be a Communist, too.

That bothered me. I've criticized the society. "I'm no Communist," I thought. Then, looking at the turned-up red clay in my backyard, the black peat moss, the little sack of bermuda seed, the sacks of fertilizer, I thought, "an agrarian reformer, maybe, but no Communist."

It was starting out to be a melancholy weekend. Only the day before I had read an editorial in a small Georgia town's paper in which the editor was urging people to report to the House Un-American Activities Committee any people who were criticizing it.

I know these things shouldn't bother me. If I were a true liberal, I'm sure they wouldn't. My trouble is, I guess, that I'm just a reactionary at heart. I was born 100 years too late, like my colleague on the bottom of the other side of this page. Like him, I yearn for simpler days. Like him, I miss the old time verities and standards.

I long for the days when political candidates admitted it and you read about a man's fried chicken in one place and his opinions in another. I long for the days when small town editors though it was their duty to harass congressmen on behalf of the public, instead of the other way around.

Most of all I long for the days when a gentleman could hire somebody else to plant grass for him for about a dollar a day.

I'll bet Pickrick never read that in a Communist publication.—TED LIPPMAN.

This Man Shows How to Sacrifice

CAPE CANAVERAL—One young man will now symbolize here what Americans must do. For his nation, he will deliberately lie down on the nose of a rocket, bare his being to eternity and take what comes, because he has the courage to help his nation come back.

That symbol is more important at this moment—no matter how this launch goes—than all the hardware and arithmetic of this primitive rocket. Russia's orbital man-flight has already far surpassed the rudimentary achievement sought here.

Yet this man accepts an undiminished danger for a far diminished stake. He readily offers his supreme gift—not his taxes, or his prejudices, or his profits, but his life—without hope now of more than second place to Yuri Gagarin. It is not at all what he wanted.

But he is not holding back simply because he can't have things on his own terms. He is doing what he can now to bring this nation from behind, regardless of the cost, regardless of the peril to himself.

He must depend on the rest of us to do the same thing even when it hurts, even when the immediate result disappoints us, or else his ordeal is a useless sacrifice. The question he lays upon us now is whether we are worthy of him.

President Kennedy has asked Americans to sacrifice. Many have paused in their comfortable routine of settled social belief, hardened political position, obvious drive for business advantage, or heedless wage-seeking, and asked, "What does he mean?"

Well, the astronaut will now show what the President means. The symbol is made intensely dramatic for the very reason that it requires the ultimate of sacrifice for a disappointing return at best. But in it lies the hope and the unshakeable expectation that coming days and continuing courage will bring America back above the cresting tide of communism and turn it, with new policies replacing the old ones that didn't work.

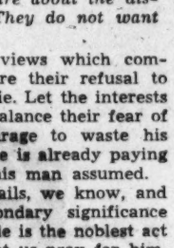

Secretary Rusk has asked us to make a gleaming society in America so that he may hold it up to the world as freedom's aspiration, and in foreign affairs a public opinion not frozen to the status quo, but attuned to the need for change and reform so that the hungry, the landless, the oppressed, will look to us, not communism, knowing we care about the distressed among them as among ourselves. They do not want Batista's kind of freedom.

Let the holders of the extreme racial views which communism is exploiting to our damage measure their refusal to change against this astronaut's readiness to die. Let the interests that mistrust political and economic reform balance their fear of wasting money against this astronaut's courage to waste his life. Let the reluctant taxpayer who thinks he is already paying all he owes to America consider the debt this man assumed.

Whether this rocket flight succeeds or fails, we know, and the man inside knows, that it is of secondary significance scientifically; but the symbol of the man inside is the noblest act of hope of these troubled American days. Let us pray for him.

Ultra-Liberals Are Annoyed at JFK

WASHINGTON—The national structure of President Kennedy's political support is undergoing underground shifts which are little noted now but may have great significance for the future. These movements are like small earthquakes below the surface of politics. As one section of voters moves away from the President, another which had heretofore opposed him moves toward him.

Speaking generally, it is ultra-liberals who are leaving him and it is the moderately conservative with whom he is gaining in favor.

It is hardly debatable that his present total backing, taking the country as a whole, is greater than on election day.

But to say that the President stands higher now generally than last November is not necessarily to say that his gains will overcome his losses.

It will not automatically profit him to pick up additional support in other areas—whether these were won or lost areas last time—if this is to be accompanied by decisive losses in key electoral states like New York, Pennsylvania and Michigan. In such a circumstance, it might not do him much good even to gain smaller states actually lost before.

As the President gains among the moderately conservative and loses among the ultra-liberals—with whom he is taking a great risk by insisting upon running a responsible presidency—this is clear: The tone of his administration will come closer and closer to the moderately conservative group and move farther and farther from the ultra-liberal group.

This, indeed, is what has already been occurring. One by one the ultra-liberal factions are becoming annoyed with the President. The civil rights extremists are extremely unhappy that the President won't demand extremist programs. Moreover, he intends to go on resisting every kind of pressure, including this one, which would unnecessarily divide a country in rising peril from abroad.

His relationship with the labor extremists is similar. They are increasingly angry with him for asking tax incentives for business and for rejecting various New Dealish spending schemes.

Finally, there are those who are emotionally committed to the well-intentioned proposition that the way to stop aggressive communism is to concede more and more ground to Communist imperialism while endlessly "negotiating" with it.

The Kennedy who gave unashamed if indirect support to the anti-Castro invasion of Cuba is not the kind of Kennedy these people like.

Events in Cuba Show That Democracies Are Always Caught Unprepared, He Says

Atlanta — The unsuccessful invasion by Cuban rebels on their homeland, the Communist organized riots and demonstrations around the world against the United States, the exchange of notes between Khrushchev and President Kennedy, the lack of support from the biggest Latin American countries to us in an hour of peril, should finally awaken the American people to the dangers of Soviet motives in their dealings with our country.

Military might seems to be the only factor in keeping peace and preventing Russia from swallowing the rest of the world.

Our prestige may have suffered greatly, our nation may appear weak and hesitant to the eyes of the world and Kennedy has indirectly admitted both. If we are able to derive a lesson from these events, it is again that democracies are always caught unprepared, with too little and too late and not willing to make the sacrifices.

Cuba is not lost and could be saved from Castro and communism. We have reached a turning point in our relations with Latin America and the sooner we formulate more solidarity with them, the better for all of them and us.

White a Conservative, He Reminds Readers

Atlanta — It is absurd for Blanche McMorris, and other conservatives — as in letters in The Constitution—to accuse its editors, and those of The Journal, of not publishing the conservative viewpoint. For years both these papers have printed the columns of William S. White and David Lawrence, who are two of the outstanding truly conservative writers of this country. Also, I resent those other letter-writers who refer to Ralph McGill and Eugene Patterson in the same type of language used by that master of gutter-speech, Fidel Castro.

The Late Snow Was Welcome

BISMARCK, N.D.—West of Fargo there was snow. It had come in late April, four inches, wet and heavy. Some still lay in zigzag patterns northwest to southeast following the furrows in the rectangular sections of black land below, like the jagged streaks of "snow" on the television screen.

In the North Dakota capital (pop. 27,000) the weight of the snow sheared the bolts on a canopy at a downtown shop. The canopy had been built to carry an eight-ton load.

On Monday, April 24, Bismarck police investigated three calls involving boys throwing snowballs.

"M" FOR MOISTURE: The wet snow was welcome. It meant moisture and moisture means money to ranchers on the high, rolling plains, from which Sheridan and Custer chased the Indians and the buffalo.

Good grass makes fat cattle. George Rogler of Mandan, five miles west of Bismarck, is a grass specialist. When the grazing is greener in another man's pasture, George goes to see why.

He went all the way to Tifton, Ga., to see Glenn Burton, under whose green thumb famous grass Follo strains have been developed.

PRINCE OTTO: The Dakotas this year celebrate their centennial. In 1861 the Dakota territory was created. Yankton, in South Dakota, was the first capital. In 1883 the seat of territorial government was moved to Bismarck.

Bismarck had been named for Prince Otto von B., the German statesman who was welding proud principalities into a nation at the same time Scandinavian and German immigrants were building a sod-shanty civilization in the American West.

NEW DEAL: Right now a commission is studying legislative reapportionment in North Dakota.

Chief Justice P. O. Sathre, N. D. Supreme Court, is on the commission. Judge Sathre looked up from a legal brief for 10 minutes of sprightly conversation. He is more than 80, his parents came over from Norway.

I commented how handsome the N. D. Supreme Court chamber. The Chief Justice said with a Norse brogue, "Well, it's more handsome when the judges are not in it."

The judge is getting much advice on reapportionment, he said. "Some of it the worst kind."

He told about the Swede and Irishman on a bender with the Irishman the more drunk and taken into custody.

Later the Irishman told the Swede, "That cop called me an Irish blankety blank."

"Yah," said the Swede, "and they're the worst kind."

Democrats Can't Shift the Blame

By this time a great many of the details of the Cuban fiasco have been made public; and the American people are well within their rights in asking, "Who is responsible for this blunder?" American foreign policy has produced some notable failures in the past 30 years. Until now these mistakes have borne their fruit in remote foreign lands—in Southeast Asia, on the continent of Europe, in the Middle East or Africa. But all of these lands are separated from our homeland by sufficient distance to dull any implication of urgency or immediate contingent penalties.

Cuba being only 90 miles from our mainland presents quite a different situation. The American citizen, generally preoccupied with the task of earning a living and feeling a first responsibility to his family, can with some justification ignore the implications of the establishment of a Communist dominated government in Laos. But no American can be unaware of the deadly serious situation resulting from the establishment of a Communist-dominated government on the island of Cuba.

The President's actions following the counter-revolutionary attempt to depose Castro indicate that he is acutely aware of the seriousness of the situation.

In all the public statements and press coverage following in the wake of the Cuban defeat, I have detected only one sour note, and this was the attempt of Mr. Kennedy's Secretary of the Interior to blame the failure of the Cuban revolution on former President Dwight Eisenhower and former Vice President Dick Nixon.

Does Mr. Udall think the American public is so naive or unaware as to believe that Eisenhower and Nixon should be held accountable for an action taken by the Kennedy administration after it has been in power for more than three months?

Is this to be the alibi of the Kennedy administration whenever it makes a failure?

Mr. Udall is a confirmed political liberal. He has been described in the Christian Science Monitor as the most effective politician of the Kennedy administration. His every action since taking office indicates that he believes "to the victor belong the spoils." Now we find him attempting to thrust responsibility for a notable failure on an administration which has been out of office for more than three months.

President Eisenhower left the Kennedy administration a balanced budget. The new team, however, did not feel committed to maintain that budget in balance.

Mr. Eisenhower, after much sad experience, had rejected the notion that personal diplomacy and soft talk could achieve an accommodation with Soviet Russia. The new Kennedy team felt no obligation to continue this policy.

President Eisenhower and his Secretary of Agriculture had been trying valiantly to reduce governmental interference in the lives of the farmers. The Kennedy administration has done an about face and is increasing governmental controls and governmental subsidies.

It is difficult for me to believe that President Kennedy would be a party to such a weasel attempt to avoid responsibility for whatever part our government played in the Cuban fiasco. It is equally difficult for me to believe that Mr. Udall would have offered his weak and unacceptable alibi, that he would have made such a reach in his attempt to avoid responsibility, without first consulting the boss.

She Didn't Have Enough Money To Pay for the 'For Sale' Sign

I guess what the lady said about the sign was what got to me the most. What she said was, "It was so embarrassing. I went in, picked up the 'For Sale' sign, and then found that I didn't have enough money to pay for it. The cost was 56 cents." This suburban housewife was wearing a $900 diamond ring on her third finger, left hand, driving a $3,400 ranch wagon, and wanted the sign to put in front of a $24,000 home. But she didn't have the 56 cents cash.

How many like this suffer the same sensation in suburbia?

How many junior executives, white collar workers, salesmen or any others foolish enough to overextend themselves?

Developers continue laying out the dream divisions and boobs keep buying them. The carpeting, the piped-in music, the two and one-half baths. The temptation is too great.

"Cheaper than paying rent," the caught couples rationalize. Then they figure the corners they can cut. "If I don't eat lunch downtown . . ." the husband says. "And if I do my own hair at home . . ." replies the wife and together they add, "We can make the $132.50 per month payments."

Forgotten are the taxes and insurance; forgotten are the payments on cars (two, of course); forgotten are the payments on the washer, the dryer, the eye-level oven, the furniture and, naturally, the one on the lawn mower and whatever else you can get on credit. Forgotten, too, are the bills of the doctors, the dentists, and that other great humanitarian who administers a dire need, the television repairman. (We'll have to take it in to the shop.)

And two more major items, one about as seemingly important in suburbia as the other: Groceries and liquor, but not necessarily in that order.

There is no telling the actual cost of well-burned steaks. To cook out one uses: A $25 electric-turning grill, a $7.10 fifth of scotch, a $4.80 case of beer, four $2.50 steaks (because by now you're into the scotch and have invited somebody else over), a 90-cent bag of charcoal and a 45-cent can of fire starter.

This is high living. But the cost is even higher.

And the husband does eat lunch downtown and doesn't transportation run up; the wife is getting her hair bleached at $10 a bottle at the beautyshop, but by golly, she is blonde. The kids break arms, legs, teeth and television sets.

The $132.50 is hard to come by. The taxes are due. The creditors begin their second round of calls. "I thought you said you were going to send us a check . . . you are . . . by the first . . . we'll be looking for it."

The decision is made. A dreaded one it is. "We'll sell. Get our equity out. Pay up our bills. Move into a more modest place. Really, who needs carpets wall-to-wall? And that music day after day is murder anyway."

It seems sad. And it is. But there is nothing else to do but go get the "For Sale" sign. The lucky ones have the 56 cents.

Part 1: How To Experience The True Splendor of God

All the roads in the Bible eventually lead to God. Whether one starts reading on the high plateau of mature virtues or in the low valleys of human weakness, the path leads on to one central depot: God's splendor in His nature and in His activity. His splendor is experienced through seeing eyes that can behold His beauty.

Whatever else one thinks about God, never let him impute ugliness to God's nature or to His creation. True beauty is elevated above the sordid, vulgar, and profane. A few moments taken out of this feverish jig of living to see God's handwriting across the firmament would open our eyes anew to resplendent beauty.

The Genesis account of the creation states that God beheld all that He had made and saw that it was good, a goodness akin to beauty. Moreover, it states that "all things were good"—not just the saffron showers of crepe myrtles or the pastel radiance of sunsets but a goodness in beauty among the less colorful. A daub of mud under a microscope may reveal many of the properties of the universe.

Nothing would add more lustre to our lives than the art of practicing a consciousness of God's beauty. We should look for the beautiful not only in nature but also in people because such a conscious, deliberate search would reveal many a garden of personalities which otherwise appears as weeds.

Orientals have a proverb which states, "If you have a dollar spend fifty cents for a loaf of bread and fifty cents for a hyacinth." That is the right sense of value: part for the stomach; part for the soul. The tragedy of our day is that we insist on ninety-eight cents for the stomach and two cents for the mind and soul.

An American sergeant learned this timely lesson when told that he was losing his eyesight. After spending most of his savings in a frantic effort to keep his sight, he finally resigned himself to the fact of eventual blindness. Then he said, "If I must lose my sight, then I will pack more seeing into these remaining six months than I have in the preceding thirty-one years."

So, he took time out to watch the sun go down; to observe the antics of playing kittens. He studied the laborious preoccupation of children with their toys. The pupils in the eyes of his wife seemed to sparkle as never before. Early in the mornings he thrilled as the day would break in rapturous brilliance like a splash of gold. Finally, when vision dimmed away he radiantly confessed, "I am content now, for my physical blindness gave eyes to my soul."

Why go through life as strangers of God's provisions of beauty of all around us? He made this earthly home a thing of beauty. But the beauty that defies description is promised in our heavenly home not made by human hands! One who comes to that place with no eyes for seeing and no sensitive soul for feeling would find even heaven a disappointment.

It Looks Like Nation's Capital Is Coming Down with Something

WASHINGTON—It's dangerous to make with the generalizations after being in Washington only a few hours but from the way things look at first blush, the nation's capital is coming down with something. I never saw so many temperish, fretful people in my life. If they were children and you could take them one at a time, any mother would start feeling foreheads and looking for spots. When I've been here longer I may get it doped out but at the moment in this lovely, spring-green, flower-fragrant seat of our government I'm one bewildered citizen.

To begin with, Washington looks so pretty that I always set foot in it feeling like the fourth grade and "America, the Beautiful." I put cricks in my neck looking for monuments and buildings and feel a proprietary interest in everything—the little boats kicking up a silver wake in the Potomac, the grand words on marble and bronze, even the young couples walking hand-in-hand in the parks.

I saw a sign which said, "Do not unload tourists here" and I nudged my neighbor on the bus and said delightedly, "Look, so many tourists they have signs about them. I bet this is one of the few cities in the world. . . ." "Humph," he grunted. "You must not have been abroad. Where you from, the South?"

I meekly admitted that I'm as provincial and untraveled as they come but added bravely, "We have lots of tourists and tourist attractions, though."

He wasn't listening. He was caught up in what the driver was saying about other drivers. And I can't quote that because it was profane.

If he hadn't been so burly and fierce-looking I would have marched up and given him a lecture about watching his language in the presence of ladies.

Somehow, I expected the hotel to seem warm and hospitable and restore the sheen to my arrival in Washington. But as I stood in line I heard the man back of the desk rival the bus driver in his choice of language.

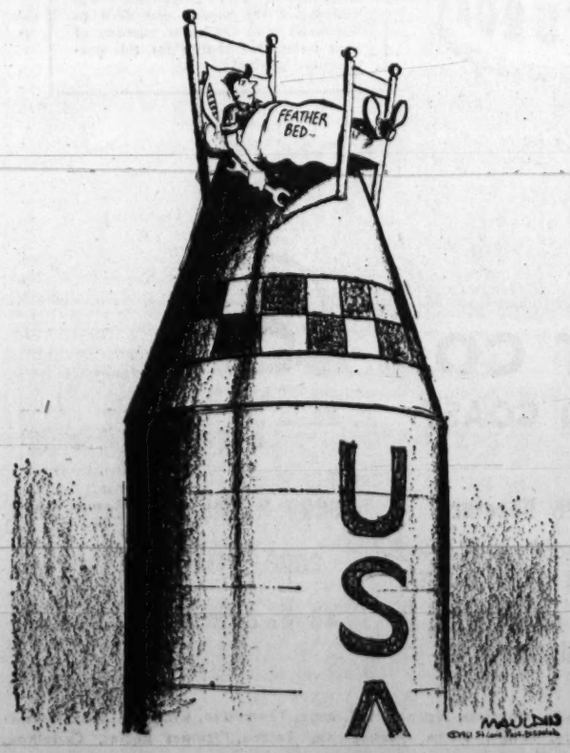

He snapped at his subordinates in front of the guests and glanced over and through us as if we were a barnyard full of cattle, congregated for the express purpose of giving him trouble.

While I waited and watched him the man who had sat next to me on the bus weasled in from the side and got ahead of me, although I had been there first. I was aghast at his effrontery and I glanced about me to see if anybody shared my shock. Those who saw averted their eyes indifferently.

The elevator was slow and somewhere up the shaft someone leaned on the button, setting up a maddening whine. "I'd skip that blankety-blank," a woman passenger advised the operator venomously.

"Is everybody in Washington in a bad humor?" I asked the bellboy, as I tipped him.

He shrugged. "I don't know. Some nice people everywhere, some so-and-so's." He looked at his tip and added, "I get the so-and-so's."

Bob Kennedy to Chart Rights Course at Athens

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy plans a major pronouncement on civil rights when he travels to Athens Saturday to speak at the Universtiy of Georgia, informed sources said Monday.

These sources said Kennedy deliberately chose the forum of a law week observance for a civil rights speech to point up the administration's determination to use personal influence and moral persuasion in fighting racial discrimination.

The President's brother recently has told numerous groups and individuals he believed great strides could be made in ending voter discrimination and school segregation under existing laws.

The attorney general has indicated, for example, that the administration has no plans to ask Congress to give him power to file desegregation suits.

But he intends to continue his vigorous behind-the-scenes activities to end racial discrimination in public schools in Louisiana and elsewhere.

When such attempts fail, the Justice department will intervene as an active partner of the courts in enforcing court orders.

The Justice department has considerable power under the Civil Rights Act, passed in 1957 and amended in 1960, to inspect voter registration records and sue on behalf of disinfranchised Negroes.

HEALTH: Always Tired? It's Psychological

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Could you describe the condition neurasthenia, (chronic fatigue)? Is it a disease, mental or physical, and can anything be done for it?—Mrs. C. L.

Neurasthenia is a psychological disorder. It is not a mental illness in the sense in which we use that term. Although we must agree that a psychological disturbance is more mental than physical, there's a world of difference between mental illness and this sort of problem.

Neurasthenia, while it is psychological rather than physical in orgin, has various physical aspects. (Incidentally, "emotional instability" seems to be a current term being used for neurasthenia.)

The emotional development of a person with neurasthenia has somewhere along the way been warped. Among many possible causes are neglect, disappointment or even cruelty.

Neurasthenia sufferers tend to be chronically unhappy, irritable, depressed. They have no ambition, are pessimistic and have feelings of inferiority or "I can't." They have trouble trying to concentrate.

This projects into physical aspects, on the order of hypochondria: Tiredness, listlessness, headaches, poor appetite, digestive disturbances and a variety of other such things, all of which the victim usually worries about.

Before saying a person has neurasthenia (or deciding that you have it yourself) there's one thing that always should be done: Complete physical examination. All of these symptoms can come from physical causes, perhaps chronic infection, faulty eating or living habits or some defect in the thyroid. And all such things can be corrected.

As a matter of factual observation, we can easily see how a person can get into a rut in his thinking, believing that something is wrong with him and failing or fearing to find out what.

If it is neurasthenia, can anything be done? Often, yes. We can do far more than we once could. Sometimes positive reassurance that nothing physical is wrong is enough of a start to get the patient on the upgrade. Sometimes counseling by the family physician or a psychiatrist helps the patient out of the depressed stage, and helps him see life from a new, hopeful and better viewpoint. In some cases the newer drugs combat depression very effectively.

Exercise and regularity of eating and sleeping are decidedly important. The patient must make some effort himself. He must make himself see that being dependent and focusing his attention on himself are the very things that contribute to his misery. This change of view may not be easy to bring about but it can be done.

I have had a hysterectomy but still have my ovaries. I am wondering if my doctor is right in giving me estrogen. — Mrs. E. V.

Here's the point you are overlooking, I think: The ovaries, even if not removed, slack off in their activity at the menopause age. Use of estrogen is a well-accepted means of helping a patient through the more difficult months.

When I cry for a few minutes or more, my eyes become swollen. What can I do to reduce the swelling?—H. M.

Cold packs should help.

Virginia Case a Threat To State, Vandiver Says

By REG MURPHY
Constitution Political Editor

Georgia's local option school laws might have to be re-evaluated if the U.S. Supreme Court requires Virginia to operate public schools in Prince Edward County, Gov. Vandiver warned Monday.

The governor made the comment in a news conference when he was asked whether the suit to require Prince Edward to reopen its school would affect the Georgia law.

"If they do (rule that the schools must be reopened), it may be necessary to have a re-evaluation of the laws passed at the last session of the Legislature," Vandiver said.

Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy brought suit in Federal court last week seeking to have the schools in the rural Virginia county opened. They have been closed for two school terms as a result of a vote in the farm belt county.

Vandiver declined to say what approach any re-evaluation would take. However, his comment indicated he felt that some further legislative action might be necessary. Georgia's local option law is closely akin to the law under which the Virginia county closed its schools.

The "freedom of association" school program which Vandiver and the Legislature approved earlier this year was based on the right of citizens of each county to determine whether to operate their schools in the event they were ordered desegregated.

Vandiver warned, in the same press conference, that the NAACP is attempting to create racial strife as the City of Atlanta begins screening Negro applicants who would become the first of their race to enter previously white schools here next fall.

A Negro rally here Sunday heard speakers urge that large numbers of applicants seek admission to the white schools so that the Atlanta Board of Education could not eliminate them all.

Vandiver said Monday, "This latest pronouncement really confirms my long-standing belief that the Negro leadership does not care for the progressive education of the children of their own race.

"I have every confidence that the Atlanta Board of Education will discharge its responsibilities (and) will not be intimidated by the threats of any organization," Vandiver said.

The governor pledged to have state law enforcement officers available to make sure there is no outbreak of racial crisis which could endanger lives or property.

"The state police and facilities are always available to preserve law and order in the event local law enforcement breaks down," Vandiver said.

Vandiver also discussed politics during the press conference.

A final date for holding the State Democratic Primary next summer has not been selected, he said. Other state officials have said it would be held during the week of June 1, 1962.

"We don't have to set dates immediately for a race that is more than a year away," Vandiver said.

When a newsman asked him whether he intended to support any candidate to succeed himself, either openly or behind the scenes, Vandiver replied:

"If I planned to do it behind the scenes, I wouldn't tell you about it. Any announcement I have to make about that, I will announce it before this forum (the press conference)."

Virginia suit may defeat aid-to-education bill, Talmadge says. Page 16.

School Funds Top Forecast by Million

The state Education department is expected to announce within a few days that counties will contribute $1.2 million more than was expected to the state's basic education program.

This new money, if it is divided among state allotted teachers, would finance a $40 per teacher raise over and above the $300 increase already promised.

The extra money will come from the "chargeback" — the amount of money which a local school system must pay as its own share of the basic education program in the county.

UNEXPECTED INCREASE

State School Superintendent Claude Purcell was not available for comment, but it was learned that the chargeback figures have been completed.

They show that the unexpected increase results from the revaluation of property in several Georgia counties. That added to the total value of state property in the chargeback formula.

NO DECISION ON USE

When the factor increased, the amount of money which each county must pay went up.

Education sources said that no decision has been made as to where the additional money should go.

The State Board of Education would have the right to allocate it for other purposes, such as maintenance and operation of the school buildings, for transportation, or other expenses, according to these sources.

However, they guesses that the board would decide to give the money to the teachers in the form of pay raises.

Meanwhile, there were indications that some local school systems might have trouble scraping up the additional funds.

FULTON CONCERNED

A small county which still has not adjusted its property valuations so that the tax base will be broader will have trouble, just the same as a large county which already pays a heavy share of its own school load, the education sources said.

In Fulton and some other counties, there already was concern as to where the funds could be found to pay the $300 raise to teachers who are hired in addition to the number for which the state pays.

During the last session of the Legislature, when the lawmakers were struggling to find enough money for a pay raise for teachers, Purcell estimated that the chargeback would increase $1.2 million.

DOUBLE ESTIMATE

The lawmakers figured that amount into the Education department budget and said it would finance $40 of the teacher raise.

But the department has found that the increase actually will amount to $2.4 million, which would finance $80 of the raises for 31,200 teachers.

At a meeting last week of Georgia school officials studying the Minimum Foundation Program, a school finance specialist recommended that local effort be set at a flat percentage of the total program.

27 Plants Entered State This Year, Says Vandiver

Gov. Ernest Vandiver reported Monday that 27 new plants started operations in Georgia during the first three months of this year, providing 978 jobs.

Vandiver said the report should answer "certain large mouths that have been wobbling about over the state." Former Gov. Marvin Griffin has been critical of the amount of industry attracted to Georgia during the Vandiver administration.

Vandiver told his Monday morning press conference that the 27 new plants have begun operations in 20 counties, turning out 28 different products.

In addition, he said, 26 plants in 14 counties have announced expansions valued at almost $185 million, not counting Lockheed's $1 billion defense contract.

Vandiver said 607 industrialists have accepted invitations to attend the Governor's Conference on Trade and Commerce May 21-23.

State's Taxes Dip but Stay Above 1960

Georgia's tax intake slumped nearly $2½ million last month, but state Revenue department officials expected the drop and were not alarmed.

State Revenue Commissioner Dixon Oxford said he still expects revenue collections for the current fiscal year to gross $380 million.

With two more months to go, net collections for the fiscal year are $299,065,148. That's $20,610,143 more than had been collected at the end of April last year.

The April revenue slump was caused by a drop of $3,480,131 in income tax collections under the same month of last year.

Taxpayers paid income taxes in a lump sum last year, meaning a big month in April. This fiscal year, however, income taxes have been withheld and the money flowed in gradually.

Income tax collections this year are up $16,095,635 over last year.

April sales tax receipts were up $481,000, gasoline tax payments up $347,000, and motor vehicle revenue up $275,000.

Cadillac

Even its economy says "yes"!

Let us reflect, for a moment, on the things that beckon a man to Cadillac.

There is, to begin with, the car's grace and majesty of styling—a temptation that is difficult indeed to deny.

There is its luxury and its comfort—eloquent invitations to ownership all by themselves.

There is its masterful performance and its reputation for quality — irresistible attractions in today's world of cars.

And now, more than ever, Cadillac's economy ranks high among those important considerations that lead inevitably to the "car of cars".

For a Cadillac has, over the years, become progressively more practical to own and to operate.

The price of a 1961 Cadillac is remarkably reasonable in relation to other cars. In terms of value received, it might well represent the greatest bargain of all.

And consider how well a Cadillac holds that value—and makes your Cadillac a sound investment for whatever length of time you might choose to own it.

Then, too, the car is unusually conservative in its use of gasoline—and as free from maintenance as sound engineering and careful craftsmanship can make it.

Visit your dealer soon for the facts.

You'll find, we are certain, that even Cadillac's economy says "yes"!

Russian Stall On Laos Is Hit

fore the proposed Geneva conference is to meet.

The prince again withdrew his support for the 14-nation conference, and proposed instead that the opposing factions compromise and use his capital of Phnom Penh for cease-fire negotiations. He proposed the conference originally, but withdrew the suggestion in January.

Harriman said the United States hopes for peace talks between opposing factions "wherever it is dignified and appropriate."

Both the royal government of Premier Boun Oum and the Pathet Lao rebels in their "capital" at Xiegn Khouang broadcast appeals to meet along Highway 13, the main north-south artery, to discuss a cease-fire.

The government proposed talks at the town of Ban Khy. The Reds, claiming they were "victors," insisted on the village of Ban Na Mon, which they captured from royal forces last week. Although Ban Na Mon borders a no-man's land area, the government is against holding talks there because it would result in a "loss of face."

Radio Hanoi in neighboring Communist North Viet Nam said both deposed Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma and paratroop Capt. Kong Le, commander of the Communist troops in Northern Laos, called for cease-fire talks in Ban Na Mon by Wednesday.

The Soviet - supplied rebels, meanwhile, continued to press their offensive against the towns of Ban Khuen, 44 miles north of Vientiane, and Phounong, 37 miles away.

There were these other developments in the confused situation:

—In New Delhi, the control commission for Laos—made up of India, Canada and Poland—sent a report on its proposed role in supervising a cease-fire to Britain and Russia which appealed for the cease-fire as cochairman of the 1954 Geneva conference on Indochina. The commission said it is ready to go to Laos whenever ordered by Britain and Russia.

—The British government said Russia has insisted that a cease-fire must be enforced before the control commission can be sent to Laos.

—Communist China, in a May Day celebration, renewed its demands for withdrawal of all American personnel and equipmement from Laos as its price for an effective cease-fire.

—Some 6,000 marines and jungle troops from six allied nations stormed ashore on British North Borneo in the biggest amphibious war games ever staged by the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization. The exercise was not related directly to the Laotian crisis, but SEATO is pledged to defend Laos if the royal government so requests.

you are going to compound the problems for the pupils, their parents, the teachers, the board of education and the entire community."

Hill charged, "You have no regard for the Negroes and their parents." Accompanying Hill was the Rev. Otis Moss Jr., pastor of Providence Baptist Church and vice president of the Atlanta branch National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Boyte said he was accompanying the Negro students "to give counseling to the applicants. There has been an obvious emotional strain placed on these children. We want to give an indication that the community is not against what they are trying to do today."

None of the students asked Boyte for advice or counsel, but he said the applications "afford an opportunity for intimidation."

The same forms will be used by white students wishing to change schools within the Atlanta system.

The applications, which must be returned to the Board of Education on or before May 15, are a part of the integration program approved by the Federal Court on Jan. 20, 1960.

The applications will be screened by the Board of Education and Negro students accepted for white high schools will be assigned under placement procedures approved by the federal court.

The court-approved criteria include available room and teaching capacity, academic preparation, scholastic aptitude and relative intelligence, and other factors including "the possibility of threat or friction or disorder among pupils or others: the possibility of breaches of the peace or ill will."

Only two students were refused applications Monday. They were two ninth graders who were not eligible for the program.

Only Negro students entering the 11th or 12th grade this fall will be considered for entry into white schools at the opening of the fall term.

Cubans Seizes U.S. Plane

that "they" would start shooting (at the plane) when it reached Havana," his wife said.

The Atlantan who is an attorney for the Public Housing Administration, was on a "routine business trip" in the Florida Keys, Mrs. Daughtry said.

Daughtry's wife and daughter Diane, 14, waited out the ordeal at their home at 5825 Pinebrook Rd., NE.

After returning to Florida Monday night, Daughtry told United Press International that shortly after the plane, carrying eight passengers and three crew members, was airborne, "a Cuban-looking fellow" asked stewardess Inez Harlow of Jacksonville if he could look at the instrument panel in the cockpit.

The stewardess asked the pilot, Capt. F. X. Riley of Miami Shores, who refused.

The plane made a brief landing at Marathon, halfway down the Florida Keys, to discharge one passenger and shortly after it took off again the Cuban pulled a pistol and forced his way into the pilot's compartment.

Daughtry said the co-pilot, J. T. Richardson of Jacksonville, was forced back to the passenger compartment and the armed hijacker took over direction of the plane.

Castro Puts Cuba Firmly In Red Bloc

plain about a Socialist regime 90 miles from his coast," Castro said.

Castro's appearance on a Havana telecast was monitored at Key West, 90 miles from Havana.

MULTITUDE ROARS

"Do you need elections?" Cassh o uTt .ehmuitltuderoareded tro shouted. The multitude roared back "No, no."

Castro said that henceforth his revolutionary ogvernment would rely on the direct backing of the people as expressed in such demonstrations as the May Day rally and parade.

"The revolution does not contemplate giving the oppressive classes any chance to return to power," said Castro who accused the United States of arming enemies of his regime and helping them stage a recent abortive invasion.

WARNS OF WAR

"The aggressive policy of the United States can cause a world war that can cost the lives of tens of millions of Americans. We do not endanger the lives of a single American. We are trying to achieve agrarian reform, to build tools, to build houses," the uniformed prime minister said.

"It is they who are playing at war, who are putting New York in danger of becoming another Hiroshima," he said.

Castro waved his arms and thumped the lectern as he became more and more emotional and the huge mass of humanity—set by Havana TV commentators at three million persons—responded with wild applause.

EXILE ARMS PARADED

Tanks, landing barges and other equipment of the abortive Cuban exile invasion on April 17 were in the parade, while radio and TV announcers broadcast anti-American slogans in a carnival of hate for the United States.

Parade organizers included in the line of march a group of men dressed as priests and in the uniform of the police and soldiers of the ousted Fulgencio Batista regime. The crowds along the flag and placard-bedecked route dutifully jeered.

Among the paraders were 1,000 invited "foreigners," most of whom were Communists from Czechoslovakia and other Soviet bloc nations.

A big crane rumbled past bearing part of the eagle that used to perch atop the U.S.S. Maine monument to Cuban-American friendship.

Squalls May Postpone Flight Of Astronaut Into Space

nauts flew mock missions Monday in a capsule like that which may take one of them into space.

No official announcement of the date or time has been made, but the space trip could come any time after 7 a.m., Tuesday, weather and other factors permitting.

In the few hours ahead, one of the two will be named to man the controls when a Redstone rocket lofts the bell-shaped capsule 115 miles high and 290 miles downrange.

The other will be his "backup," or alternate.

But late Monday neither knew which would be which.

Each knew only that he must be ready — mentally as well as physically — in case something should happen to his buddy.

First one, then the other, climbed into the earthbound capsule to practice for the 15-minute flight southeastward across the Atlantic.

Each knows the complex controls of the 6-by-9-foot spacecraft better than most drivers know the dashboard of their cars. But in the final tune-up of man and machine every procedure must be gone over and over.

The identities of the two men were closely guarded. The world knew only that they were among the three picked from the team of seven Mercury astronauts: Marine Lt. Col. John Glenn, 39; Air Force Capt. Virgil Grissom, 35, and Navy Comdr. Alan Shepard, 37.

A greater than 18-knot wind and 3-foot waves in the capsule impact area downrange could be cause for delaying lift-off here.

Everything was in readiness for the attempt to close the long lead the Soviet Union gained in the space race when she orbited Yuri Gagarin last April 12.

Disclosure of the names of the first U.S. spaceman and the backup pilot is not expected until a few hours before the launching.

The weather was warm and muggy with occasional drizzles, relieved only by a strong breeze from the ocean that stirred up rumors from time to time that the launching would have to be postponed.

Under those conditions, it would be difficult for a helicopter to pick up the capsule and carry it to one of three waiting recovery ships.

The man launched Tuesday will be in space only about five minutes, at the top of his 15-minute ride. It will be months before an American astronaut orbits the earth.

U.S. Plans U.N. Action Over Laos

ward until roughly two-thirds of Laos is now in their control. The administration fears that the government of Prince Boun Oum may be virtually overwhelmed before there is a cease-fire.

—At last month's ministerial meeting in Bangkok of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, the members said they were prepared to take "appropriate" action to prevent a military takeover of Laos. However, France is known to be opposed to any military intervention, and some other members feel strongly that Laos is not the place to become involved in a "Korea-like" action.

—Finally—and this, it is understood, is a compelling argument with the administration after the failure of the Cuban invasion—there is mounting opposition on Capitol Hill to sending U.S. troops into Laos.

Two years ago when the Pathet Lao were threatening to break out of the provinces of Samneua and Phongsaly, which they controlled, the United Nations established a "presence" in Laos over strong Soviet protest. As a result of the U.N. mission, the Pathet Lao relaxed its pressure for a time.

Invasion Ruled Out By Rusk man of the Foreign Relations Committee, both of whom sat in on Rusk's testimony.

Mansfield has said the subcommittee briefings do not constitute "an investigation," but rather renewed liaison between the departments involved in the invasion and the Senate subcommittee.

Morse said the decision to have Dulles appear before the full committee was based on his own recommendation that the parent group inquire "into the whole extent of CIA activities around the world" without being limited to the Latin American area.

Morse said his subcommittee will meet Tuesday to evaluate Rusk's testimony and determine future procedure.

"But liaison was reestablished today," Morse told newsmen, "and the committee will continue to maintain an active and concerned interest in the Cuban situation."

Morse said Rusk assured the subcommittee the invasion was a Cuban invasion — "and it was a Cuban decision, a decision by the Cuban exiles."

But Morse said it was also clear that U.S. officials knew of the decision and provided training facilities, arms, financial and other assistance.

Rains Fail to Dim The Met's Glitter

lanta's dazzling and bedazzled opera-goers agreed.

Even the SRO sign came down for Met opener "Turandot." Standing-room was sold days before the curtain went up on an exotic Chinese setting and a strange tale of love, murder, and intrigue.

Hungry-eyed music-lovers without tickets queued up at the Fox lobby box office, hoping for last-minute turn-ins.

All were disappointed. Season ticket-holders, who swapped, sold, or gave away seats to other performances, held on to "Turandot" ducats.

FLOATS WAY UP

"It's wonderful to have a fresh new opera for opening night," an Agnes Scott gallery ticket-owner smiled, "instead of the old standbys. Puccini's music floats 'way up here in a heavenly way!"

First-nighters—4,462-strong plus standees and one wheelchair-listener, Mrs. Lewis Froshin, who was nursing a broken leg—appeared captivated alike by the Met production's lush settings, peacock-colored costumes by Cecil Beaton, and voices of top stars headed by Birgit Nilsson, Franco Corelli, and Lucine Amara.

EXCITEMENT BACKSTAGE

The usual cheerful bedlam reigned backstage, with svelte ballet-dancers and muscular set-movers ducking out of each other's way. Wardrobe mistress Rosie Calamari guarded the No. 1 dressing room door, behind which Miss Nilsson put on the stunning robes of a Chinese princess.

Miss Amara fingered a toy dog, good luck charm given her by her new husband, Gil Rudy, who's "missing me tonight in New York."

Curtain-time was eight minutes past 8 p.m.—but the outdoor show began before twilight shadows fell.

Head doorman Jess Smith, who's been with the Fox "long before we started having opera here," expertly guided be-furred ladies out of the limousines that kept swooshing up in front of the theater.

Eighty-five Georgia Tech students swelled ranks of Fox ushers. Typical was Byron Davis of Dixie, Ga., serving his "second season." Powder room attendant Beatrice Shannon reported she could hear "those high notes" from her basement station.

"A smooth operation," Fox manager Noble Arnold reported at the end of the evening. "Now we just have to do this six more times!"

"Manon Lescaut" is the opera on tap for Tuesday night. The week-long program includes "Rigoletto" Wednesday, "La Boheme" Thursday, "Martha" Friday, a matinee performance of "L'Elisir d'Amore" Saturday afternoon, and "Nabucco" Saturday evening. All evening performances have an 8 o'clock curtain; the matinee will begin at 1:30 p.m.

Animals Are Asking Your Silk Hosiery

By MIKE MAHONEY
Constitution Correspondent

LUSAKA, Northern Rhodesia—If you happen to know any damsels who have some old silk stockings they would like to get rid of, please ask them to send the aforesaid tot he Wildlife Conservation Department in Lusaka. This organization would be more than happy t otake any such offerings off their hands (or feet), and it won't mind in the slightest if there are a few runs or holes in them.

Why the big demand for used silk stockings in this central African country? Because there are approximately 1,50 wild animals waiting (unknowingly) to be trussed up with these discarded articles of feminine footwear in order to be saved from an untimely and watery death.

OPERATION NOAH

"Operation Noah" is the official name for this life-saving operation which is now entering its third year. With the completion in 1959 of the giant Kariba hydroelectric project on the Zambesi River, a lake—which will soon be 175 miles long and up to 2 miles wide—slowly began forming behind the concave and massive concrete wall of Kariba Dam.

As the water began to rose, the wild game which inhabited the region was forced inexorably to move to higher and higher ground. Many of these creatures steered clear of trouble, but many more of them sudednly found themselves trapped on pieces of land which had unexpectedly turned into inslands.

But for some courageous and enterprising employes of the N. Rhodesia Wildlife Conservation Department, these marooned animals would have slowly succumbed to the ever-rising waters. However, a team of five European conservation officers and 5 African helpers have thus far rescued a total of 2,745 animals, not including hundreds of birds and snakes. Of this total, 189 died after capture, mainly as the ersult of shock and injuries.

THE RESCUE FLEET

This rescue team operates from nine small boats and a mother ship. It captures thes tranded animals on the various drowning islands by means of ropes and traps, ties them up with silk stockings, lifts them into the small boats and then carries them to safe ground.

The mother ship is used for transporting and towing the bigger game, such as rhinoceros and giraffe. For capturing the huge and powerful rhinos, the team uses a rifle that shoots drug-loaded hypodermic darts into their rumps. Once the Rhino is unconscious, the team ties it up and loads its huge bulk onto a raft. The mother ship then tows the raft to high ground where the beast is untied and left to regain consciousness on its. own—for no one wants to be around when it wakes up! There is nothing in the world more ferocious than an angry rhino.

According to the Conservation Department, there are still approximately 1,50 animals remaining on these fast-disappearing islands, including eight rhinos. As the mighty Zambesi River is now in full flood, causing the waters of Lake Kariba to rise five to six inches daily, the rescue team will have to work fast. And it will need a large supply of silkstockings to tie all these "critters" up.

In case you might still be wondering why silk stockings are used instead of rope — it is because it has been found that silk stockings cut less deeply into the struggling animals' flesh while still binding them securely. So you can see that the members of the Conservation Department rescue team are not only courageousa nd enterprising—but also very kind-hearted people. The neight of ingratitude is that these brutes are not the least bit obliged to their heroic and gentle rescuers thus making the latter's task truly a thankless one.

Liberals Peril U.S., Byrd Says

"Liberal elements which operate from within the very framework of the government" are posing alarming dangers to America, Lt. Gov. Garland Byrd declared Monday.

He made the assertion in a speech prepared for delivery to the Macon Bar Association, the first of a series of nine meetings which Byrd plans during the week. He addressed a youth banquet in Covington Monday night.

TEMPO INCREASES

A highlight of Byrd's schedule as the tempo increases in the pregubernatorial battle is a dinner Thursday night at which he will play host to all Third Congressional District legislators.

Byrd apparently hopes to solidify his support with the lawmakers from his home district during the meeting at his Reynolds home.

In the Macon speech, the lieutenant governor asserted that liberals working in the government are "far more alarming" than foreign enemies of the nation.

'LIKE TERMITES'

"Our foreign foes are known—they announce to the world their intentions to bury us," Byrd said. "More immediately frightening . . . are the insidious encroachments that have been made and are being made upon the basic cornerstones of our form of government by the so-called liberal elements which operate from within the very framework of the government itself."

He declared, "Those same liberal reformists who are so bent on reorganizing our government to their socialistic concepts never stop to realize they are eating away—like termites—on the foundations of the only form of government left in the world under which they would be tolerated."

Byrd contrasted the May Day celebrations of Communist countries—"a sword-rattling show of military might"—with the American tradition of "exalting legal right."

"While we are being thankful for a superior form of government, they are being boastful of a superior form of rocketry," he said.

In the speech at the annual Covington Youth Banquet, Byrd urged the youngsters to become interested in government, and noted that youth has become more evident in government.

"In our own Georgia General Assembly, we have more young representatives and senators elected for each new term," he said.

Braden, Wilkinson Begin Terms Here

Carl Braden and Frank Wilkinson, who refused to tell a House subcommittee whether they had ever been Communists, surrendered here Monday and began serving one-year prison terms for contempt of Congress.

Seventeen white and Negro leaders in the South, including the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., of Atlanta, immediately began a drive to petition President John F. Kennedy for executive clemency for Braden, a field secretary for the biracial Southern Conference Educational Fund.

PLEA REJECTED

Braden and Wilkinson surrendered at the U.S. marshal's office here after their last ditch plea to alleviate their sentences was turned down Monday morning at Newnan by U.S. District Court Judge Boyd Sloan.

The marshal's office said Braden, of Louisville, Ky., and Wilkinson, of Los Angeles, will be held in Fulton County jail until authorities in Washington designate the federal prisons where they'll serve their terms.

The contempt convictions, which were upheld last month by the U.S. Supreme Court, grew out of the two men's refusal to answer questions during a 1958 hearing in Atlanta of the House Un-American Activities subcommittee.

FIGHTING UNIT

Wilkinson has been working for the National Commitee to Abolish the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Richard Arens, staff director of the House committee, testified during Braden's trial here that "it was our information that Mr. Braden was a member of the Communist party."

During Wilkinson's trial, Arens said the committee had information that Wilkinson had been sent into the So[illegible] to "spearhead" Communist infiltration.

The petition to Kennedy declares that executive clemency for Braden would "reaffirm the position of the federal government supporting peaceful and orderly integration in the South."

PETITION SPONSORS

Besides King, the sponsors of the petition were listed as the Rev. Wyatt Tee Walker, Atlanta; the Rev. Clarence Jordan, Americus; the Rev. Fred L. Shuttlesworth, Birmingham; the Rev. Ralph Abernathy, Montgomery; the Rev. William Abbot, Norfolk; Mrs. Sarah Patton Boyle, Charlottesville; Carl P. Brannin, Dallas; James McBride Dabbs, Mayesville, S.C.; the Rev. W. W. Finlator, Raleigh; the Rev. James M. Lawson Jr., Shelbyville, Tenn.; Bishop Edgar A. Love, Baltimore, Miss Dorcas Ruthenburg, Louisville; the Rev. C. K. Steele Sr., Tallahassee; Bishop C. Peale Urges New Concept Of Problems

Americans need a new concept of their problems, Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, writer, lecturer and clergyman, told more than 2,000 persons Monday night at the Atlanta Municipal Auditorium.

Addressing a meeting sponsored by the Atlanta Sales Executives Club, Dr. Peale urged "positivism, rather than negativism" and said, "Rejoice in your problems. They're wonderful. They make a man of you."

"Get a new slant on problems. If you think pessimism and failure, you create them out of your own thinking. If you send out positivism, you get positive results," he said.

Interlacing his talk with many humorous touches, Dr. Peale told of receiving a letter from a 93-year-old man who had at last rid himself of a life-long inferiority complex. The letter contained a postscript: "The future looks good."

The meeting was billed as a "Sales Jubilee." Also on the program was Stuart D. Watson, advertising and marketing executive, who spoke on "Are You Matching Your Wits With a Vending Machine?"

"The idea is not to match wits with a vending machine, but to rise as far above it as our talents permit," he said.

Fort Oglethorpe Uses Advanced Patient Plan

FORT OGLETHORPE (AP) — The opening of a new $1.9 million wing at the Hutcheson Memorial Tri-County Hospital Monday marked the start of what was described as the first progressive patient care plan in a small town in the South.

The plan grouped patients in sections of the hospital according to intensive care, moderate care, self care and continuation care.

Administrators said that as a patient's condition changed, he would be moved to the section of the hospital which best fitted his needs.

The new wing increased the hospital's capacity from 110 to 225 beds.

Lucine Amara Wears Her Makeup as Slave Girl "Liu" in Turandot

Nilsson's Magical Soprano Casts Its Spell as 'Turandot'

By BRUCE GALPHIN

The 5,000 most satisfied people in America Monday must have been the Fox Theater audience at the Metropolitan Opera's "Turandot" production here.

The curtain-raiser had been anticipated on at least half a dozen counts in adition to the first-night glamor. It more than lived up to expectations.

A generation has passed since "Turandot" last graced the boards, during which time it has sunk into the semi-oblivion of occasional recordings.

In view of its musical splendor and dramatic excitement, its neglect is at first hard to understand.

But with the opening of the second act, the explanation becomes apparent: "Turandot," besides executing many a wooing prince, also is a soprano-killer. It builds to one of the longest vocal crescendoes in the literature, demanding prolonged periods above high C.

In short, it takes a soprano of Birgit Nilsson's power and range to handle its near-Wagnerian proportions.

The audience was well advised in its wild acclaim of Miss Nilsson. Without her, the long scene beginning with the awesome "In Questa Reggia" and concluding with the vanquishing of the "fire and ice" after the riddle-solving, would have collapsed, and with it, the entire production.

Instead, it was a real stunner, mounting constantly in intensity and splendor.

Franco Corelli, whose Atlanta debut was among the major attractions Monday night, showed why he has been receiving such loud huzzahs abroad.

Corelli's good looks already have been well publicized. His stage presence is a lesser known quality. His tone is clear and exact and ranks him among the best of the best.

Puccini always compensated his hapless heroines with glorious arias, and the character Liu is no exception. Although she dies, like Butterfly, she likewise goes down magnificently.

Lucine Amara chose to interpret the role in a self-effacing manner, and she accomplished her intent beautifully. But her rags and downcast eyes did not diminish the luster of her voice in the first and third act arias.

Whether "Turandot" is Puccini's greatest opera may be argued, but it certainly is his most harmonically advanced and most exotic. Despite his demands on the principals, he relies here more than in any other of his works on the chorus to advance the action. Choruses dominate the first act in particular, with its volatile crowds and sweetly singing children (performed Monday night by a chorus of women with a slight dimunition of effect.)

"Turandot," then, is not a few arias loosely linked together, one man, Kurt Adler, handled both the conductor's and the chorus master's duties, and to him goes credit for a large share of the production impact and luster.

Bouquets go also to Frank Guarrera, Robert Nage and Charles Anthony for their adept handling of the vocal chorus and the comic stage business of the masques, Ping, Pang and Pong.

And if we may be forgiven for mentioning the visual attractions last, the Cecil Beaton set and costumes alone were worth the visit to the Fox.

Relocation Of Liquor Store Loses

Aldermen Follow Ward Courtesy

The old policy of ward courtesy in granting liquor sale licenses prevailed again Monday when aldermen turned down a proposal to relocate a store owned by Joseph Rinzler.

Ald. Wayne Blanchard, a member of the Sixth Ward delegation, opposed transferring the store from 486 Decatur St., SE, to 650 DeKalb Ave., NE, while his colleague, Ald. William A. (Bill) Sims, had approved it.

DEBATED FOR MONTHS

The store location has been debated for months with aldermen being unable to agree on a new site. The old location will be taken over by an urban renewal project.

Ald. Ed. A. Gilliam, police committee chairman, presented a favorable report from his committee, but Blanchard made a substitute motion to turn down the new location despite the report. The substitute passed 10 to two.

CONTRACTS APPROVED

The Aldermen also:

1. Approved new contracts with Eastern, Capital, Trans World, Northwest and Delta air lines for operations from the new terminal building at the Atlanta Airport.

Ald. Jesse Draper, chairman of the aviation committee, said the new contracts and others will increase income from the airport from $1,050,000 last year to some $2,800,000 for the first year of operation of the new terminals.

He added that the $19.4 million in bonds and revenue certificates issued to help finance the improvements at the airport can be retired with the income, which also will pay all operating expenses.

OPERATING IN BLACK

"We will operate in the black the very first year," he added.

2. Adopted resolutions deploring the death of Jackson P. Dick, prominent Atlanta business and civic leader, and the illness of Ald. Lee Field, who is at Georgia Baptist Hospital for a kidney operation.

3. Voted to extend the contract between the city and the Southeastern Fair Association for Lakewood Park for another 10 years. The association plans to expend $95,000 during that period in draining the lake so the land can be utilized.

OFFICIALS REELECTED

4. Reelected four city department heads for new four-year terms. City Att. Jack Savage; Stafford W. Graydon, sanitary engineer; Ray Nixon, city construction chief, and Col. Malcolm Jones, head of the city's urban renewal department.

5. Urged that central of Georgia Railway stock be bought by the Southern Railway System as has been proposed. Alderman Draper was author of the resolution.

Locate New Low-Rent Housing In Negro Sections, Gilliam Urges

Alderman Ed Gilliam proposed Monday that the Atlanta Housing Authority locate 350 units of low-rent Negro housing on "several scattered sites within established Negro communities. . . ."

Gilliam offered the proposal to the Atlanta aldermanic board, which already has turned down two locations (Egleston and Poole Creek Road) for the Negro units.

Meanwhile, the aldermanic board approved plans for Atlanta's sixth urban renewal project, comprising some 130 acres off Boulevard Drive in the Woodbine Avenue-Rogers Street area of southeast Atlanta.

Gilliam's proposal was referred to the urban renewal committee. Alderman Everett Millican, chairman of that committee, urged his colleagues Monday to help find a site for the 350 Negro units.

The board also received a petition from the Southside Civic League, a Negro organization, asking that a public hearing be held on reconsidering the Poole Creek Road site which aldermen already have rejected.

National Is Seeking To Drop Savannah

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — City and county officials were notified Monday that National Airlines has applied to the Civil Aeronautics Board for permission to suspend service to Wilmington and Fayetteville, N.C., and Savannah, Ga.

The advisory said National also asked permission to suspend service "contingently to New Bern." There was no immediate e[illegible]nation of what the suspension was contingent on.

2 in Council Indicted by Cobb Again

The Cobb County Grand Jury Monday returned three additional true bills against two Marietta city councilmen.

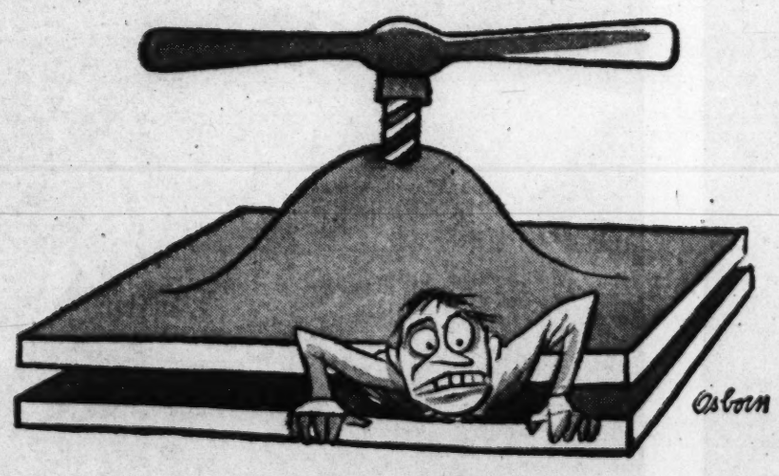

Councilmen Edward W. Chastain was named in two of the indictments Monday, both charging malpractice. Guy Powell was named in one true bill charging malpractice.

Two indictments charged that the two councilmen solicited $1,000 from real estate developer Charles Moon Sr. of Miami to assure council approval of a sewer line tap permit for some property Moon allegedly wanted to develop.

An additional indictment against Chastain charged he used his influence to get the city council to restrict hours at a Marietta bowling alley on property owned by Barney Nunn. The hour change is alleged to have been an effort to get Nunn, head of the Cobb Temperance League, to curtail his opposition to pinball machines.

"I can always get a loan, So why save 90 days' pay?"

Old Ben Franklin is credited with saying, "There are three faithful friends: an old wife, an old dog and ready money."

It is good that under our free-enterprise system it is so easy to get a short-term consumer loan. But cash on hand is worth a great deal more to you than the best credit rating in the world. You never know when the creek will run dry.

And besides, there's the practical matter of paying interest for borrowed money – as contrasted with earning dividends on money saved.

Compare the following figures. In one case you borrow $500 and arrange to repay it in 24 monthly installments. In the other, you set out to save $500 in 24 monthly installments.

BORROW PLAN		SAVE PLAN
Monthly Payment	$ 23.33	Monthly Payment	$ 20.00
Interest Paid (6%)	60.00	Dividends Earned	20.36
Total Paid	560.00	Total Saved	480.00
Amount of Loan	500.00	Savings Account Total	500.36

Note: If you borrow $500 you pay interest of $60.00. If you save $500, you earn dividends of $20.36. The total difference to you between the two plans is $80.36.

Easy-Payment Saving is the Answer

Investment counselors say every family should have at least 90 days' pay saved for a rainy day or to take advantage of opportunities. Save it and see if it doesn't liberate you from the borrowing treadmill and set you on your way to a sound financial future.

Manon, at a Barred Window, Pledges Love to Des Grieux

The following is a synopsis of Puccini's "Manon Lescaut," Tuesday night's production here by the Metropolitan Opera Company:

Act. I. Outside an inn at Amiens, 1721:

Edmondo, his fellow students and their sweethearts are enjoying themselves at the inn. When Des Grieux arrives, they tease him about his lack of success in love; he replies with a serenade during which he steals a kiss from each of the girls ("Tra voi, belle"). A carriage arrives bearing Manon; her brother Lescaut, who is escorting her to a convent on their father's orders, and a rich, elderly Parisian, Geronte Des Grieux speaks to Manon briefly, but her brother calls her to her room. While the students play cards and laugh at him, Des Grieux sings of Manon's beauty ("Donna non vidi mai").

Edmondo overhears Geronte, encouraged by Manon's brother, bribe the innkeeper to arrange her abduction; the student warns Des Grieux. At evening-fall, Manon joins Des Grieux; he persuades her to run off with him to escape both convent and Geronte ("Vedete? Io son fedele."). Geronte is furious to see the couple escaping in the carriage he had hired for the abduction, but the drunken Lescaut calms him with the argument that a luxury-loving girl like Manon will not stay long with a poor student ("Parigi! E la Manon"). The young people make fun of Geronte, and he goes off to dinner with Lescaut.

Act II. A sumptuous apartment in Paris.

Manon indeed has fulfilled her brother's predictions and has allowed Geronte to install her in an apartment. Lescaut calls to congratulate her ("Sei splendida") but she says she still misses Des Grieux ("In quelle trine morbide"). She is still bored as five musicians sing a madrigal composed by Geronte, but her vanity is aroused when some of Geronte's admirers call to toast her beauty. The old man joins them to watch her dancing lesson, during which she sings praises of love to the strains of a minuet ("L'ora, o Tirsi"). After the others leave, Des Grieux, summoned by Lescaut to relieve her boredom, arrives and reproaches Manon. But he melts before her beauty and the two sing of their love ("Vieni! Colle tue braccia"). As they embrace, Geronte enters, enraged. Manon taunts him about his age. Swearing vengeance, he departs. Lescaut bursts in to warn police are on the way, and Des Grieux begs Manon to leave with him immediately ("Ah Manon, mi tradisce"), but she stays to gather up her jewels. Soldiers, led by Geronte, burst in and drag her away as a common thief.

Act. III. A street by the harbor at Le Havre.

(Intermezzo: "The Journey to Le Havre.")

Des Grieux and Lescaut wait for dawn, when they hope to rescue Manon. When she appears at a barred window, she and Des Grieux exchange vows once more. They are interrupted by a lamplighter, who sings a plaintive tune ("Kate rispose al Re"). At the sound of a shot, Lescaut rushes in to warn that their plot has been discovered, and the two men take cover. Soldiers lead the exiled prisoners on board ship. Manon sobs farewell to Des Grieux, who persuades the ship's captai nto take him too ("Guardate, pazzo son").

Act. IV. A desolate plain in Louisiana, where Manon and Des Grieux have fled after landing at New Orleans:

Sick and weary, Manon begs Des Grieux to leave her alone to die. He leaves in search of help, and Manon is seized with terror and despair ("Sola, perduta, abbandonata"). On his return, she dies in his arms, vowing eternal love.

Last Royal Governor Harassed in Georgia

By MARJORY RUTHERFORD

"Sir James, you are under arrest!"

The startled royal governor of the Province of Georgia heard those words Jan. 18, 1776, in his own mansion at a moment when he was conferring with several members of the King's Council.

Maj. Joseph Habersham was the leader of the patriotic posse which interrupted the governor—and summarily made him a prisoner in the mansion, with a sentinel at the door.

Georgia historian Lucian Lamar Knight, mulling over that drama-fraught scene, staged in the stormy Revolutionary time when

The accompanying article on Gov. Wright is one of a series of weekly articles by Constitution staffers on famed Georgians. Dr. E. M. Coulter, retired head of the history department of the University of Georgia, is adviser for the series. Readers, particularly students, are urged to save this article, as a quiz on Wright will be published in Thursday's Constitution.

effigies were being burned in the streets of Savannah and good Whigs were rallying around the Liberty Pole, mused:

"Taken wholly unawares, Sir James was probably for the first time bereft of the King's English."

TIMING OFF

"Sir James" was James Wright, third and last of the royal governors of Georgia—a man of high ability who had the misfortune to be chief executive at a time when the people were ripe for revolution.

The day he was arrested by Georgia "Liberty Boys" was only one of many humiliations Wright suffered during his 20-year gubernatorial term.

The baronet had to sneak away from the mansion and his captors and flee to England. (Sir James came doggedly back later near the close of the Revolution and had much to do with the stubborn defense of Savannah by the British.)

Before that dramatic arrest Gov. Wright had been burned in effigy. His important mail had been tampered with. London officials had ignored his requests for troops. Members of the Georgia Assembly had given him back-talk and trouble.

BALKED BY 'INSULTS'

The harassed executive eventually requested leave to return to England, declaring he "could not bear the insults to which he was daily subjected" and could "accomplish nothing in Georgia."

But the former South Carolina attorney and British agent may have accomplished more than he knew.

Stubborn Sir James Wright is credited by many historians with holding back the Revolutionary tide in the 13th colony.

"Because of his influence with the leaders of the colony and the high regard with which he was held throughout Georgia," one wrote, "Wright undoubtedly delayed the rise of Revolutionary sentiment."

The "fever for freedom" had not taken hold of Georgians when Wright was appointed governor May 13, 1760.

He came to Savannah in October of that year, at a time when the colony was just beginning to fit into the pattern established by its older and wealthier neighbor, South Carolina, after what one historian termed "a not very productive infancy of sociological and economic experimentation."

TO CAROLINA

Wright—who had not yet been created a baronet—came to Georgia from South Carolina, but his roots were in England.

Historians disagree over whether he was born in Charleston or in England. He was the son of Robert Wright of Sedgefield in Durham County, England, and a "widow Pitts." The senior Wright was appointed chief justice of South Carolina and came to the colony. Son James was educated in England, studying law at Gray's Inn, and was appointed South Carolina's colonial agent in 1757.

Three years in this post taught James Wright a great deal about the British colonial system and introduced him to important British politicians. His experiences on both sides of the Atlantic fitted him for the appointment as Georgia's Royal Governor.

CORDIALLY RECEIVED

The South Carolinian was cordially received by Georgians in the beginning. The South Carolina Gazette reported that Savannah put on "the biggest celebration in its history" to observe his appointment as governor. Undoubtedly there were bonfires, fireworks, and toasts to the king.

Wright found the province "in a depressed condition" and set about with energy to improve conditions and correct abuses that had grown up.

He conscientiously worked for what he thought was best for Georgia. He successfully disputed South Carolina Gov. Boone's infringing grants of lands south of the Altamaha River. He took every precaution to maintain friendly relations with the Indians. His early relations with the Georgia Assembly were good.

POINTED TO DUTY

"It has ever been my study to discharge my duty to the King & People with integrity, & to the utmost of my power," he once declared.

By the third year of his long term the Treaty of Paris had ended the Spanish menace to Georgia. The Floridas were transferred to Britain, giving Georgia friends to the south and easing Indian relations. A proclamation in 1763 gave the province for the first time a definite southern boundary, the St. Marys River. The Creeks ceded lands greatly increasing the Georgia area open to white settlers.

Georgia began to prosper.

Her governor was doing all right, too. James Wright was interested personally as well as officially in the economic development of Georgia.

BUILT UP HOLDINGS

Throughout his governorship he acquired and built up holdings of lands, slaves, and plantation stocks. (There is no evidence that he acquired any illegally or for speculative purposes.) Gov. Wright was one of the largest and most successful planters in the area. In the 1770's he shipped between 2,000 and 3,000 barrels of rice yearly from his 11 plantations covering 25,578 acres and worked 523 slaves.

But in the mid-60's England's Stamp Act and growing rebellion of Georgians against the mother country complicated Wright's administration.

The harassed governor had to protect the king's unpopular stamps from Savannah Sons of Liberty determined to destroy them. He sheltered a king's agent in the mansion and reported he himself "did not have his clothes off" for four days.

FRUSTRATED

He became frustrated by the necessity of carrying out orders from London which were obnoxious to the Georgia Assembly. Occasionally he adjourned the assembly to prevent public disputes. The lower house included outspoken patriots like Noble Wimberly Jones who were thorns in the royal governor's flesh.

The dismayed Wright wrote to London officials to report that the spirit of sedition which started in Boston had reached Georgia. He implored the Georgia Assembly not to "trample on law and government," declaring in a Jan. 17, 1775, address before that body:

"You may be advocates for liberty; so am I, but in a constitutional and legal way . . . where there is no law, there can be no liberty."

During his one leave to London between 1760 and 1776, the governor became "Sir James."

LIBERTY BOYS

But his new title did not prevent Georgia "Liberty Boys" from making fiery speeches and resolutions, dumping cannon into the Savannah River when Wright proposed firing a salute to King George III, and breaking into Savannah's powder magazine to take ammunition reportedly fired later at Bunker Hill.

Sir James offered a reward for capture of the magazine raiders. Ironically, they were the very men who later marched into the mansion and arrested the indignant governor.

The governor never knew until years after the Revolutionary War why the troops he had asked for in dispatches from London failed to come. Patriots had intercepted the letters and substituted for them messages that all was well in Georgia.

VAIN EFFORT

Sent back to Georgia after Savannah fell to the British, Sir James Wright tried valiantly but futilely to restore the province to its old—and to him proper—place in the Empire.

Again he was frustrated by guerrilla warfare in the back country, failure of England to give him the defense he sought, and eventual orders to evacuate Savannah and Georgia.

Gov. Wright left Georgia—the scene of his greatest successes and failures—with British troops July 10, 1782. He sailed down the Savannah River to the Atlantic for the last time and went "home" to an England he hardly knew.

For the remaining three years of his life Sir James, a tired and embittered old man, tried to get financial compensation for himself and other Loyalists who had lost their fortunes.

For his claim of 33,000 pounds for property lost in Georgia and loss of his office, he was granted a pitifully small pension of 500 pounds a year. He died Nov. 20, 1785, and was buried in the north cloister of Westminster Abbey.

New Trial Is Asked for Doomed Man

COLUMBUS (AP)—The case of a 20-year-old Negro man, fighting to save himself from the electric chair, will be heard by the Georgia Supreme Court.

Attorneys for George Watt, convicted here of raping a young, pregnant white woman in her home in December, filed an appeal Monday to the high court for a new trial.

Watt was convicted in February and sentenced to die. Then his court-appointed defense attorneys, Ernest Britton and Ralph Holloman, filed a new trial petition before Superior Court Judge J. R. Thompson here. Thompson denied the new trial motion.

Now the Supreme Court will be asked to review the case and determine whether Watt is due a new trial.

"Contributing to the traffic problem is the ever-increasing concentration around the larger cities where far-removed suburban areas with hundreds of homes disgorge those who work in the city."—Trade news note.

Life becomes more complicated . . . As the cities keep on growing . . . And are over-populated . . . With the sidewalks overflowing. . . . And the streets so over-crowded . . . With the traffic never-ending . . . That the heavens are beclouded . . . By the trails of gas ascending.

Hordes of people passing by you . . . Glance at you with some misgiving . . . Or they stare, and wonder why you . . . Have the right to keep on living . . . Without due deliberation . . . They ignore you, or they hate you . . . And with no consideration . . . Of the troubles that await you.

But the suburbs, on the border . . . Offer solitude and quiet . . . Where the grounds are kept in order . . . And a small stream running by it . . . Where man "resteth from his labors" . . . In some small church, with its steeple . . . And he finds some friendly neighbors . . . Who are just like country-people.

But they soon build other cities . . . Where nobody has foreseen them . . . And we hope The Good Lord pities . . . People who are jammed between them.

Opening lead: Four of ♦.

The East player in defending against today's contract made a wish—one which had little chance of fulfilment—and in the process overlooked a reasonable prospect of defeating the contract.

Against the five club bid West opened the four of diamonds. The queen was played from dummy. East won with the king and cashed the ace of diamonds. On the chance that partner might show up with the ace of hearts he returned the singleton. South won the trick, took the club finesse and proceeded to take the remainder of the tricks in fulfil ment of his lucky contract.

"Nothing could be done about it, partner," maintained East. "I was hoping you had the ace of hearts." This was more of a wish than a hope. If declarer lacked the ace of hearts, how could he venture to bid five clubs? The best wish East could have made was for West to have the king and one small in clubs.

The opening lead of the four of diamonds, followed by the deuce, shows that West has five of the suit; the declarer is, therefore, marked with three. The proper continuation by East would have been a diamond, forcing the declarer to trump with the six of clubs in dummy. It would then have become impossible for West's king to be captured.

It seems, however, to go counter to the grain of some players to permit dummy to trump anything. Perhaps here, as in so many other cases, the panacea is the simple process of counting to 13.

How To Use Water To END YOUR CONSTIPATION WORRIES

Here's how to get to the basic root of your constipation problem. Bring enough moisture to your lower colon every day. As soon as food wastes are normally moistened, they will "move" as they should and you will enjoy daily elimination.

So do this to end your constipation worries. Take SERUTAN every day with plenty of water. SERUTAN is a pure vegetable gel which carries twenty times its weight in water to your lower digestive tract where it is needed to promote more normal regularity.

SERUTAN provides the proper moisture, bulk and peristaltic action to help keep you regular. This is utterly different from chemical laxatives which cause diarrhea and may dry you out.

Get SERUTAN today. Use it faithfully as directed for at least one week. You must enjoy daily regularity or your money back from the maker.

All Reds Support Cuba, Russia Says

By HENRY SHAPIRO

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union's top military leader Monday pledged the support of the entire Communist bloc to protect Fidel Castro's Cuba against new aggressions.

Defense Minister Marshal Rodion Malinovsky declared in a May Day address that the recent "armed intervention in Cuba" was "fraught with dangerous consequences."

Boasting that the Russians have the most perfect weapons, Malinovsky said "the Soviet Union cannot ignore the war preparations of the imperialist countries."

FIDEL WINS PRIZE

Premier Fidel Castro, who was awarded the Lenin Peace Prize Sunday, was one of the day's heroes in absentia. His portrait was among those carried by civilian sections of the traditional parade.

Another hero was Maj. Yur Gagarin, the first man to travel into space. He had a place of honor next to Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and the rest of the Communist hierarchy in the reviewing stand atop the Lenin-Stalin mausoleum in Red Square.

Despite Malinovsky's militant words, the Soviets played down the military aspects of the parade. The display of armed might lasted only 22 minutes—one of the shortest May Day military exhibits in Soviet history—while non-military sections continued for hours.

NO NEW WEAPONS

There were no new weapons, no long-range missiles, no heavy tanks, no aircraft. Most of the rockets and other modern weapons that were shown had been seen during celebrations last November.

The emphasis was on the Soviet Union's economic, scientific and space exploration achievements. Another theme was solidarity with Communist China. A Communist Chinese representative was at Khrushchev's side in the stand.

The celebration of communism's major holiday was televised for the first time throughout Europe.

STATE ROUNDUP

Husband To Die for Slaying

BLAIRSVILLE—Felix McElroy, 45-year-old resident of Young Harris, was convicted of first-degree murder here Monday and sentenced to die June 20 in the electric chair.

McElroy was convicted of the March 13 shotgun slaying of his wife.

Judge Lamar Smith pronounced sentence after what was described as an "open-and-shut" case in Union County Superior Court.

The jury deliberated about 45 minutes, according to Sheriff Wayne Collins, and did not include a recommendation for mercy in its verdict.

McElroy, father of three, was estranged from his wife about a week before the shooting, Collins said.

On the night of March 13, McElroy found her at a neighbor's house, shot her in the face, and then turned the .410 guage shotgun on himself, the sheriff said.

Boy Out of Danger From Deadly Illness

CARTERSVILLE—Five-year-old Anthony Prather is apparently out of danger after exposure to deadly meningococcemia, a local physician said Monday. The boy was found after a frantic five-state search that interrupted his mother's honeymoon. Anthony had kissed a baby cousin who died a few hours later of the disease.

Dental Lab Operator Jailed in Test of Law

TOCCOA—A former Georgia dental laboratory operator, Jack Holcomb, who has been challenging the state's dental laws since 1955, was jailed here Monday on a 60-day contempt-of-court sentence. Holcomb was sentenced for ignoring a court order banning his making dentures without a dentist's prescription.

Fause Patron Shw'd Rust In Jail for Stealin' Bust

Wi lightsome heart I pu'd a rose
Frae aff its thorny tree
And my fause luver staw the rose
But left the thorn wi me.

The thief who broke a window in the Burns Club, 988 Alloway Place, SE, and took a life-sized bust of the Scotish poet might not have had in mind the final verse of "Ye Flowery Banks." But he left a thorn just the same.

The marble bust of Robert Burns adorned the mantle in the club meeting room. It was placed there in 1911, the year the replica of Burns' cottage at Ayr, Scotland was completed and opened.

Club members from far and near who gather there monthly for regular meetings agree that things will never be the same until the bust is recovered and restored to its rightful place.

Detectives R. L. Shutley and H. G. Mann said the thief entered after midnight Saturday and walked past an assortment of expensive items to reach the bust. He took nothing else.

U.S. Ham Law Cheats Consumer, Court Told

Ham had its day in court Monday in Atlanta—and there wasn't a dab of red gravy in sight.

This was the second of a series of eight hearings throughout the U.S. on recent regulations allowing federally inspected meat packers to sell smoked hams with 10 per cent pickling solution still in the meat.

eral Courtroom in the old post office, Mrs. Howard Nix Sr. of Atlanta objected to the new law on behalf of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

"The consumer is being cheated," Mrs. Nix charged, and urged that if the legislation is changed, "the consumer be the beneficiary rather than the victim."

Ira V. Lay Jr. of Lay Packing Co. in Knoxville, Tenn., was one of the meat packers opposing the legislation "It produces an inferior product," he said.

Lay reminded Carl R. Bullock of the Department of Agriculture Office of General Counsel, "There aren't enough housewives who know the difference.

No added moisture is allowed in pork products labeled as "cooked," "fully cooked," "thoroughly cooked," "ready to eat" or "ready to serve."

While the majority of spokesmen appearing Monday spoke against the regulations, two speakers for the American Meat Institute lauded the change.

J. Russell Ives, director of the department of marketing of the American Meat Institute in Chicago, said homemakers now prefer the less salty ham which still contains the added moisture.

Also speaking for the American Meat Institute was Roger W. Barrett, attorney, who said he was defending "the right of the American housewife to buy ham that best meets her needs and tastes . . . and who should not be denied the safeguard of federal inspection."

Georgians Split 5-5 On Slump-Area Bill

Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — In a wire service report from here last week on final house passage of President Kennedy's area redevelopment bill, a paragraph of the story in The Constitution gave an erroneous listing of how the Georgia delegation voted.

The Georgia delegation actually was split down the middle. Representatives John J. Flynt Jr., G. Elliott Hagan, Phil Landrum, J. L. Pilcher and Carl Vinson voted for the bill. Representatives James C. Davis, John W. Davis, E. L. (Tic) Forrester and Robert L. Stephens Jr., voted against it, and Rep. Iris Blitch was paired against it.

Wage Plan Proposed To Avoid Bankruptcy

Federal banksuptcy referee J. Ellis Mundy would like for lawyers and credit managers to help slow down the increasing number of bankruptcy cases filed here. He says this can be done through the "wage earner" plan.

Bankruptcies last year were at an all-time high, Mundy noted, and they're running 35 per cent higher this year over last.

As explained by Mundy to a group of lawyers and credit managers here, the "wage earner" plan would work like this:

A person head-over-heels in debt would have his lawyer file a petition in federal court. A court-appointed appraiser would put a value on his property (usually furniture and home appliances) that normally would be sold under the ordinary bankruptcy law. Then a percentage of his pay check would be deducted each week by the court for a period up to about 18 months and the money would be paid to his creditors.

Under this plan, the debtor would keep his property and the creditor would be paid, Mundy pointed out.

Southern district bankruptcy referee R. W. McDuffee said the plan enables the debt-ridden individual to keep his self-respect and also protects creditors.

Suit May Defeat Aid, Talmadge Says

By ALBERT RILEY
Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—Sen. Talmadge hinted Monday that Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy's lawsuit against Virginia schools may mean the defeat of President John F. Kennedy's aid-to-education bill in Congress.

Talmadge termed "constitutionally incomprehensible and indefensible" the Justice department's suit filed last week to enjoin Virginia from spending state funds for education until Prince Edward County schools are re-opened on an integrated basis.

CITES CONSTITUTION

Atty. Gen. Kennedy's action is aimed at re-opening to Negro students the Prince Edward schools closed down by the county to avoid court-ordered desegregation. White children, with the aid of state tuition grants, are being educated in a private school system, but the Negroes have no school at all now, and a $900,000 Negro school building is empty and idle.

Talmadge told the Senate Monday that there is nothing in the Constitution of the United States that requires a state or political subdivision thereof to operate public schools.

The effect of the Justice department suit, he declared, is to "dictate to the General Assembly of that sovereign state (Virginia) how it can and cannot spend public funds in the field of education.

If successful, Talmadge said, the federal lawsuit "would remove the last vestige of state and local control over the expenditure of state and local tax money and with it the last shreds of the consitutionally reserved right of the American people to govern themselves in all areas not specifically designated to the federal government."

The junior senator from Georgia termed the federal lawsuit not only unprecedented but "a deliberate slap in the face of Congress, which on two separate occasions refused to grant to the Justice department the power of intervention in school cases."

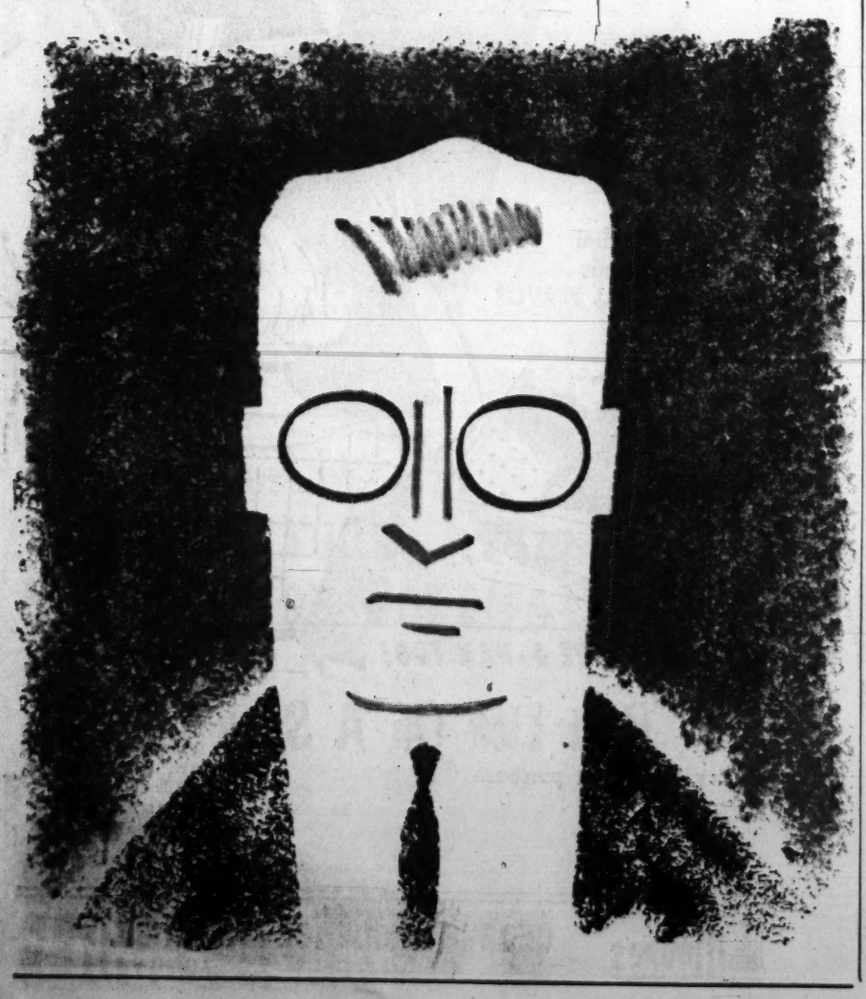

Talmadge criticized what he called the inconsistency of the Kennedy administration in seeking federal control over the Virginia expenditures while at the same time trying to give assurances that an aid-to-education bill would be free of federal controls.

THAT ANNUAL PEACHTREE PARADE

It's a Night for Jewels and Furs

By KATHRYN GRAYBURN
Constitution Society Editor

The glitter of diamonds and the opulence of furs glamorized opera's opening night when Atlantans and their visitors attended the performance of "Turandot," presented at the Fox Theater by stars of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

The extravaganza was preceded by a pre-opera supper held at the Commerce Club and by numerous private parties given by inspired hostesses.

The Metropolitan Opera appears here under the auspices of the Atlanta Music Festival Association, Inc., in cooperation with the Atlanta Junior League.

Following the performance, The Capital City Club was the scene of its annual after-opera supper, with Met stars delighting diners with impromptu musical renditions.

SAT ONE OUT

According to rumor, a clique of opera-goers repeated an annual custom of leaving the performance for one act, which they sat out in the Red Carpet cocktail lounge of the Georgian Terrace Hotel.

By the time the spotlights were turned on over the marquee at the theater, the verandah of the Georgian Terrace Hotel, across the street, was lined with hotel residents and their guests, who had "ringside seats" for the arrival of socialities and celebrities.

Peachtree Street was jammed with traffic. Those without tickets drove by to see the fun. Pedestrians snapped pictures with Brownie cameras and ogled the handsome spring formals.

Merriment reigned when an elegantly gowned matron arrived blithely unaware that the price tag was hanging from the mink stole!

Speculation is rife concerning the identity of the matron who telephoned the laundry 14 times to ask whether her husband's favorite dress shirt would be delivered in time for opera.

First nighters glimpsed upon arrival were: Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Reynolds arriving with their visitors, Mrs. Kathleen Little Pitts of Ocilla and Mrs. Julian de Bruyn Kops of Cleveland, Ohio. Mrs. Reynolds wore pale blue chiffon with a mink stole, Mrs. Pitts wore a shocking pink gown with deeper pink slippers while Mrs. de Bruyn Kops chose a blue and turquoise print. Mrs. Reynolds heard numerous compliments during the evening on the coffee at which she honored her guests Monday.

Dr. and Mrs. Calhoun McDougall, greeting other opera fans, Mrs. McDougall wearing a pink gown accented with matching lace tiers . . . Mr. and Mrs. George Craft accepting a program, Mrs. Craft wearing yellow chiffon with a yellow velvet sash . . . Mrs. Hagood Clarke receiving compliments on her new orchid beaded sheath gown . . . Mrs. Maynard Smith looking regal in pink chiffon topped with a bodice of pink sequins and crystals, arriving with her mother, Mrs. B. S. Miller, who wore a becoming gown of dawn gray lace . . . Mr. and Mrs. Ward Wight Jr., chatting with friends, Mrs. Wight gowned in a stylish multi-colored print.

NOTED among prominent visitors was Mrs. Calhoun Witham of Augusta, who attended opening night with Mrs. Stuart Witham Sr. She is spending this week with Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Witham III on Peachtree Battle Avenue, and will be playing in the golf tournament at Druid Hills Golf Club between performances.

GLIMPSED: at the Capital City Club after-opera supper, Morton Hodgson Jr., escorting his pretty blond daughter, Pat, gowned in white brocade trimmed with green peau de soie.

A WELL-DRESSED femme fatale is sulking today because a stranger's cigaret damaged her handsome evening gown during intermission. . . . Another is sad because she gave away her opera tickets since her husband was out of town only to have him return in time for the performance.

It was a great opening night from the first operatic note sung to the final cocktail at the Capital City Mirador Room.

In This Age of Jacqueline What Is Your Hairstyle?

By YOLANDE GWIN

Do you dare to wear your hair the way YOU like it or are you a Jackie-addict?

If you're smart you'll wear your crowning glory as you darn well please whether it's in a pony tail (sounds horrible), a chignon (maybe you think you'll look like Scarlett O'Hara) or straight (if you resemble Mona Lisa).

On the other hand it's boring to see every woman looking like she came from the same wig factory.

KENNEDY STYLE

Which all goes to prove that not EVERYBODY is copying the bouffant Kennedy style and very few are going in for the close-cropped Paris shingle.

In fact, Atlanta women turn their thumbs down on hair dictation.

In a quickie poll among some of the pretty ladies around town on their hair-dos, the results were "Myself rather than Jackie" when it comes to choosing a personal hair style.

OLD STYLE

"I wish I could wear my hair like Jackie," said Mrs. Joseph Collins. "I am afraid that I could not get it to look as nice as hers, nor as good as I'd like it to look. I'll just stick to my same old style."

Mrs. Ben Oehlert Jr. said: "I'm not going in for the Jackie style because I don't have enough hair!"

"I like the Jackie style on a very tall young person," said Mrs. Ray Bowling. "I feel that I am not the type so I'm keeping mine the same way—parted in the middle."

PARIS SHINGLE

Said Mrs. Charles Pope: "On her it looks divine! But it is not for me even though it might be the latest style. It just wouldn't do!"

Mrs. Dan Sage Jr., who wears what might be called a "modified" Jackie hair-do, said:

DAILY HAIR-DO

"I'd love it and would be thrilled to have mine look like that all the time, but I just can't. It would mean having to have it fixed every day to be neat and well-groomed and I just can't do that."

"I tried the style once but it was not becoming to me, so I decided not to wear it," was the comment of Mrs. Robert Hodgson Jr.

Mrs. Joseph Raterree thinks the style is very attractive but added that:

"I've been wearing my hair bouffant for years, well at least four—and I never heard of it being the Jackie-style—and I'm going to keep on wearing it. I like it very much."

"I like the style but it won't stay fixed on my head," said Mrs. Lamar Ball Jr. "It will look real nice and pretty for about a day or maybe two days after I leave the beauty parlor, but then—well, my hair is very fine so maybe that's the answer."

Mrs. Wesley Moran Jr. said: "Yes, I wear the Kennedy hair-do and love it. My opinion is that if a style fits you wear it, if not run from it as fast as you can!"

MAINTAIN STANDARDS

So, Atlanta women noted for their beauty and smartness, will maintain this standard regardless of changing hair styles.

Most of them from a quickie poll taken from beauty spots around town favor the close-cropped Paris shingle. It is neat, easy to keep and goes well with both formal and informal clothes.

As one woman said, "It looks good with or without a hat."

Students Get Awards From UDC

Students from 33 schools in the Atlanta area will be awarded Jefferson Davis Medals at a ceremony, Thursday, May 4, at Lena Cox School.

The Atlanta Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, is honoring the students who excelled in an essay contest on "The True Story of Fort Sumter."

Lipstick By the Lapful!

By JUNE WILSON

Somebody said that the eyes are what one is; the mouth what one has become.

These days of the "raccoon" eye and the understated mouth it is possible to keep secret just what you've become, though the chance you take with too-pale lipstick is having people think what you have become is very sick, indeed.

Fashions are often fads, it is style that is important. This is about styling your lips.

You may not yearn to be tall, dark and lipsticky-all-over-your-face, but what you do with your lipstick is important since at close range a person will divide his attention between your lips and your eyes.

Always wear a minimum of two lipstick shades. The first is a deep tone used with your lipstick brush to outline the shape of your mouth.

This is important at all times and if you insist upon the pale shades, it's vital. Do you want to look as though the bottom half of your face has been erased?

FOLLOW THE NATURAL CONTOUR OF YOUR MOUTH! This doesn't mean you can't take a few liberties and add a hint of fullness to the bottom lip or tilt both lips up at the corners . . . but please do it gently.

If you like your upper lip least, practice long before you venture outside your boudair in a mouth that has undergone homemade addition or subtraction.

If you're subtracting, smooth your foundation over your natural lipline first. This makes it less obvious that you aren't taking advantage of all the original equipment.

If you're adding to your upper lip, keep the curves gentle; don't dive into an overdone cupid's bow. It's veddy, veddy 'old hat' nowadays.

The second lipstick is the one you really wear and you fill in your lips with it after you've outlined them.

The best color of all is the clear red. Lips are meant to be generous and red . . . not blue, purple or orange.

True red is the most flattering because it is natural and the color of the blood which pulses through your veins, even if you're a Blueblood.

If you are brave enough to wear orange and purple, still you can wear clear red listick. Makeup, like your clothes, is meant to highlight YOU. Lipsticks that are lavender, orange and bluish just call attention to your costume while the girl is lost in the shuffle.

Apply your lipstick generously then blot it until you have the amount you like best. Don't dot it on or smear a little here and there. This is a habit of sweet little old ladies to whom the wearing of lipstick isn't quite "nice."

Lipstick is the greatest little treasure in the world and it can belong to every woman. Help yourself to a lapful!

MOSSY GREEN JAPANESE SCROLLS DOMINATE ORIENTAL LIVING ROOM
Mrs. Edgar Dunstan in Her Home Included in Wednesday's Decatur Ttour

Edgar Dunstan Home Has Old World Flavor

By JEAN ROONEY

Fifteen foreign students have helped a Decatur couple furnish their new home.

Dr. and Mrs. Edgar Dunstan of 710 Pinetree Dr. have "mothered" foreign students at Agnes Scott, Tech and Emory for many years.

And the appreciative young people have given the Atlantans precious rare art objects in return, to form the focal point of their unusual home.

Mrs. Dunstan, associate professor of Spanish at Agnes Scott College and a doctor of philosophy, and her husband, an Atlanta physician, are world travelers as well.

"And every time I took a trip without my husband, I just had to bring him back lots of presents," the animated, silver-haired teacher, joked.

So their "streamlined traditional" home, as they describe it—of mellow antique brick with black accents—has an international flavor. It will be included in the Decatur Junior Woman's Club home tour, Wednesday, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

TAJ MAHAL

A dainty little replica of Taj Mahal in alabaster is the center of India Corner in the Dunstan's oriental living room.

An Indian student gave the beautiful carving.

A Persian student gave some Persian prints, inlaid with ivory, that form a wall group. And a Japanese friend contributed a beautiful old lacquer plate with mother-of-pearl inlay, that rests on a dainty teakwood table, hand-carved in Hong Kong.

Predominating in the oriental living room are three giant scrolls that Mrs. Dunstan found in Japan. Of the Kakemona school, they are fragile landscapes painted and penned on silk, in mossy-green shades.

"They determined the green color scheme of the room," Mrs. Dunstan explained.

SOUTH AMERICA

A South American den leads off the living room, furnished with memorabilia from the couple's many Latin Amercian trips.

Drawing the eye first is the fireplace of old brick blending softly with chestnut-paneled walls. A Peruvian woman and a llama, carved in wood, walk across the mantle piece. And original oil paintings from South-of-the-Border decorate this mellow room.

A brass fire screen found in the Paris Flea Market gives a French touch to the South American fireplace. And for fun, Mrs. Dunstan placed a camel-saddle stool from Egypt in front of the screen.

ITALIAN BALCONY

An Italian balcony, running the length of the den, looks down two stories on spreading informal gardens.

The traveling couple chose red and white decor and black wrought iron furniture for their Mexican breakfast room.

Bedrooms go French and German. And the recreation room is splashed with travel posters from all over the world.

Opera Star's Diet

Corelli Doesn't Sacrifice Food for Song ---Still Eats High-Caloried Italian Dishes

By PATRICIA DEATON
Atlanta Constitution Food Editor

Most Italian singers give up their craving for the high-caloried dishes of their native land but not Franco Corelli who appeared as Calaf, Timur's son in last night's Met performance of Puccini's "Turandot."

Projecting those high golden tones doesn't prevent the great tenor from enjoying those foods that he is accustomed to eating in Milan, Italy.

The young new tenor is 6 feet 2 inches and weighs slightly over 200 pounds. His attractive, young wife, Loretta says that he indulges in huge helpings of pasta and rice which she usually prepares.

TRAVELING COOK

"Traveling and cooking for your husband has it's disadvantages," she complains. "So many times, kitchens are unavailable, and even if they were available," she continued, "there would be a great problem in locating all of the ingredients."

But, while living in New York, Mrs. Corelli prepares all of her husband's meals, laboriously but lovingly. And the tenor—well, he would rather give up a first course and dessert before missing out on his wife's "pasta Asciutta" or "risotto Milanese" which as he explains in his colorful English "takes away the hole in my stomach."

"We were amazed and a little amused to find Americans ignoring potatoes in their daily menus," pointed out Loretta. "We eat potatoes garnished with sweet butter and freshly grated Parmesan Cheese," she added.

ITALIAN STAPLES

Sometimes the potatoes are baked then pureed and the remaining ingredients for the dish are added.

As for Italian cuisine staples, Loretta is never without olive oil, a variety of cheeses, dried mushrooms, oregano, basil, thyme and the long-grain imported Italian rice. "I have very little trouble finding these ingredients in New York," she explained.

Staff Photo—Guy Hayes

HE DOESN'T GIVE UP HIS FAVORITE DISH
Mr. and Mrs. Franco Corelli Enjoy Southern Sunshine

And since the hefty tenor's cook is highly imaginative, she invented an unusual appetizer which is served in place of the usual antipasto.

RICE SALAD

Tiny segments of organge and lemon are soaked in a little olive oil for about an hour. Just before serving, she adds ripe black Italian olives which have been thoroughly rinsed. The resulting flavor, somewhat piquant, is subtle, and hard to define.

Another more substantial dish prepared in the Corell menage is an "insalata di riso." It is a salad of rice and tuna fish and may be served warm, but is also good when chilled.

INSALATA DI RISO

4 cups rice, cooked
2 large ripe tomatoes
2 tbsps. capers
1 lemon
1 tsp. fresh basil (½ tsp. dried)
2 (6-oz.) can tuna fish, undrained
Freshly ground black pepper

Combine the cooked rice with the tuna fish which has been flaked. Be sure to stir in the oil from the fish. Cut the tomatoes into bite size pieces and add to the mixture. Sprinkle with the capers, basil and pepper. Squeeze the juice of the lemon over the mixture and toss just enough to combine ingredients and flavors.

The dish can be eaten warm in which case the other ingredients are quickly added to the freshly-boiled rice but in Italy it is more often served at room temperature or "fresca" as the Italians would say.

It can also be placed in a mold which has been lightly brushed with oil and allowed to stand for a few hours.

When turned out from the mold the rice can be garnished with chopped black olives and fresh parsley. For best flavor the dish should not be refrigerated.

"When Franco has a performance," pointed out Loretta, "he has lunch at 2:00 in the afternoon. This avoids any cramped or uneasy situations during the performance." After the performance, the Corellis have their third meal of the day. And the Italian food definitely agrees with both of them.

Nurses Find New Medical Discovery Calms Pre-Period Tension, Nerves Relieves Menstrual Cramps, Pain

Helps Ease Women Into Their Periods By Releasing Pressure On Sensitive Female Tissues

New York, N. Y. (Special)—Medical science has developed an astonishing new formula that now does both: calms pre-period tension and nervousness—helps relieve menstrual cramps and pain.

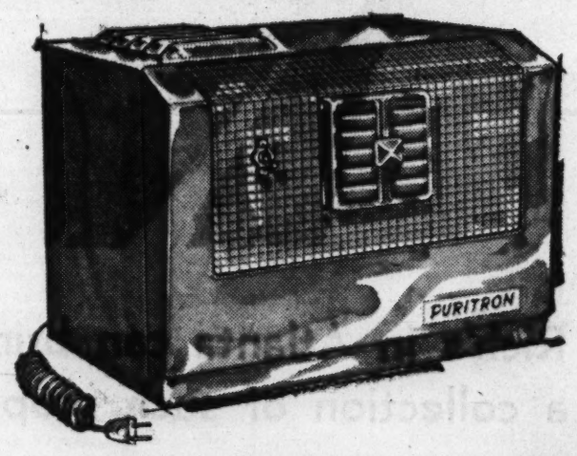

In tests conducted by hundreds of nurses on themselves, many reported nervousness and irritability were calmed. Abdominal bloat, soreness of breasts and fatigue were reduced. Cramps, backache, depression and headache were relieved. So effective is this new medical discovery that Registered Nurses make such statements as, "A great help both before and during menstruation." "Relieves all symptoms." "More effective than other preparations taken—including prescription drugs." All this without narcotics or tranquilizers, and without changing the regularity of the period in any way. Nurses confirm in this test that women actually ease through more comfortable periods.

A secret of this new discovery (called Trendar® Tablets) is the way it releases excess water fluids that doctors know build up in the days before the period. This build-up causes bloat, soreness, pressure on sensitive female tissues. Trendar Tablets work by releasing the excess water fluids so pressure in tissues is relieved and by relieving cramps and pain.

The ingredients in Trendar Tablets are completely safe and effective taken as directed. Trendar Tablets are available at all drug counters without prescription.

NAVY GRADUATE — Mary Alice Mathis of Marietta has completed 10 weeks of basic training at Recruit Training-Women, U.S. Naval Training Center, Bainbridge, Md., and was graduated during a military review. Teen Diet Sets Off A Career

By IDA JEAN KAIN

A teen-ager, on her way to the drugstore to buy a soda, stepped on the scales. The pointer zoomed to 148 pounds. "Heavens," exclaimed this 13-year-old, "I weigh half a ton. She never bought the soda. This was the start of her interest in dietetics.

The heroine of this true story is Dr. A. June Bricker, Executive Secretary of the American Home Economics Association with headquarters in Washington, D.C.

Following the half-ton jolt, our 13-year-old resolved to reduce. By a happy circumstance, a friend of the family, a dietitian, came for a visit. Noting June was thinner, she said, "How wonderful that you are losing weight! Wouldn't you like to learn about foods and nutrition?" The idea appealed to our roly-poly teen-ager, as she explained, because the friend had a lovely figure, a fur coat and wore perfume. Obviously a dietitian was special.

The incident decided her college, for the book sent by the friend was "Nutrition in Health and Disease," by Cooper, Barber, Mitchell. June chose Battle Creek College since Dr. Helen Mitchell, one of the authors, was nutrition professor there.

After graduating, she took her internship at the University of Michigan where she led an active life. Our slim dietitian often played tennis before breakfast and danced every weekend.

Moving on to a new position at Connecticut College, June changed her mode of life completely. She bought her first car, and instead of dancing went driving, and topped off the evening with a sundae. Also, the chef would send up a special dish for her approval . . . every day.

Came Thanksgiving and time for a visit home—June found herself bursting out of her traveling suit. Our dietitian discovered that she had gained 20 pounds! Some quick figuring showed that with every 100 steps she was lifting that ton.

That did it. June resolved that creeping pounds would never again overtake her. By setting a 3-pound limit, she has held the weight line beautifully for a score of years. When the pointer on the scales hits the 135 mark, normal for her 5'5", she slims down to a streamlined 132 pounds.

When June decided to get her doctor's degree, she made food habits the subject of her dissertation for she is convinced that food habits are the key to weight control.

Dr. Bricker, now at high noon in her career, has already had a half-dozen careers rolled into one—hospital dietetics, college food service, institutional management, teacher, community nutritionist and now executive secretary of her professional organization. That half-ton jolt in her teens started quite a career.

OLD-TIME CARRIERS OFFER GOOD ADVICE

One of the exciting and rewarding experiences a boy has on a newspaper route is meeting subscribers, now successful in business and professional careers—who once were carrier-salesmen. Often a boy discovers on his route that the minister, the judge and the doctor—once had a route, too. Usually, men like these as old-time newspaperboys have a continuing interest in the success of the carrier who delivers to them and offer him valuable advice. And any boy is most sure to agree with an old-time carrier, now a successful judge, who said recently, "Being a newspaperboy meant much to me. You are now benefiting by this tremendous opportunity to learn while earning. The Jensen Mystery

By now Jackie Jensen, who suddenly resigned from the Boston Red Sox Saturday night and struck out for the West Coast, may have advanced a logical reason for his abrupt return to retirement.

Surely Jenson has a more feasible explanation for taking off his red sox than he spelled out to a Boston baseball author.

Outlar

"I can't hit any more. I can't run. I can't throw," Jensen reportedly said. "Suddenly my reflexes are gone."

If all major leaguers adopted that attitude, the unemployment list would soar overnight. The big time is crowded with athletes laboring under such handicaps. The mere fact that a man can't run, throw or hit is no excuse for hanging up the spikes. Judging from spring training observation and weekend TV baseball unspectaculars, major leaguers who can run, throw and hit are in a vast minority.

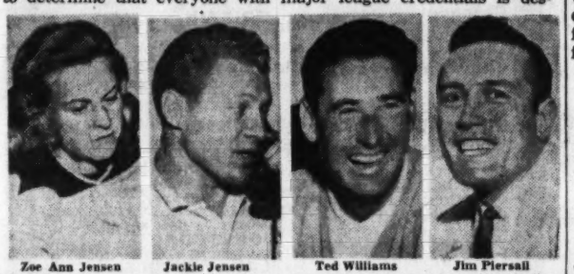

It's understandable why Jensen was in a depressed mood. He was stroking at a .130 clip and had knocked in a total of one run, achievements unbecoming a man who won the MVP award in the A. L. in 1958. But, as Manager Mike Higgins stated, Jensen probably would have emerged from the slump.

—Yawkey Accustomed to No Return

"I don't want to take owner Tom Yawkey's money under false pretenses," Jensen said. "I always returned dollar for dollar."

That's an admirable attitude, but for many years assorted players have been accepting loot from Mr. Yawkey and other owners without returning the value of a 1961 dollar. In a profession where bonus boys are frequently paid $100,000 and never run, hit or throw in the majors, Jensen is being too conscientious.

Then, too, Jensen isn't being fair to the game. You don't have to probe further than the new Washington and Los Angeles' rosters to determine that everyone with major league credentials is desperately needed. In fact, you don't have to probe any further than the Boston roster.

Boston friends say that Jensen walked out because he fears flying. That was a prime motive in his decision to retire before the 1960 season. But that's a high premium to pay, for not even astronauts receive $50,000 annually for flying.

In an interview with Boston writer Bill Liston before departing, Jensen emphasized that flying and a desire to spend more time with his family did not promote his walkout. He also revealed that his psychiatrist, Dr. Roy Menninger, endorsed the decision.

—The Other Jack Came Back

Monday afternoon in Cheyenne, Wyo., Jensen made it clear that, at the moment, he had said all on the topic he intended to say. He was corraled by reporters when the "City of San Francisco" made a stop at the Cheyenne station.

"I have nothing to say," said Jensen.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Jensen, former Olympic diving champ Zoe Ann Olsen, was awaiting arrival of her husband, "Arriving on train in Reno," he had wired from Cleveland. "Don't jump to conclusions."

She intimated that Jack might be back in Boston.

Manager Higgins hopes so, but he doesn't think so. Higgins says he believes that Jensen has played his last game. Higgins confirmed that Jensen had been deeply disturbed over his inability to get going this spring. But the Bosox boss expected the slugger to get off to a slow start after a year's layoff.

"Evidently, he didn't have as much confidence in himself," said Higgins, "as I had in him."

In passing it should be mentioned that Higgins may be the most underrated manager in baseball. You will recall that he once had Jensen, Jim Piersall and Ted Williams chasing fly balls in the same outfield.

It remains to be seen whether the Red Sox will be as fortunate as NBC. The network's Jack came back, but, according to him, he was batting 1.000.

Molloy's Medalist With 80

Matches Start In State Am

Mrs. Sally Molloy, the blonde veteran from Columbus, fired an 80 at Druid Hills Monday to sweep medalist honors in qualifying for the Georgia State Match play tournament.

First-round matches will be played Tuesday and action continues through Saturday when championship finals are scheduled.

Mrs. Molloy posted nine-hole scores of 39-41 to win the medal by one stroke over Lucille Pollard of Macon and three Atlantans, Mrs. Teddy Hayes, Mrs. Grant Wilbanks and Mrs. T. R. Garlington Jr.

Miss Pollard posted 41-40, Mrs. Hayes, 42-39; Mrs. Wilbanks, 40-41, and Mrs. Garlington, 39-42.

Sixth place at 82 went to another strong Atlanta contender, Mrs. Grace Lyons. She shot 43-39. And next in line came Mrs. Robert Givens, also of Atlanta, with 42-41.

Mrs. Molloy, long one of the been considered a pretournament favorite.

A total of 133 players qualified for the tournament which was won last year by Barbara Green of Eastman, now a touring professional. Play was marred by frequent showers.

Two of Atlanta's strongest entries, City champion Dot Clay and Ansley's Mrs. Grady McDonald qualified with 85s.

Youngest player in the field is

Four-And-Twenty's Picked To Win Trial

Hes' a Pistol On Post Today

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The luck of the draw Monday set up a special test of early speed for the Derby Trial Tuesday, final prep race before Saturday's 87th running of the Kentucky Derby.

In the list of 10 Trial entries, all of them Derby eligibles, the three favorites were split two and one on post positions. All three are known for early speed and may display it in the $15,000-added one mile feature.

The Trial favorite, Alberta Ranches' Four-and-Twenty, drew the ninth slot in the starting gate, and will be flanked only by the second choice, Fred W. Hooper's Crozier, on the outside.

But the hometown horse, J. Graham Brown's He's A Pistol, drew the post position and a wide open chance to race down the rail if he can make the getaway quick enough.

The race starts from a chute, with a full half mile of straightaway for the sprint test before the horses hit the turn. And early speed may be important if a big field runs Saturday in the Derby.

The Derby, scheduled for 4:30 p.m., EST, will be televised and carried nationally by radio (CBS).

Each of three horses will be carrying top weight of 122 pounds for the Trial, including their probable Derby jockeys. Johnny Longden will be aboard Four-and-Twenty, Braulio Baeza on Crozier, and Doug Dodson on He's A Pistol.

The remaining seven nominees, starting from the No. 2 post position, are: Injun, Gayburn, Star X, Gay's Pal, Prince Nerida, Harry N., and Dr. Miller. Willie Shoemaker will ride Dr. Miller, carrying 116 pounds.

Around Churchill Downs as the late arrivals of the expected big Derby field were checking in, there was a lot of chatter about a brilliant workout by Carry Back.

Clockers caught Carry Back in 2:06 2-5 over the mile and a quarter Derby distance this morning, and jockey Johnny Sellers commented later "I was flabbergasted he did it so easily."

Carry Back "had a lot left at the finish," Sellers reported.

CLEMSON'S PATTERSON BADLY HURT IN CRASH

BLACKSBURG, S.C. (AP)—Larry (Choppy) Patterson, 21-year-old Clemson basketball star, was injured seriously Monday night in an automobile accident.

Patterson was rushed to a hospital at Gaffney, where his injuries were described as a fractured pelvis and possible internal injuries. He was later transferred to a Greenville hospital.

Fraser, Bueno Win

VIENNA (AP)—Neale Fraser of Australia and Maria Esther Bueno of Brazil won the singles finals of the international Park Club tennis tournament Monday.

Indiana Giant (6-9) Caldwell Will Play Basketball at Tech

Math Major Hit at 19.9

By AL THOMY

Georgia Tech basketball coach John (Whack) Hyder Monday bagged the big man he has lacked in recent years.

Signed to a grant-in-aid was James William (Jimmy) Caldwell, 6-9, 205, of Lawrenceburg, Indiana.

Jimmy Caldwell

Caldwell comes highly recommended and not as a complete stranger. His father, Bill Caldwell, was a football manager at Tech in the late 1930s and graduated with a BS degree in chemical engineering. He and Hyder were campus friends.

Young Jimmy was a standout in the tough Indiana prep league. He hit 50.3 per cent of his field goal attempts last season and scored a total of 439 points for a 19.9 average. His best effort was a 39-point night, a school record.

He is also an excellent student; in fact, a straight-A pupil who was in the top one-fourth of the top 1 per cent in the National Merit Scholarship test. At Tech he'll major in mathematics.

In addition to numerous prep state's outstanding stars, had scholastic honors, Caldwell found time to letter in basketball, football, baseball and track at Lawrenceburg Consolidated High School.

Fifty colleges and universities—including Ohio State, Cincinnati, Duke, Kentucky, N.C. State and Purdue—were interested enough to offer scholarships. Oddly enough, he attended the nationally televised Tech-Kentucky game as a guest of the Wildcats—and then ended up at Tech.

The astute young Indianan said school work, not athletics dictated his choice of higher education. "I'll need that degree more than basketball," he told the Lawrenceburg Register.

His reason for coming South: "I had to make up my mind—maybe it was southern hospitality." Caldwell said the fact that his father is a Tech graduate did not force him in to a decision.

When asked to name his best games, he replied: "The ones we won."

Lawrenceburg fans were disappointed Caldwell decided to continue his career in the south, but they were reminded that another Indianan, Roger Kaiser of Dale, twice won all-America honors at Tech.

"We are real happy to get Caldwell," said Hyder Monday. "He's a good one—the big guy we've been looking for in recent years—and his size and ability under the basket will surely prove an asset to us. As I said, we're fortunate to get him."

Caldwell is expected to play in a couple of prep all-star games before matriculating at The Flats in the fall.

CRACKERS' SOLID INFIELD AIDS RISE TO LEAGUE LEAD

By CHARLIE ROBERTS
Constitution Sports Writer

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—Gene Wallace, Don LeJohn and Bart Shirley are fellows who don't need to be preached to about mending the errors of their ways.

The big three of Atlanta's impregnable infield defensive fortress have made only five miscues while handling 397 chances in 20 games.

"That, of course, is one big reason why we are leading the league so far," grinned Manager Rube Walker in the lobby of the Albert Pike Hotel Monday after being informed the opening game of the Atlanta-Little Rock series had been rained out.

"Our tight infield defense has been the most outstanding phase of play for us without a doubt. I've never seen infielders perform any better than Shirley, LeJohn and Wallace have so far.

Glove artist LeJohn has handled 51 fielding chances, 35 on ground balls, and made only one error.

"The amazing part of it is that Shirley never played a game of professional baseball until this year, and everyone said a class AA league like the Southern Association would be far too tough for him.

The amazing Shirley has had 104 chances, 58 of them assists, and has made two miscues.

Second baseman Wallace, averaging a whopping 7 chances a game for 18 games, has made two bobbles in handling 131 chances including 73 assists.

'MY REFLEXES ARE GONE'

Jensen Claims He's Through, Blasts Boston Newspaperman

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Boston Red Sox outfielder Jackie Jensen said Monday night he was through playing baseball.

"I've had it," he told a newsman. "I know when my reflexes are gone and I'm not going to be any 25th man on the ball club."

This was the first word from Jensen on his sudden walkout.

Jensen got only six hits in 46 at-bats for a .130 batting average in the first 12 games.

He took a midnight train out of Cleveland Saturday, without an official word to anybody, and has stayed away from newsmen. He is en route to Reno, Nev., to join his wife, former Olympic diving champion Zoe Ann Olsen.

She said, when she learned Jackie was heading home: "I'm just speculating, but I have to think Jack feels he's hurting Boston's chances."

The Union Pacific Railroad streamliner, City of San Francisco, stopped in Ogden, Utah, for a few minutes. Sports writer Ensign Ritchie of the Ogden Standard Examiner went to Jensen's compartment.

The conductor said to Ritchie: "I don't think you want to talk to him. You'll probably get a ball bat on the head. He's mad at the world."

But Jackie had gone into the station. Ritchie walked up to him at the magazine stand. "I told him who I was and he was quite cold. But he warmed up after a while. I told him what Boston baseball writer Bill Liston had said and he said Liston was a double-crosser and said anything he (Liston) got was through a keyhole. He said he had never talked to Liston."

Liston quoted Jensen as saying:

"I can't hit any more. I can't run. I can't throw. Suddenly my reflexes are gone. I am quitting only because I have too much pride to be the 25th man on the Red Sox."

In Kansas City, Red Sox Manage Mike Higgins awaited a call from Jensen. He said he hoped Jensen would play some more but added: "I don't think Jackie will ever play again."

CAN ARNIE BEAT PLAYER IN DOLLAR DERBY?

Gary Player

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Gary Player, the very British young man from South Africa, already has won much more money than any foreigner to try American golf. But that's only half his ambition.

He wants to become the first foreigner to lead the dollar derby within these shores.

At the moment, Player is embroiled in a contest with golf's biggest name in America—Arnold Palmer—for the honor of No. 1 money winner.

Gary is more than $7,000 ahead of Palmer. But a little more slicing of the lead—such as came Sunday when Palmer won the Texas Open's $4,300 first money here while Player managed only $651.25—and Gary's ambitions might be dashed.

The next battle will be at Las Vegas where Player and Palmer are entered in the Tournament of Champions starting Thursday.

Back in the late 40s, Bobby Locke, also a South African, came to America at the age of 29 and proceeded to win about $50,000 in one full year of campaigning and parts of two others. Locke's biggest year was 1947, when he took $24,327.50 and was second in money winnings.

Player, who is 25, has won $47,068.54 this year, and in 68 tournaments played in America over a period of five years has grabbed off $97,368.29. He has averaged almost $1,500 per tournament.

Gary's income from golf and sidelines this year should be around $100,000. He'll spend a lot of it because he is out about $500 per week making the American tour. His wife and two children travel with him and he also has a governess on his payroll.

He has a connection with a golf manufacturer that pays him a nice stipend. His exhibitions—he will play about 15—will bring him about $750 each. He gets royalties from a golf glove and golf bag, shoes and shirts and is cashing in on television. A Gary Player golf set will go on the market, probably next year. Golfers have been known to get $30,000 a year out of this.

The young man from Johannesburg is doing quite well for himself and has been the year's sensation in the world's golf. He has finished in the money in 33 straight tournaments.

Player is popular with his fellow players as well as the crowd and everybody loves his British accent which causes him to say "the Mahsters"—which he won when Palmer bogeyed the last hole—and to term the Kentucky Derby at Louisville the "Darby."

Arnold Palmer

Gary also is learning about this privacy business—whether an athlete in the public eye has any privacy. He thinks the bloke certainly does, but it's doubtful if ever again he refuses to say why he fired his caddy as was the case at Houston.

Gary did that and notice of it went up on the scoreboard. It caused a sensation. The writers tried to get him to say why. He declined, saying it was a matter of privacy.

But after thinking it over, a week later, Gary wired his paper back home—he also does a newspaper column—that he fired the caddy because the latter didn't approve of his putting methods. He still pays the caddy to chauffeur for him.

But Player's big battle is with Arnold Palmer—not with caddies. "That suits me just fine," says Gary.

Gardner's Double Tips Chisox, 6-5

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Billy Gardner's line double, which just eluded the diving Minnie Minoso in left field, drove in Jim Lemon with the winning run with two out in the last of the ninth Monday and gave the Minnesota Twins a 6-5 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Lemon was on via his fourth single and he came all the way around on Gardner's hit before 5,777 fans. It was Gardner's second run batted in of the game and of the season.

Turk Lown was tagged with the loss, his second against no victories, while Ray Moore won his second game against a single loss.

The Twins tied the score in the sixth inning when Reno Bertoia beat out a high chopper to third base and scored on Lenny Green's double to left.

This glass highway shows you the biggest advance in tires today...

THE BIG EDGE!

A highway paved with glass! High-speed cameras whirring beneath it as a car drives, turns, stops on the glass! Thousands of pictures taken from under the road show you, for the first time, where today's tires work most, wear most. Show you how a radical new tire tread design developed by B.F.Goodrich gives the modern motorist a big edge in mileage and safety. Read below how this great advance in tire design puts more rubber where the wear is—in THE BIG EDGE!

TODAY'S DRIVING—with new power and suspension systems, faster speeds on superhighways—puts terrific loads on tires' outside edges, little in the center. Look at your own tires, and you'll see wear occurs first on the outside ribs. This photo shows a tire turning as you normally see it. Now look at it from underneath.

TURNING A CORNER. Note the terrific distortion in the outer ribs of this turning tire as seen from beneath the road. You can see why there's as much wear taking a corner at 13 mph as in traveling 10 miles on the highway at 40 mph! The new Big Edge tread has more rubber in the outside edges to fight this wear.

PASSING ANOTHER CAR. This photo, also shot from under the glass highway, shows that even a gradual turn puts greater loads on the outside ribs. (Note distortion.) See again that the center ribs, where other tires concentrate their rubber, are the "dead center" of least action and least wear.

STOPPING. See in this under-the-road picture that only a small area of the tire stops the car. Again, the outside edges take the worst beating. That's where B.F.Goodrich puts up to twice as much rubber as other major-brand, first-line tires. It's The Big Edge—a big edge in safety and mileage for you!

NNP-98

Other tires have narrow shoulders, as this diagram shows. The rubber is concentrated in the "dead center" where action and wear are least.

BFG Silvertown gives you, for the same money, up to twice as much rubber in the outside ribs, where tires work most, wear most... The Big Edge!

Bulldogs Host to SIC, SEC

Georgia, Houston Top Strong Field

By TOM STODDARD

Georgia hosts the 24th annual Southern Intercollegiate and Southeastern Conference Golf Meet at the Athens Country Club May 4-6, but the Bulldog golfers may turn out to be less hospitable than, say, Amy Vanderbilt.

They may be selfish and win the thing themselves.

Six-times SEC champion, Georgia has never won the SIC, which is held in conjunction with the conference meet each year. The undefeated Bulldogs are rated an excellent chance to take both this year, even though some of the visitors may be inclined to be boorish about such things as "After you."

Eddie Sams

Four of the top five teams in the 1960 NCAA tournament—champion Houston, third place Oklahoma State, fourth place Florida and number five finisher North Carolina, are entered.

It's the powerful Houston group that figures to give the Bulldogs and the rest of the field the most anxiety. Though the Cougars have not been a power at the Southern Intercollegiate, they have won the NCAA, team and individual, for the past four years.

Dick Crawford, NCAA champion himself for the past two years, will lead Houston's bid. Crawford might feel a little frustrated about his two previous tries in Athens. He missed the cutoff last year, and was 297 on 72 holes the year before, far down the list.

Individual honors at the Athens tournament could go to any number of people. Last year's winner, Cobby Ware of Georgia, has graduated, as has LSU's Don Essig, who forfeited the playoff to Ware after tying him at 283.

That would seem to leave things pretty nice for Frank Beard of Florida, Crawford and teammate Joe Goldstrand and LSU's Howell Fraser, all except Crawford high finishers last year.

Georgia, loaded with five sophomores and bound to get better, may have the man who's good enough for the third year in a row. If a Bulldog should happen to take individual honors, it would be the first time since the tourney went to medal play that a school had furnished the individual winner three times straight.

Bob Moser took the title for Georgia in 1959, and Ware followed him the year after. Any one of six Bulldogs has a chance this year, on a marvelously balanced team.

Best prospects appear to be for David Boyd, a sophomore from Jackson, who's been playing No. 1 this year, and knows the Athens course thoroughly from top to bottom. Other Georgians—Boog Layton, Billy Womack, Jimmy Gabrielson, Eddie Sams and Billy Gibson—also take an advantage in over visitors with their knowledge of the course.

There's no question there'll be a lot of shooting and hoping for the individual trophy, for it fortells in many instances a touch of greatness. Former winners include Arnold Palmer (then of Wake Forest), and Billy Maxwell (North Texas State).

Every 14 minutes State Farm pays a claim for one of its Georgia policyholders!

Low cost is only one reason why more Georgia drivers insure with State Farm than with any other company. Good claim service is another big reason why these 167,000 people chose State Farm. Last year, State Farm paid more dollars on more claims to more Georgia people than any other car insurer. How many? Over 38,000 claims —a total of $5,600,000! And most important, these claims are paid fast and fairly. State Farm makes sure by asking each policyholder if he is satisfied with the way his claim was handled. Of all those replying, 99% are satisfied completely! And the company personally contacts the other 1% in an effort to correct any problems and make them satisfied too. Wouldn't you like this kind of claim service? Lower rates! State Farm rates are lower than those of most other companies. In fact, one out of two careful drivers in Georgia may save $10, $20, $30 or more with State Farm. Wouldn't you like savings like these? More agents! State Farm has more full-time agents and salaried claims men than any other company. So you're always sure of getting "hometown service" wherever you drive, not only here in Georgia, but anywhere in the U.S. and Canada. Wouldn't you like protection like this? World's largest! For these good reasons, more than 6,000,000 car owners have chosen State Farm and made it the world's largest car insurer for 19 years straight. Why not find out how you can save, how you can benefit, with State Farm. Call your nearby State Farm agent. He's listed in the column on the opposite page. Call him today, won't you?

Hawkins Delegated In Tech-Tiger Tilt

Marse Joe Pittard has nominated a Sandlapper to hurl for Georgia Tech against Clemson here Tuesday afternoon.

Pittard will go with his usual lineup of first baseman Richard Conliff, second baseman John Gher, shortstop Billy Williamson, third baseman Jerry Martin, catcher Sam Perry and outfielders Roger Kaiser, Charles Thompson and Mike Tomasovich.

The Jackets improved their tempo last week by sweeping a pair from Tennessee and losing two at Kentucky, one of which they came agonizingly close to winning.

After the non-conference interlude with Clemson, which, like Tech, is having an off season, the Jackets take on contender Florida in a pair here Friday and Saturday.—THOMY

Wilson Belgians Win Two Races

Billy Wilson, flying new imported Belgian pigeons, swept first and second places in two special pigeon races Sunday.

Wilson's birds took a 200-mile special from Waycross in speeds of 1174.05 and 1173.75 yards per minute, over 10 yards per minute better than the third-place finisher, Gerald Barry. Paul Fitzgerald was fourth and Allen Ivey fifth.

In a 100-mile race from Unadilla, a Wilson bird won at the speed of 1426.40 yards per minute, and another finished second with 1422.45. The third-place finisher, Joe Graham, recorded a 1410.67 speed, and Otis Byce was fourth.

Tigers Leading

Northside High School, keyed by a pair of 40s by Sam Franklin and Billy Gwyn, took a four-stroke lead in the 3-AAA golf tournament Monday at Bobby Jones Golf Course. Hoke Almond of Bass, Grady's Joe Segal and Southwest's Don Cole were tied for medalist honors with 37s.

TEAM SCORES: Northside, 165; Southwest, 169; Murphy, 188; North Fulton, 191.

INDIVIDUAL: Hoke Almond, Bass, 37; Joe Segal, Grady, 37; Don Cole, Southwest; Terry Massar, O'Keefe, 39; Tommy Sharon, Southwest, 39; Sam Franklin, Northside, 40; Billy Gwyn, Northside, 40; Eddie Hoard, Northside, 41.

CITY TRACK FINALS BEGIN TODAY

Finals in varsity field events and preliminary races in all varsity running events will be held for city schools at Grady Stadium Monday afternoon.

Runners qualifying Monday will compete in the region finals at Grady Friday night, for the right to attend the state meet in Athens May 12-13.

Region 4-AAA, which will complete its running events with the city schools Friday night, will hold preliminaries and field events on Friday afternoon.

The city tennis doubles competition, rained out Monday, will be held Tuesday at Bitsy Grant Tennis Center.

LEE'S .600 TOPS 3-AAA

DeKalb, Moon Eye Cherokee; Headland, Hapeville Try Again

By PAUL ATKINSON
Southwest DeKalb High School

shoots for the Moon in 4-AAA baseball Tuesday at Ponce de Leon Park.

Panther Coach Ed Meyer has nominated lefthander Phil Moon to open the championship series with Cherokee. Winner of this 1:30 p.m. game meets Griffin in the second game.

Cherokee Coach Charlie Howell named righthander Cotten Frady, a lanky fellow with a 9-1 report card. Griffin, of course, will work the little righthanded veteran, Bobby Gene Pierce.

Meanwhile, 2-AA North hopes to again open its playoff tournament at College Park. Rain came Monday in the first inning of the Hapeville-Headland game. The whole schedule's pushed back a day, with Headland-Hapeville going Tuesday at 4 p.m.

And in 3-AAA, Sylvan, with the league's leading hitter in outfielder Bob Lee, goes for the Western clincher Tuesday at Brown, Murphy, buoyed by .433-hitting Jimmy Battle, has a visit at East Atlanta and can also clinch the Eastern championship.

Lee is swatting an even .600 on 12 hits in 20 at-bats. A Sylvan colleague, Tommy Roberts, is tops in runs-scored with 18, while George's W. B. Norton and Roosevelt's Paul Snyder have the most hits with 16 each.

Sylvan's Butch Aiken, a power hitter, has driven in 20 runs; Lee, 17; and Grady's Larry Peek, 15. Peek is the circuit's best at homers with four; Northside's Hank Stelljes leads in doubles with four; and Snyder and Northside's Walter Pirkle have three triples apiece.

GRAND JURY PRESENTMENTS—MARCH-APRIL, 1961, TERM

HONORABLE JESSE M. WOOD, Judge
FULTON SUPERIOR COURT
ATLANTA, GEORGIA

We, the Grand Jury of Fulton County Superior Court for the March-April, 1961 term, respectfully make the following presentments:

INCREASED COST OF COUNTY GOVERNMENT

1. This Grand Jury has confined its investigation of this subject to the period 1941 through 1960, for during this twenty-year period the greatest increases in county expenditures have taken place. Our findings relate to all county functions except schools, i.e., all departments which derive their operating funds principally from ad valorem tax revenues.

2. In 1941 county expenditures were $4,850,651.00; in 1960 the total had increased to $21,192,370.00, or an increase of 337%. During the twenty-year period, population of the county increased from 400,954 to 556,326 or an increase of 39%. The per resident cost increased from $12.09 to $38.09.

In 1941 the county ad valorem rate was 13½ mills; in 1947 it was increased to 22 mills by vote of the people. During the ensuing years, the rate remained constant or decreased to 19 mills. The 1960 rate was 19¾ mills.

We have found through investigation and interview, visits to county installations and conferences with department heads, four principal reasons for this increase.

1. Expanded services, especially in the fields of hospital, health and welfare (45% of total increase).

2. Cost of bond retirement program (36% of total increase).

3. Cost of employe pensions, social security and insurance (15% of total increase).

4. Reduced purchasing power of the dollar resulting from inflation.

By far the largest single item in the county's 1960 expenditures was the $5,522,497.00 required for the operation of Grady Memorial Hospital. This figure represents approximately 87% of the public funds allocated to the hospital, the remaining 13% having been paid by DeKalb County. Of the total of all Fulton County expenditures, slightly more than one-fourth was utilized for hospital care alone. Health and welfare programs of the county required the expenditure of an additional $3,430,206.00 during 1960. Combined, these three services cost a total of $8,982,703.00 in 1960 compared to a total of only $613,-381.00 in 1941.

Retirement of county bonds in 1960 required $2,787,847.00 in payment of principal and interest, whereas in 1941 the county had no bonded indebtedness.

Employe pensions, social security and insurance in 1960 cost a total of $1,128,480.00 compared to only $4,608.00 in 1941. In the opinion of the Grand Jury, these benefits to employes are consistent with those paid by private business, but at the same time represent 15% of the increased costs of county government.

The fourth significant factor revealed by this investigation is that of inflation. Based on the consumer's price index of 62.9 in 1941 and 126.5 in 1960, it can readily be seen that the same goods and services purchased for $1.00 in 1941 cost more than $2.00 in 1960. By applying these figures to county operating costs, comparative dollar outlay in 1960 of $21,192,370.00 was slightly more than double the $9,755,143.00 value (of 1960 dollars) spent in 1941, and the per resident cost of $38.09 was an increase of slightly more than one-half of the $24.31 value spent in 1941.

During the period, the average number of county employes on the payroll ranged from 1,074 in 1941 to 1,303 in 1960. Their average monthly pay in 1941 was $166.38 as compared to $301.91 in 1952 and $343.46 in 1960. These figures compare favorably with independent service agencies.

To conclude, (1) requested services 45%, (2) bond retirement 36% and (3) employe pensions 15%, account for 96% of the increase in county expenditures.

It is the opinion of this Grand Jury that the fiscal affairs of Fulton County are managed by competent personnel, and that the taxpayers are receiving good value for their tax dollar. Soundness of the county's fiscal policies is reflected in its AA credit rating, one enjoyed by few counties nationwide.

The spirit of cooperation demonstrated by department heads has been of inestimable benefit to this Grand Jury in the conduct of its investigation of county services and expenditures.

PROBATION OFFICE

The cost of maintaining prisoners in the county jail is approximately $3.00 per day, whereas the cost of supervising probationers is 45c per day. Although it is not the intent of this body to suggest probation of dangerous or ineligible prisoners, it is our opinion that enlargement of the facilities of the probation office, and more careful screening of prisoners eligible for probation, would result in substantial monetary savings.

PURCHASING DEPARTMENT

It has been brought to the attention of this Grand Jury that the county purchasing law permits any and all firms to bid on county purchases, without regard to their qualifications to deliver products of acceptable quality. We feel that this law should be amended so as to limit vendors to those known to be able to deliver products which meet acceptable standards of quality. Whenever practicable, preference should be given to vendors who are taxpayers in Fulton County.

MOTOR VEHICLE TITLE LAW

This Grand Jury urges the enactment of a law by the General Assembly requiring proof of ownership of all motor vehicles of Georgia residents and that such law require proof of payment of ad valorem taxes or payment of ad valorem taxes at the time such vehicles are registered. This law would eliminate delinquent collections, thereby saving the county government thousands of taxpayers' dollars.

ASSESSMENTS OF PERSONAL PROPERTY OF RENTAL UNITS

This Grand Jury recommends the passage of a law requiring the landlord or agent to report to the tax commissioner's office on the tax reporting date a list of all tenants.

An assessment based on a percentage of the annual rentals per resident would be equitable to the assessments automatically made against real property owners, based on a percentage of his assessed values. This law would be consistent in arriving at an equalized valuation of tax assessment and payment of revenue to sustain county government functions, thereby reducing the tax burden of home owners.

REAL PROPERTY TITLE LAW

This Grand Jury recommends that a real property law be passed making it mandatory in conveying title on real property, except a loan need, upon recording there shall be shown on the instrument the mailing address of the new titleholder and that a suitable copy be furnished the County Board of Tax Assessors, from which pre-prepared tax returns of the new owner can be tabulated to include new and/or additional property. This would result in a substantial saving of tax dollars and a more equitable distribution of the tax load.

This law would enable pre-prepared tax returns to be carried forward from year to year without requiring the majority of property owners to make an annual trip to the tax commisoner's office.

Business and professional returns would require special handling annually due to the many changes in improvement of real estate, inventories and equipment.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WELFARE

The need for either a mandatory or permissive "lien law" in Georgia to accomplish two major purposes came to the attention of this Grand Jury. There are many recipients of Public Assistance, especially Old Age Assistance, who own their own homes valued not in excess of $5,000.00 and while needy, they devise their property to children and others. If provision to attach their property enforceable upon their death were provided, tax money expended on such grants frequently could be recovered. Also, there are people who own their own homes, sometimes valued in excess of $5,000.00 who are not eligible under present regulations, but are needy in that they do not have any current income or resources for their livelihood. If a lien could be placed against their property, recovery of assistance grants could be made upon their death likewise.

More public housing units need to be allocated for welfare recipients. Recipients frequently are not able to finance loans in order to purchase homes and with the grants being paid them find it extremely difficult to rent sanitary and adequate housing from private owners.

There appears to be the need for some improvement in the machinery now existing for apprehension of deserting fathers of minor children, also securing support payments from them. More cooperation of law enforcement agencies and officials in notifying the Welfare Department when it is known that a welfare recipient is violating laws affecting their eligibility for Public Assistance would be most helpful.

The Community Council Atlanta Area, a newly organized planning and research organization, is qualified to make studies concerning social welfare problems and to make recommendations as to how both public agencies and voluntary agencies should accept responsibility for handling problems of needy people. Continuous use of the facilities of this organization by all welfare, health, educational and related agencies in the community is urged.

The Welfare Department by law is not authorized to handle many of the social problems of persons who are ineligible for assistance. It is recommended that provision be made whereby these persons can be helped with their problems more effectively by other community agencies and organizations.

JAILS

An inspection of all of the jails in the municipalities located outside Atlanta revealed conditions ranging from excellent to very poor. The jails in Palmetto and Alpharetta were found to be in deplorable and unsanitary condition and in need of immediate repair or renovation. The jails in Roswell, Fairburn, Union City, College Park, East Point and Hapeville were satisfactory in most respects, in providing adequate facilities for detention of prisoners.

HEALTH CENTER

The physical condition of the Alpharetta Health Center leaves much to be desired, and in the opinion of this body should be closed and its records and facilities transferred to the Roswell Health Center.

ORDINARY'S OFFICE

The Ordinary of Fulton County has the responsibility of approving surety bonds, most of which are placed through licensed agents with various insurance companies. The procedure followed in placing these bonds does not appear to be on a par with the impartiality shown in carrying out other functions of the Ordinary's office.

We recommend that a panel of several agents be designated, all of whom should be expert in this type of work, from whom applicants having no preference of their own, might select an agent.

In carrying out the function of appointment of guardians wherein considerable amounts of property are involved, we urge the selection of trust agencies, in the belief that they are best qualified to serve in such cases.

PARKING

The immediate need for adequate parking facilities in close proximity to the Courthouse has been pointed out by several previous Grand Juries in their presentments. This Grand Jury recognizes the need as a serious one, in that the volume of business transacted in the Courthouse and adjoining county buildings is constantly increasing.

During the term of this body, the plan, to be sponsored jointly by Fulton County and the State; was explained by the Chairman of the Fulton County Commissioners. We commend the Board of County Commissioners for their initiative in pursuing a solution to the problem and urge action to acquire the needed property before the present opportunity is lost.

SOLICITOR GENERAL AND STAFF

The tasks of this Grand Jury have been diverse, and in some instances confusing, to these laymen charged with representing the citizens of Fulton County. We wish to publicly express our appreciation to the Solicitor General of Fulton County, Mr. Paul Webb, and his Assistants, whose counsel and cooperation in all matters addressing themselves to this body, have been unreserved at every instance. Their thorough knowledge of county affairs and their patience in assisting this jury in its investigations have been invaluable.

CONTINUITY OF GRAND JURIES

This Grand Jury strongly recommends the adoption of a plan insuring the continuity of Grand Juries from one term to the next. The investigation of this jury into the many phases of county government has, of necessity, been somewhat less than complete due to lack of time. It is our opinion that every Grand Jury should include a committee to carry on investigative functions from one term to the next, as a means of insuring continuity of action and of eliminating duplication of effort by succeeding Grand Juries.

PUBLICATION

We respectfully request that these presentments be published promptly in The Atlanta Journal, The Atlanta Constitution: The Fulton County Daily Report, and The Atlanta Daily World not later than May 3, 1961.

Tuberculosis Halts Bonnies' Tom Stith

Star Out Until Fall of '62; Braves' Crandall Said OK

From Press Dispatches

All-America basketball star Tom Stith, hospitalized last week, is suffering from a pulmonary tuberculosis infection, an Orlean, N.Y., hospital spokesman said Monday.

Stith, who led St. Bonaventure to a 24-4 season, was the first-round draft choice of the New York Knickerbockers of the National Basketball Association.

The hospital official said tests confirmed an earlier diagnosis.

The 21-year-old native of New York City will be transferred to a tuberculosis hospital in Livingston County for further treatment.

Stith's physician said: "Given any break at all, I would say Tom could be ready to return to the game perhaps a year from this fall."

He said Stith was stricken in one lung.

Stith, who was married April 8, scored 820 points for St. Bonaventure last season and was named to the Associated Press all-America team.

"This is a tremendous disappointment to us and to Stith, also," said Knicks' president Ned Irish. "We felt he was the best player the Knicks had an opportunity to select in the draft for many years."

VON ELM---WHO ONCE BEAT JONES---DIES AT 60

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP) — Lung cancer Monday took the life of George (Gix) Von Elm, roaring 20s golf star whose proudest moment came in 1926 when he defeated the great Bobby Jones for the U.S. Amateur title.

Von Elm, 60, won his first golf title while still a student at Salt Lake City's West High School. In 1924, he finished runnerup to Jones in the National Amateur. The next year, Jones eliminated Von Elm in the semi-finals, but the Utahan got his revenge a year later.

In Atlanta, Jones said he was "shocked" to hear of Von Elm's death. "I knew he had undergone an operation," the Grand Slam champion said, "but it was my understanding that he was on the road to recovery.

"I remember quite well the match he won from me. It was at Baltusrol, and was an extremely hard-fought match. The score was 2 and 1."

Jones had seen little of Von Elm in the past 20 years. "Matter of fact," said Jones, "I had a hard time locating George when my book came out last year. I wanted to send him a copy. I finally did locate him in Idaho and we corresponded several times after that."

Von Elm collected a flock of California amateur titles and in 1925, he and Walter Hagen tied for third in the British Open.

WOMEN MAKING OUTDOOR FUN FAMILY VENTURE

By CHARLES ELLIOTT
Constitution Outdoor Columnist

These women are certainly the most amazing of all Divine creations. Every now and then a guy stumbles on some fact, or bit of news about the complex sex, that makes him realize how utterly incredible the gals really are.

Charles Elliott

I was rounding up a few scraps of information for Joe Cummings, who is the local spotlight for Newsweek, on the growing interest our lassies seem to be taking in such matters as fishing, and the rods, reels and other equipment relative to the sport. I was already aware that the fairer half of the human race had invaded the lakes and streams for the purpose of matching their intuition and instincts against finny wisdom. But the extent to which they are moving into other outdoor activities really knocked the cataracts off my eyes.

Camping is one of those spheres to which the ladies are devoting their energies. Bill Curry, at Rich's, told me that less than 10 per cent of all his tent sales are made to lone male customers. All the rest are purchased by the gals, who shop with husbands, in family groups or alone. He says that one of the remunerations of his job is to help mom and pop and the kids select a canvas house which will meet their requirements for a wilderness adventure. The anticipation of such a camping trip, evidenced by the eagerness and enthusiasm of the whole family, means as much to him as the actual sale. (But don't tell Mr. R. R.)

At Walco's, Wingfield Short gave me the same kind of report. Wing says that he carries on a lot of correspondence with his lady customers—(don't tell Mrs. W. S.). He helps them with their problems of selecting the right gadgets and gear to make the vacation camp more comfortable, the cooking and serving of food more convenient, and the entire group safer from the noxious elements of the wild, as chiggers, mosquitoes and their kith and kin.

The more I got into this new conception of camping by the entire family, which appears to be replacing the lone old stag male who used to go off by himself to "rough it" on a distant stream or lake, the more fascinating it became.

Bill Cloud, who shags for Coleman in these parts, declared that his outfit was putting out its products in a variety of colors to catch the feminine eye. The purchasing power of this country is in the hands of its womenfolks, and now that mom has moved into the outdoor field, the gear and gadgets needed for wilderness comfort and existence are being designed for her.

Civilization is not built around kingdoms or commonwealths or empires. Its basic foundation is the home. Which means, of course, the family group and its participation as a unit in all activities.

Now the family is moving into the inspiring atmosphere of the outdoors, to share with one another the enjoyments which go with fishing, boating, hiking, camping and their related pleasures.

It is one of the healthiest signs of our times.

State to Stock Streams with 8,000,000 Walleye

Ten Georgia lakes will receive liberal stocking of walleyes this spring.

The State Game and Fish Commission announced that more than eight million of the game fish, all hatched at its Lake Burton facility, will be distributed in lakes thought suitable to support them.

Lakes Lanier and Hartwell, the newest member of the Georgia fishing system, will receive the largest stocking, about two million fingerlings.

Lakes Allatoona and Chatuge will receive about a million fish each, and Lakes Burton, Nottley, Rabun, Seed, Tugalo and Yonah will get from 100,000 to 750,000 each.

The walleyes are the first ever hatched in a Georgia hatchery, though eggs were imported from out of state.

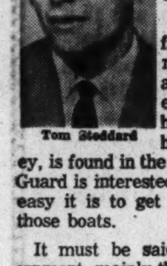

Tentative plans, according to biologist Howard Zeller, call for supplemental stocking of the lakes until it is hoped the walleyes become self sustaining.

OUTDOOR REPORT

Coast Guard Works Overtime To Combat Boating Accidents

By TOM STODDARD

The almost fantastic rise in recreational boating the United States in the past 10 years has captured the interest of millions of families and thousands of manufacturers, as well as the U.S. Coast Guard.

Tom Stoddard

But whereas the families and the manufacturers are mostly interested in either how much fun, or how much money, is found in the boom, the Coast Guard is interested in how dratted easy it is to get killed in one of those boats.

It must be said that the government, mainly through the Coast Guard and cooperating with the states in which boating is a major recreation, has done a rather good job in keeping up with things. Laws requiring safe boat handling and equipment have been set up, and are being enforced.

Besides this, 38 states have set up numbering and licensing for boats, and are keeping track of them.

Nevertheless, it is astonishing to some how little most of the people who operate boats are concerned with safety, or even courtesy.

The degree of ignorance of boat courtesy is great, but mostly only irritating. The absence of any idea of boat safety is downright dangerous.

For instance, the Coast Guard has published a booklet this month on the increased frequency of boating accidents, and the cause of deaths in boating. Included in the report are these interesting statistics.

In 1952, only 24 accidents involving outboard motorboats were reported; of course, there was no requirement to report accidents as there is now, and there were certainly a great many more than this.

But in 1960 there were 2,186 accidents reported, and these involved the deaths of 571 persons.

The Coast Guard made a study of 303 cases involving deaths in boating accidents. They found, among other things, that:

In these accidents, 386 persons died in the water. A total of 333 of these did not have lifesaving device of any kind to hang on to. Of these, 84 were completely without such devices in their boat, and others had not worn them at times when they should, or the number of life jackets, etc., was note equal to the number of passengers.

That's just a part of it. But it makes you think.

ELSEWHERE OUTDOORS—That big full moon has not helped the bass fishing any at all, and few were the reports received this week. But John Carson, the Washington Redskins gridder, and Lou Lanard caught 20, the largest nine pounds, at Rock Eagle Lake in Eatonton. . . . Crappie are more plentiful. Chris Murphy, Rex Lee and Hinton Sams got well over 100 on two weekend trips at Lake Lanier, using the same old minnows. . . . The Fayette County board of commissioners has decided to enforce the law regarding hunting in Fayette County on Sundays, and asked for the Game and Fish Commission's cooperation. This, of course, is the county's option, and the state goes along with them. Just thought you'd like to know. . . . Hunting for deer in Dawson County will be closed in 1961-62.

Frustration, or Dad Rat It Dept. — Lester Hardwick is a trout fisherman of long standing, but his brother Dick was a pure novice when the two tried for Brownies in the Chattahoochee. Dick caught a 3½-pound brown trout right off the bat, that was 20 inches long, causing brother Lester to advise him to quit right now and never try trout again. Had Lester ever caught a trout that size? "Heck, no."

Part Two—Three-year-old Jonathan Weston outcaught his daddy, Bert Weston of 6263 Vernon Woods Dr., NE., 9-0, fishing at a private lake in Sandy Springs. Daddy did not forfeit. He just fell short entirely, while using $100 worth of spinning gear. Young Jonathan's equipment: bamboo cane pole, pink worms, beginners' luck. He caught two bass, two crappie, three shellcrackers and two bluegills.

As I See It

Kathy Nolan Injured In Fall, Will Return

By PAUL JONES

Pretty Kathy Nolan, who has been a mainstay in the cast of the Real McCoys, is not leaving that TV show as some viewers had feared—she'll be back on her feet before the season is over.

Jones

Kathy was thrown from a horse while working in an episode of the McCoys in January. A disc in her spine slipped, smashing a nerve which extends into her right leg.

The blonde actress first thought she would be able to get by without surgery, but a spinal operation was deemed necessary and she spent many lonely hours in a hospital room recovering.

All the while, her TV audience obviously was in the dark about the whole thing.

In a recent episode Kathy was shown in a bed recovering from the ailment. That episode marked her return to the show.

The show kept alive Kathy's character "Katie" with repeated references to a back injury.

Viewers, however, did not know whether this meant "Katie" was being written out of the show, or whether she was merely taking a hiatus from the program, since doing a show a week is a demanding assignment.

One of the principals in a daytime soap opera, recently was unceremoniously eliminated from the show without public announcement and, viewers have come to expect the unexpected.

I have had several calls from viewers who were concerned about Katy's absence. Many feared she had been dropped.

During her recuperative period Kathy was asked if she wanted to appear in the series, working in a wheelchair. She replied that she had rather wait until she was back on her feet before she returned to the show. She did reconsider and did the scene in bed.

DAVID BRINKLEY, who has been largely responsible for the success of the Huntley-Brinkley report, will do television's first "column" of the air next season for NBC-TV.

Brinkley's laconic humor was the thing that put NBC-TV out front in the network scramble for viewer attention during the presidential conventions.

According to the New York Times, an NBC official said "the Washington correspondent could do interviews or discourse on such things as the cherry blossom season, the Capitol's subway, sidelights to the main happenings of the day. . . ."

Since Brinkley's "column" will be done in living color, the cherry blossom story might be interesting to watch.

PAT PRICE, of Henry Grady High School, writes: "Did you see Jane Eyre tonight (April 27)? I thought it was a very good program, based on the little time there was to tell the story in. I think that the book was excellent and much better than the movie or tonight's play. Please print your opinion. I greatly respect your opinions."

Ingrid Bergman

The Version of the Charlotte Bronte classic was cramped in the hour format. The characterizations were not first rate, although I am sure the actors were handicapped by the medium. Compared to Ingrid Bergman's "Turn of the Screw" I'd say "Jane Eyre" was only fair.

The Bard Wins on Macbeth

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP)—William Shakespeare took top honors in the television academy nominations Monday. His 350-year-old "Macbeth" won five places.

Previous Emmy winners Fred Astaire, Ingrid Bergman and Harry Belafonte were also in contention. But the most notable series of the 1960-61 season, the great debates, failed to get a mention.

"Macbeth," the hall of fame telecast on NBC Nov. 20, was nominated from program of the year, along with "Astaire Time," "An Hour with Danny Kaye," "Sacco-Vanzetti" and NBC's political convention coverage.

Lady Macbeth — Judith Anderson — will compete for best single performance with Bergman with "24 Hours in a Woman's Life" and Elizabeth Montgomery in "The Rusty Heller Story" on "The Untouchables."

Maurice Evans as Macbeth finds himself in competition with Cliff Robertson, who plays "The Two Worlds of Charlie Gordon" on the Steel Hour, and Ed Wynn, who played himself in "The Man in the Funny Suit" for Desilu Playhouse.

Shakespeare's tale of the tragic Scot also competes for best dramatic program with "Sacco-Vanzetti" and three series—"Naked City," "Twilight Zone" and "The Untouchables."

Though the Nixon-Kennedy debates were overlooked, the academy nominated President John Kennedy's news conference coverage by all three networks in the news program field.

You Can Ride Into Space With America's Astronaut

By THE TV SCOUT

If all goes well Georgia viewers will see America's astronaut ride a rocket into space at approximately 7 a.m. Tuesday.

All during Monday night tape cameras of the three TV networks and the pool crews will be working away. They cannot go on the air with this material until there's "fire in the tail," or, until the rocket is airborne.

You will then be able to follow the rocket carrying the astronaut for some 2½ minutes. It should be 16 minutes before he lands in the Caribbean. They expect to have films of the landing and recovery in three hours, or roughly 11 a.m.

Walter Cronkite

After the rocket is launched, they will show some of the material taped earlier. Naturally, the exact time the networks will take the air is unknown and will not be known precisely until the rocket is fired, or shortly before.

An NBC-TV spokesman, who said the astronaut-carrying missile might not be fired until Thursday, explained that IF the firing goes off as planned Tuesday, it will be incorporated as part of the Dave Garroway show, beginning at 7 a.m. on Channel 2.

CBS-TV informed Channel 5 that its special man-in-space telecast will begin at 6:30 p.m. Walter Cronkite will be the "anchor man" on the CBS-TV space team.

ABC-TV and Channel 11 will offer coverage of the momentous event starting at approximately 7 a.m. and continuing for 60 to 90 minutes.

The generally consistent Garry Moore Show has a good group of people for Tuesday's outing. Program is about equally divided between comedy and music.

Comedy high spots: Arthur Treacher chatting with Moore about English TV; a take-off on Perry Mason; some black-outs on TV trailers; That Wonderful Year (1956) satires on "The King and I" and "Rififi." Musical high spots: Julie Andrews singing "I'm Old-Fashioned" and "I Could Have Danced All night;" Allen Case doing "Everything's Comin' Up Roses" and "On the Street Where You Lived" and the '56 medley, winding up with a production number based on "Big D." 10-11 (Ch. 5).

8:30-9 (Ch. 5)—It takes 25 years for the twist to happen on Alfred Hitchcock Presents. Romantic triangle of lovers Hazel Court and Jack Cassidy, and rich, old Ernest Truex breaks up—the lady marries the millionaire, who promises her he'll soon die. He doesn't, so the other man marries, too. Twenty-five years later,s he has her revenge. Hitch's opening involves fountain of youth.

9-10 (Ch. 2)—Thriller's story is a tour de force for Edward Andrews who plays one of his whimsical heavies. He's a book dealer with an unfaithful wife (Patricia Barry).

He borrows from literature (Edgar Allen Poe, etc.) for his murder methods, as he does away with his wife's lovers. Andrews is fine but your TV Scout found story is no killer.

10-10:30 (Ch. 11) — Another story of survival after death is on Alcoa Presents. Polish girl sees Nazi soldier but nobody else does. He tells her to write to his wife and that leads to eerie climax.

Story is from files of British Psychic Research Association. It allegedly follows the actual occurrence closely. Playing girl is Catherine Feller, 19, budding star of British TV and films.

Novelist Landon Died of Overdose

LONDON (AP)—A coroner recorded a verdict Monday that British thriller novelist Christopher Landon's death was accidental.

Landon, 50, was found dead in his studio last Wednesday. The novelist's doctor said Landon, who suffered from a leg blood clot, apparently had taken 35 sleeping pills in five days.

Star Day-by-Day

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Communist party organ Pravda has begun a long serial story on the life of astronaut Yuri A. Gagarin.

Kennedy Tax Hit By Blough

Dividend Curb Unjust, He Says

HOBOKEN, N.J. (AP)—The chairman of U.S. Steel Corp. Monday criticized one aspect of the Kennedy administration's tax proposals as unjust to 15 million American stockholders.

Roger M. Blough, presiding at the annual meeting of the nation's largest steel company, attacked the President's recommendation for elimination from the law of provisions excluding income tax on the first $50 of dividends and a tax credit of 4 per cent on dividend income in excess of $50.

WRITE CONGRESSMAN

He called the proposal "socially unwise" and said it could "constitute a backward step to employment and economic growth in America."

Blough told U.S. Steel stockholders that "the least you can do in your best interests and in the interests of the American economy is to give your congressman the benefit of your thinking."

Other than for some criticism of management from the floor the tone of the meeting was optimistic, with Blough forecasting a gradual improvement in economic conditions.

Blough spoke before 1,200 stockholders in the field house of Stevens Institute of Technology, on the banks of the Hudson River directly across from Manhattan.

U.S. STEEL OFFICIALS HIT

The criticism of U.S. Steel management came from Beatrice Kelekian, vice president of the Federation of Women Stockholders of America, who noted that the company's executive salaries rose in the past year while "stockholders faced a possible dividend cut."

She also criticized restricted stock options, which permit certain executives to purchase company stock at an unvaried price, even if the price of the stock rises.

"I hope all in this room will support Sen. (Albert) Gore's bill," she said. The Democratic senator from Tennessee has introduced a bill which would eliminate such stock options.

Earlier, Blough said that a gradual but noticeable improvement in orders occurred recently. He said "April will be the best month so far," with estimated shipments of 1.3 million tons.

STRICTLY BUSINESS

"Our neighbor's in the advertising business!"

Revolution In Selling Seen by '71

In the next decade "creative marketing will entirely revolutionize the world of selling as we now know it," a New York advertising executive said here Monday night.

Stuart D. Watson, president of McCann - Marschalk, Inc., told a sales clinic sponsored by the Atlanta Sales Executives Club that "there is a new technology in selling which will become the sales challenge of the '60s."

TREND ACCELERATED

Declaring that new technology is changing marketing more rapidly than it changed manufacturing methods, he said, "the big change we face is an accelerated trend toward simplified distribution, to new applications of self-service, to new efficiency in the market place."

Supermarkets and shopping centers already are dominated by a form of automated selling, he said, and in the past few years sales through vending machines have quadrupled to a present level of more than $2½ billion a year.

He predicted that in the next five years vending sales will increase another 50 per cent, meaning fewer service people per sales dollar, greater use of computers, faster turnover of stock, and a new view of the buyer by the seller.

MORE CREATIVE

Stuart said tomorrow's salesman will be more creative as a marketing strategist, leaving more and more of the mechanics of selling to machines.

The era of salesmanship based on personal contacts and friendly relations is rapidly giving way to one demanding specialists with a range of knowledge about their products, he added, and the professional salesman's standard training is becoming the study of languages, economics, arts and sciences rather than techniques of selling and public speaking.

Car Makers Still Look For Spring

Sales Lag Leaves 900,000 Surplus

By BEN PHELGAR

DETROIT (AP)—The auto industry still is concerned about the lack of a real solid upturn in spring sales. The basic problem, however, appears to go much deeper.

Since Jan. 1 the manufacturers have built slightly more than 1,600,000 cars. Dealers have sold slightly more than 1,500,000. If they had started from scratch this would leave 100,000 cars or less in dealer inventories, or less than a week's stock even at current selling rates.

CUT CAME LATE

But instead of 100,000, dealers have 900,000 or more. Thus while the factories have been geared down now to the rate of sale, the cut-back apparently was much too long in coming last fall.

A case can be made for putting the blame even further back. A buildup of stocks in the fall is normal since this is the introduction period. New models must be produced in volume if business is to prosper.

This year around, however, dealers already had far more than ample supplies of 1960 models when the 1961s appeared. Between one-fourth and one-third of all sales from October through December were these "old" new cars—last year's model.

OUTPUT PILES UP

A good share of the late fall output piled up on dealers' lots. When the real drop in sales set in during late December this pileup grew spectacularly until inventories topped 1,100,000.

Manufacturers and dealers claim there is no simple solution. Production must be continued in order to provide buyers with ample variety—so you can have automatic transmissions, or power steering or air conditioning.

On the other hand if you are car shopping and can find a car in a dealer's stock which satisfied you, you should be able to get a better price than if you demand certain extras which have to be custom ordered.

Production last week dipped 10 per cent from the year's high and totaled 115,361 cars. It may go up a little in the weeks immediately ahead.

Avoidance of Major Cutbacks May Yield Stronger, Earlier Uptrend

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—A business upturn earlier and stronger than is now commonly expected may be forthcoming as a result of relatively easy success in overcoming the recession, a national convention of financial analysts was told here Monday.

Dr. Henry C. Wallich, professor of economics at Yale, said that because businessmen correctly anticipated that this recession would be mild, they avoided major cutbacks and so helped bring on an early upturn.

The low point of the recession may have been reached in February, he said, considerably earlier than the most pessimistic observers had anticipated.

Approximately 1,400 persons are attending the convention.

Participants include the analysts who are concerned with the study of investments, and top corporate executives who will discuss their companies with the analysts.

Wallich suggested the possibility of price reductions in high profit industries to forestall wage demands and possible renewal of the inflationary spiral.

He noted that the level of corporate profits in relation to a rising gross national product (sum of goods and services produced) had been in a downward trend in the 1950's.

If they should recover to the relation prevailing during 1955-57, he said, there would be a substantial upsurge, but still only a moderate increase over the previous high achieved in the second quarter of 1959.

He predicted such an upsurge might generate demands for big wage increases. He said any increases in excess of productivity gains would raise the prospect of renewed inflation which would, in turn, "pose a threat to stable growth and create the danger of an eventual more serious setback."

Wallich said "this danger might be avoided, and prosperity stabilized, if price cuts were to be made in industries enjoying rapid productivity gains and high profits."

Greatest Load Of Appliances Coming South

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI)—A 71-car train carrying what is believed to be the largest single shipment of major appliances ever directed into the South is scheduled to reach Atlanta by Wednesday, Frigidaire Division of General Motors announced.

Dispatched from its Dayton manufacturing headquarters last week, the three-quarter-mile-long train is loaded with more than 5,300 major home appliances for retail dealers in the Atlanta sales district.

Retail value of the shipment is estimated at $1½ million. A Frigidaire official said the Atlanta district trainload and two others headed for Charlotte and Texas sales districts are the result of aggressive sales campaigns in the Southeast and Southwest areas of the country during recent weeks.

Coca-Cola Reports Best Sales in History

Special to The Constitution

WILMINGTON, Del. — First quarter Coca-Cola Co. sales exceeded all previous records, both at home and abroad, president Lee Talley told the annual stockholders' meeting here Monday.

He added that this year's first quarter earnings would exceed last year's $5,833,377, or 46 cents a share, for the same period. The 1961 figures are to be announced at the annual organization meeting of the board of directors in New York Tuesday.

Annual Dividend Rise Is First in 13 Months

NEW YORK (AP)—Dividend increases in April showed the first year-to-year improvement since March 1960, Standard & Poor's Corp. reported Monday.

Increases totaled 49, compared with 38 in April 1960. The number of extra dividends dropped to 16 from 39.

Missiles Strong On Mixed Tape

NEW YORK (AP)—Aircraft-missile stocks were strong in an otherwise mixed and quiet stock market as Wall Street adopted a cautious attitude toward the Laos situation.

Coppers also perked up as major producers raised the price of the red metal to 30 cents a pound from 29 cents.

The market as a whole was comparatively dull.

The continuingly tense international climate brought further buying into the missiles and some other issues related to space age warfare. Steels were firm to somewhat higher as steel production carved out its eighth consecutive weekly rise.

MAN-IN-SPACE

The list had an irregular edge to the upside at the opening but thereafter became virtually trendless. The aircraft-missiles were up from the start. Coppers improved late in the day on news of the price boost.

The missile stocks were also helped by the imminence of the U.S. effort to put a man in space. McDonnell Aircraft, prime contractor for the Mercury astronaut project, rose a point.

Avco, which has won attention because of its activities in missilery, was the most active stock, rising ⅞.

Boeing, up 1½, was bolstered also by news it had sold 20 jet airliners to Trans World airlines.

ALLEGHANY EVEN

Alleghany Corp. was unchanged as the shareholders' meeting to settle the proxy fight convened at Baltimore and adjourned.

American Optical rose 2¼, although earnings were lower.

Bell & Howell, which reported lower earnings, dipped 2¼.

Amerace, strong last week on news it is planning to acquire Swan Rubber, was up another 6¾.

Universal Match advanced 1½ as it became known that its merger with Universal Controls is under way again. Universal Controls was up ¾ on the American Stock Exchange.

Bethlehem, which is reactivating more open hearth furnaces, advanced a point.

American Stock Exchange prices were irregular.

Corporate bonds advanced in slow trading. U.S. government bonds showed little change.

Can you put aside even 50¢ a day?

Can you spare 50 cents a day to buy stock in some leading American company? Just 50 cents a day to own stocks that would have paid you 4% or 5% on your extra money last year?

Well, that's all it takes to join our "pay-as-you-go" plan on the basis of a $40 payment every three months.

That's the least you can put in, but you can invest more if you like—anything up to $1,000 a month.

And no matter how big or little your payment may be, you can take your pick from 1200 stocks on the New York Stock Exchange.

As soon as we get your check or money order, we use it to buy for you as many shares as we can—full or part shares—of the stock you've chosen. You get all the dividends paid on your stock from the day of purchase.

Like more details, complete facts?

The whole thing is spelled out in our pamphlet on the Monthly Investment Plan. We'll be glad to mail you a copy together with a membership blank and our special report on "Twenty Stocks for Long-term Investment."

Just give us a call, or write "Pay-As-You-Go" on a postcard addressed to—

TO ALL STOCKHOLDERS OF AMERICAN INVESTORS CORPORATION
(A Tennessee Corporation)

This is an URGENT REQUEST for you to join with us in placing competent and far-sighted business men into management of American Investors Corporation. Such men are sorely needed, because our company is presently plagued by hopelessly inept management.

Losses— The market value of your stock has been as high as $5.50 per share and now you are fortunate to get $1.75 per share. A mere decline of nearly 70%, during a time when the over-all market has been on the rise.

Sworn annual statements of our two Life Insurance Companies on file with the required Insurance Departments reveal these alarming results for 1960; Loss from operations $672,389.56. Decrease in capital and surplus $1,789,402.10. 40% of capital and surplus vanished in one year! We have reason to suspect that losses in other subsidiaries are more alarming!

Demand was made on April 7 and suit filed on April 21 and the Company has not as yet yielded to our demand for financial statements and a stockholders list, so we must use this means of getting the information in the hands of the stockholders as we plan to solicit proxies in opposition to present management at the next annual meeting. Nearly 1000 stockholders joined this Association last week. Write for information. Know the truth.

Grains Gain Despite Sales

CHICAGO (AP)—The grain futures market withstood a late moderate flurry of selling and finished with prices generally higher although most of them were well below their peaks of the day.

All the new crop soybeans slipped under Friday's closes and most of the wheat and corn deliveries held only small fractional gains. Until the final few minutes, the market had maintained a firm to strong range most of the time in an unusually quiet trade.

Brokers said the fact that profit takers had not been tempted by the general strength in earlier dealings was an indication that some bullish influence may have been expected. Apparently most of them had resolved to stand on established positions in the market on a possibility of worsening developments on the international scene, particularly in Loas.

Atlanta Produce

On the Atlanta wholesale fruit and vegetable market receipts were rather heavy over the weekend with trading fair on Sunday and light early Monday. Cabbage offerings were very heavy as prices declined; okra was weaker and Florida purple hull peas sold lower. Celery and iceberg lettuce were firm to slightly higher for good quality. Liberal offerings of old and new crop potatoes were only about steady. Florida half box cartons of oranges held at 2.50-2.75 in job lots; grapefruit was 1.35-1.50 with some best 1.75-2.25 per carton.

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures closed 25 to 80 cents a bale higher.

The market was irregular in early dealings, with old crop deliveries easing on liquidation. Selling in part reflected circulation in the trade of 12 May delivery notices issued at New York. Traders were inclined to sell near months against purchases of new crop positions.

Near the close, the entire market firmed on short covering by earlier sellers.

Memphis advices to a leading spot firm said mill interest for prompt shipment spot cotton in grades below strict low middling was good. Inquiries for July-August shipment also improved. The firm's crop survey indicated that the Central and Southeast portions of the main belt made up the lateness of the crop last week as weather turned more favorable.
